Shipping Strike Called Off at 11th Hour

Chinese Shell U. S. Ship As It Flees Shanghai

New York, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—The American steamer Flying Cloud was attacked by a Chinese Nationalist warship today and severely damaged as she ran the blockade of Communist-held Shanghai, the Isbrandtsen Shipping Co. revealed.

None of the 10 passengers or 46 crew members of the Flying Cloud was injured, although the Chinese ship fired "hundreds of shells" and blasted holes in the side of the 6214-ton steamer up to 13 inches in diameter.

The Isbrandtsen Co. sent a telegram to the State Department in Washington, asking that the Government fulfill its pledge to take "appropriate action" if any American ship were attacked by the Chinese Nationalist government which is attempting to "bottle up" Shanghai.

The master of the Flying Cloud reported by wireless that the attack began at 3 a. m. (Shanghai time) today as the ship left the mouth of the Yangtze River en route to Fusan, Korea, with a full cargo. The company said the 10 passengers were leaving Shanghai and presumed that some, at least, were American citizens.

The shipping company said the attack finally was halted, apparently after the Flying Cloud had sailed beyond the limits of what the Nationalists contend to be Chinese territorial waters. The Flying Cloud reported at 3:40 a. m. (Eastern standard time) today that it had dropped anchor for an examination of the extent of damage and was attempting to bolt plates on the outside of the hull and to stop leakage with cement boxes inside.

Isbrandtsen called on the Chief of Naval Operations to ascertain whether the Flying Cloud was in danger of sinking and to furnish any necessary assistance. The company said it believed the ship could be repaired and proceed to Korea.

The State Department declined immediate comment on the incident. It was studying reports from the shipping company and from United States Consul General Walter P. McConaughy in Shanghai. The State Department had said on October 5 that it would consider an attack on any ship carrying American nationals as a very serious matter.

Red Move Held Bid For China's U. N. Seat

Lake Success, Nov. 15 (AP).—Red China today disowned Nationalist China's delegation to the United Nations in the opening move of a campaign apparently aimed at taking over the big power seat assigned to the receding Chungking government.

Red repudiation of the delegation here was announced in a broadcast from Peiping.

Barkley Nuptial Party to Appear On Television

New York, Nov. 15 (NYHT).—National Broadcasting Company said today it will carry a television program on the wedding Friday noon (EST) of Vice President Alben W. Barkley and Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley in St. Louis.

The company said it didn't know yet whether or not it would be able to televise the actual ceremony in the Singleton Memorial Chapel of St. John's Methodist Church.

It will, however, record the arrival of the wedding party at the chapel, the departure, its progress to the home of Mrs. T. M. Sayman on Lindell blvd. and the reception at the Sayman home.

Faces Death Sentence

Burgman Guilty of Treason; Jury Out Nearly Five Hours

Herbert J. Burgman leaves District Court in wheelchair

By Bill Brinkley and Joseph Paull
Post Reporters

Herbert John Burgman, native-born American, yesterday was found guilty of treason for broadcasting Nazi propaganda from Berlin during the war.

The Minnesotan, who suffered a heart attack in District jail over the weekend, showed no emotion as he sat in a wheel chair and heard the verdict in District Court.

His hands remained in his lap. His face was its usual pasty-white. His head was back against the pillow of his wheel chair. His eyes were practically closed.

The jury found the 53-year-old Burgman "guilty as charged" on 13 overt acts of treason.

Burgman was chief clerk in the military attache's office of the 'Brain' to Test B-36, Banshee Argument

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

An amazing new "mechanical brain" rather than an actual duel between the B-36 bomber and Navy Banshee fighter is expected to settle the moot question of the worth of strategic bombing.

At least a preliminary report on the capabilities of the huge plane and global A-bombing is expected with the new evaluation process by January, a top Department of Defense spokesman announced.

Twelve scientists operating under Weapons Systems Evaluation Group have been at work at the Aberdeen (Md.) Army Proving Ground for the past two months, it was said. They've been told to submit a report by December 15.

The Defense official said the group tackled the problem this way:

First the actual wartime experience in strategic bombing with the B-17 and B-29 was considered, in light of the interceptions accomplished with the fighters and radar network of that day.

Then the performance data of today's planes—the B-36 and jet fighters—along with facts as to improved radar, etc., was substituted for the characteristics of the older weapons.

Results of Navy interception tests at the Patuxent, Md. Air Experimental Center—in which Banshees were pitted against Banshees with camera guns—and of somewhat similar tests held by the Air Force at the USAF Air Proving Ground, Elgin Air Base, Fla. and Muroc Dry Lake, Calif. were applied to the calculations.

Next, a long series of interception problems are prepared, involving all types of circumstances. Then all the factors of each problem—speeds, altitudes, rate of climb, warning time, weather, ability to direct the fighters on the target, fire-power, etc., are fed into the "mechanical brain."

The latter are electronics com-

Big 3 Agrees To Slow Down Dismantling

Bonn, Germany, Nov. 15 (AP).—German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer announced today the Big Three Western powers have agreed to put brakes on the dismantling of German steel and synthetic oil and rubber plants.

They also have decided to allow western Germany to build bigger and swifter merchant ships, he said, to establish trade consulates abroad and enter "many international organizations" and are considering ways to lighten the consequences of the technical state of war still existing.

The chancellor enumerated these concessions in a policy debate before the parliament of the West German Republic.

Adenauer emphasized that all the Allied concessions were contingent on further negotiations with the Allied high commissioners.

Higher Gas Rates Effective Today In the District

Higher District gas rates go into effect today.

The boost, granted last week by the Public Utilities Commission, averages 6.14 percent for all classes of Washington Gas Light Co. customers.

The increase will add about 24 cents to the average District homeowner's monthly gas bill. For those using gas for heating as well as cooking, the new rate will average an 83-cent-a-month increase.

First bills showing the increase probably will not be sent out until Monday or Tuesday. The company expects to receive an additional yearly operating revenue of $749,520.

G. B. Earnshaw, Bank Official, Dies at 42 on Quail Hunt

George B. Earnshaw, 42, vice president of the National Metropolitan Bank, died while hunting quail on the farm of a friend in Waldorf, Md., yesterday — the first day of his annual vacation.

He died one day short of a year after the death of his father, George V. Earnshaw, who had worked as a teller under his son's supervision.

Mr. Earnshaw

The younger Earnshaw sat down on a log after hunting for several hours. He said he didn't feel well. As his friend, Joseph Russell, of Clinton, Md., asked if there was anything he could do, Mr. Earnshaw collapsed and died, apparently of a heart attack.

Born in Washington, Mr. Earnshaw, who lived at 707 McNeill rd., Silver Spring, attended Wilson Normal School here, Hyattsville elementary and high schools and Staunton Military Academy.

He also attended the banking school at Rutgers University and was a former president of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, from which he was graduated. He had also been treasurer, first vice president and a governor of the chapter.

Paris Parley Satisfactory To Acheson

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Secretary Acheson flew home yesterday and promptly reported to President Truman on his six crowded days in Paris and Germany.

He showed every sign of being pleased with his two days' conference in Paris and exhilarated by his welcome in Frankfurt, Bonn and Berlin.

"I can say that my meetings with the Foreign Ministers of France and Britain were entirely harmonious," he told reporters, "and that we reached full agreement. My talks with the leaders in Germany were entirely satisfactory."

Negotiations to Come

Further decisions on Germany will have to await the outcome of the negotiations about to start between the German leaders and the three allied high commissioners in western Germany. Meantime Acheson will turn his attention to other subjects, notably the Far East.

Talking to reporters at the airport yesterday, the Secretary said he would resume giving his personal attention to the case of Angus Ward, the American consul general at Mukden, who has been imprisoned by the Communist authorities there for the past three weeks.

President Truman was at the airport to greet Acheson, with a phalanx of State Department officials and European ambassadors. They spotted the Secretary waving from the pilot's compartment of the big chartered stratocruiser that flew him back from Europe.

The Secretary waved his homburg hat, and as he saw the President awaiting he called "Very kind of you, sir!"

"You did an excellent job," the President answered.

Aides Leave Plane

After the foreign diplomats filed by and shook hands, Acheson's State Department aides walked off the big plane. They included Henry A. Byroade, head of the bureau of German and Austrian affairs; Paul Nitze, of the policy planning staff, and Adrian Fisher, the department's legal adviser.

"Goodness," the President exclaimed, "you've got the whole State Department with you."

The Secretary said he was not at all tired although he had been on the go almost incessantly since he left Washington a week ago Monday.

The President showed such interest in the double-decked stratocruiser that he decided to inspect it. Afterwards he said he still preferred his own four-engined plane, the Independence, which was at the Azores last night bringing the Shah of Iran to Washington.

Mechter, Willis Release Offered By North Korea

Seoul, Korea (Wednesday), Nov. 16 (U.P.).—The North Korean radio said today that the two American ship's officers aboard the SS Kimball Smith when its crew mutinied off North Korea last September are safe and would be handed over to American authorities on request. The Americans are Capt. Alfred T. Mechter, Kinderhook, N. Y., and Chief Engineer Albert E. Willis, Brooklyn.

The casual announcement, coming after two months of silence, was interpreted in some quarters as a bid for American recognition of North Korea, with Willis and Mechter as the price.

Goodwill Mission

Thousands To Hail Shah Here Today

SHAH OF IRAN
In official picture

Official Washington and thousands of its citizens were set last night to extend a rousing welcome to the youthful Shah of Iran, scheduled to arrive at 4 p. m. today at National Airport aboard President Truman's personal plane.

Bands, flags, a "Key to the City" ceremony and a formal state dinner will highlight the 30-year-old Shah's first day in Washington.

The ruler of Iran will be greeted at the Airport by President Truman. He will be rendered full military honors and then move to the head of a parade formation.

The procession will enter the District over Memorial Bridge at which two Fire Department ladders will form an inverted victory welcome sign. The caravan of cars will round the Lincoln Memorial and proceed along 23d st. nw. to flag-decorated Constitution ave., east on Constitution ave. to 12th st. and north on 12th st. to Pennsylvania ave.

At District Building

The royal visitor is due to arrive in front of the District Building at 4:35 p. m., where Commissioner John Russell Young and other city officials will welcome him in brief ceremonies. A program of entertainment, with Station WTOP's Eddie Gallaher acting as master of ceremonies, will begin at 3:45 p. m.

Commissioner Young will present the Key to the City, after which the Shah is expected to say a few words of thanks in English.

Federal and District workers in the area of the procession will be excused early today to greet the Shah on the line of march.

Goes to Blair House

From the District Building the Shah and his party will go directly to Blair House, where he will spend his first night. For the remainder of his stay here, lasting until Sunday morning, he will live at Prospect House, home of the late Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal.

The President and Mrs. Truman will give a full dress state dinner in honor of the Shah tonight at the Carlton Hotel, beginning at 8 p. m.

Officially, the Shah's visit is set down as a good will mission—"to observe the working of democratic government in the greatest of the democracies."

But his heavy schedule, in this country planned through December 13, lays heavy emphasis on military and heavy industry installations, with visits to West Point, Annapolis, Fort Knox and

Firm Stand By U. S. Seen In Coal Row

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A visit to the White House today by Conciliation Chief Cyrus S. Ching is expected to initiate firmer Government action in the deadlocked coal dispute.

Ching, it is believed, will declare that Federal mediation activities have failed to find an approach to a solution of the contract dispute beween John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers and the coal operators.

Government labor officials believe it is more than likely that President Truman will take some step more drastic than mediation to prevent a threatened walkout of the soft coal miners on December 1. The miners temporarily returned to work last week after a 52-day strike for contract improvements.

John L. Lewis has declared that he is willing and ready to talk contract with any group of operators or any individual operator, but thus far there have been no takers. Negotiations collapsed some time time ago.

Yesterday, the United Mine Workers issued a blast, charging that "coal companies are setting the stage for a gigantic price gouge of the American public . . ."

The "piratic scheme" was laid specifically to Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates and the Pocahontas Fuel Company, which the union charged were "both controlled by Wall Street." The union release asserted that "these two fabulously rich companies have, surreptitiously, raised the per-ton price of coal to the retail dealer from 25 to 75 cents a ton. As always, these fat corporations will try to blame the union."

Commenting on a similar charge made by UMW official at Beckley, W. Va., Walter Rothenhoefer, general salesmanager of Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, said yester-

$1,420,000 in Fines Paid Here by UMW

John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers yesterday paid the District Court $1,420,000 in fines for refusing to obey a court order directing them to call off last year's coal strike.

Lewis did not attend. He and the UMW were represented by W. K. Hopkins, union counsel. Payment was made to Harry M. Hull, clerk of the court. The sum included a fine of $1,400,000 levied against the union, and $20,000 against Lewis, but also paid by the union.

The fines had been levied by Judge T. Alan Goldsborough for contempt, after the jurist had issued an injunction forbidding the strike, at the request of the Federal Government under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Under the laws regulating Federal courts here, the District government will receive 60 percent of the fines, or $852,000. District officials said the money will go into the general fund,

Health Plan Rift Only Tiff On Strategy

Post Reporter

What looked like a rift in the Administration's compulsory health insurance camp resolved itself yesterday into relatively minor differences over legislative strategy.

Most legislative sponsors of the controversial health plank privately agree that it may have to go over to the Eighty-second Congress.

But Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.), one of the authors, stirred up a tempest when he said on the record that the compulsory insurance point "is not yet in the legislative action stage."

The Humphrey statement was hailed by health plan opponents as a major defection in the Administraton's health insurance ranks. At the same time the labor press accused Humphrey of defaulting on a pledge.

It was clear yesterday, however, that Humphrey's "boner," if in fact it was one, lay in stating publicly what the strategy of legislative handlers of the bill has been right along.

In other words, the controversial "Title 7," embracing compulsory health insurance, would be used in the second session of the 81st Congress, much as it was in the last session, as a club to drive other Truman health points to passage and then be taken to the voters for a clear-cut test in the 1950 campaign.

The plain fact is, one generally well-informed source said yesterday, that the present Congress hasn't got enough pledged votes to deliver a compulsory health insurance program.

The hope of leading advocates, including Humphrey, is that the next Congress will have the votes to pass the bill in 1951 or 1952.

Community Chest Total Rises to 63 Pct.

The 1950 Community Chest drive neared the two-thirds mark yesterday, with 63.49 percent of its $3,991,719 goal realized in 391,116 pledges totaling $2,534,501.

Workers in the Business Unit No. 1, consisting of large business firms, reported 5842 new pledges of $42,577.33. This is 65.78 percent of its goal and puts the unit total at 55,844 pledges of $965,180.77.

Residential Unit workers turned in 1801 new pledges of $32,247.62 at a meeting yesterday, to put the unit at 62 percent of its goal with 7228 pledges of $205,471.

Pledges of these two units, added to 901 for $14,499.15 reported by Business Unit No. 2 Monday, gave the campaign 8544 new commitments totaling $89,324.10.

At the Residential Unit meeting at the Washington Hotel, Mary Haworth, columnist for The Washington Post, described a case history on which she didn't have to offer any advice.

It was the story of a Washington beauty parlor operator who several years ago had been thrown entirely on her resources when her husband, in his late forties, had suffered a stroke and had to give up his job.

The beauty operator, whom Miss Haworth did not identify, hired a practical nurse, at $10 a day, until the financial strain proved too great. Then she appealed to a wealthy patroness of her establishment.

She was told: "You must humble your pride" and appeal for public charity.

It was not until the beauty operator reached the Family Service Association, Miss Haworth said, that she received the courtesy and sympathetic treatment she had needed to boost her morale and give her courage to work out, with FSA support, a plan for her family's welfare.

Miss Haworth said the beauty operator told her, "If your Com-

19-Year-Old Wife Shot in Abdomen By 'Empty' Rifle

An "unloaded" .22 caliber rifle sent a 19-year-old Annandale, Va., wife to Arlington Hospital last night with a bullet wound in her abdomen.

Fairfax County police said the wife, Mrs. Jeanne C. Doke of Annandale Acres, Annandale, was accidentally shot by her husband, Donald, 20, while he was cleaning the rifle.

Police said Doke told them he was practicing target shooting outside his house before supper. Before entering the house, he said, he clicked the trigger several times and was convinced the weapon contained no bullets.

500 Craft Still Facing Possible Tieup in Atlantic And Gulf Ports

A strike of 2000 AFL deck officers operating from Gulf and Atlantic coast ports, which had threatened to tie up all shipping in the region, was postponed for possibly 30 days on the plea of Government mediators last night.

The strike had been called for midnight.

Little more than an hour before that deadline, a 30-day extension was agreed upon, subject to approval of the rank and file of the AFL masters, mates and pilots and the 38 companies making up the employers' group from Atlantic and Gulf ports.

The deadline for approval by the union and employers is next Monday.

A strike will be possible if either party rejects the peace plan as early as next Tuesday noon, November 22.

Terms of the contract between the deck officers and the employers which expired September 30 will be extended until 12:01 a. m. December 16 under the plan, if both sides approve it in the meantime.

The announcemeent of the removal of the midnight strike threat was made by William N. Margolis, assistant director of the Federal Mediation Service. Margolis took over the dispute on Monday when the Government asked the parties to come to Washington for peace talks.

It was learned that other AFL unions were anxious to avert a tieup. They were pledged by AFL President William Green to respect picket lines and to support the deck officers' strike in every way if it developed.

Such support could tie up all shipping in the East except inside ports or on coal barges, oil tankers and ships of the armed forces.

The contract extension, third since September 30, was thrown into the deadlocked dispute by Margolis as a last resort.

The shipowners, members of the American Merchant Marine Institute, were vigorously opposed to setting up a fact-finding board with authority to recommend a settlement. The union was agreeable to such a solution.

Major stumbling block was the union's demand that the present preferential hiring arrangement which gives it a virtual union shop, be brought into what is termed a rotary hiring hall.

The union wanted its members to be picked to operate the 500 Atlantic and Gulf port vessels in rotation rather than by chance.

The companies insist that their only connection with their cargo and passenger vessels while they are at sea depends upon the officers and they want to select those men.

A short while before the truce was announced, an industry source

James Roosevelt Out for Governor Of California

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP).—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the late President, today announced that he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of California in 1950.

For weeks there have been rumblings that he would run.

Roosevelt, Democratic national committeeman for California, immediately lashed out at California Republicans and California "nonpartisanship."

"Party responsibility must be restored in California," he said in a prepared statement. "Lobbyists and pressure groups prosper when political parties and party leaders slough off their rightful responsibilities under the guise of 'nonpartisanship.' . . .

"The Legislature, with Republican majorities in each house, treats with sullen disregard the recommendations of our 'nonpartisan' Governor. Is such irresponsibility the end product of nonpartisanship?"

Roosevelt said: "I am proud to take my stand on the principles and platform of the Democratic Party . . . I repudiate all Communist support

Quarantine Placed on Dogs In Nearby Maryland Areas

A three-month quarantine on dogs in several nearby Maryland sectors was placed yesterday by Prince Georges and Montgomery County governing bodies.

The quarantine was a direct result of reports that rabid dogs had bitten at least nine children in the affected areas within the past week.

The effect of the edict is to prohibit dogs from running loose in the quarantined area. Dogs must be kept tied or securely confined within the owner's premises. The dog must be on a leash held by a responsible person in order to be on the streets. A child unable to control a dog is not competent to take one out on leash.

Dogs found running loose in the quarantine area may be destroyed but actually will be picked up and taken to the county pound and held four days before being destroyed if the owner does not appear and pay his fine of from $10 to $100 for permitting the dog to run loose in a quarantined area.

Appearing both before the Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners and the Montgomery County Council, Dr. A. L. Brueckner, director of the Maryland Livestock Sanitary Service, urged the action on the nearby counties.

The quarantine is not county-wide. Its borders are defined by the areas in which the rabid dogs have been running loose.

In Prince Georges County, the quarantine will cover the entire Chillum Election District, which includes Mount Rainier, the Prince Georges section of Takoma Park and Brentwood. Actual boundaries will be the District Line on the south, the Montgomery County line on the west Colesville rd. from Montgomery line on the north, and Cottage Terrace rd. to Williams st. in Brentwood, to Wells ave. to University lane to Colesville rd. to Montgomery line on the east.

In Montgomery County, the borders have been defined as extending along the Prince Georges County line on the east, District line on the south, Georgia ave. on the west and Glenmont-Colesville-Fairling rd. on the north.

The quarantine, effective yesterday, will extend to February 15.

In addition to the stringent quarantine, a program for vaccination

Mother of 3 Polio Victims Stricken by Disease Herself

A 30-year-old Silver Spring woman, whose three children are in Children's Hospital with poliomyelitis, is a victim of the disease herself, it was reported to the Montgomery County Health Department yesterday.

She is Mrs. Maurice D. Atkin, of 213 E. Franklin ave., Silver Spring. Although she became ill October 30, her case was not diagnosed as polio until Friday.

Her 4-year-old son was stricken October 27; her 7-month-old twin son was reported ill of polio November 7, and the diagnosis of the other twin, a girl, was reported last Thursday.

Dr. Earl B. Thompson, who reported Mrs. Atkin's case, said none of the stricken members of the family had the dread "bulbar" form of the disease.

"Luckily," he said, "the children, according to pediatricians, are not in the worst category."

Mrs. Atkin, reached at home where she is recuperating, said she "should be through with it in a few days."

She said her husband, a Government employe, has not been stricken.

"He's either immune, has had it so slightly he didn't know it, or will get it," she said.

Meanwhile, the Public Health Service and the Maryland Bureau of Sanitary Engineering quieted fears in the neighborhood that a

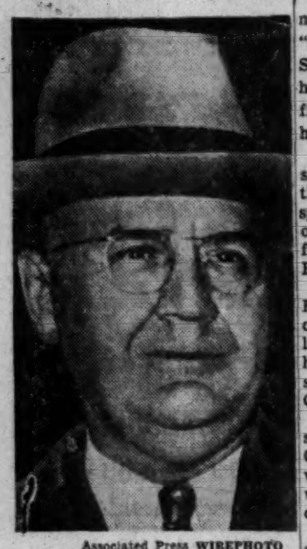
Traps Were Set For Judy Coplon



Associated Press WIREPHOTO
JUDGE SYLVESTER RYAN will preside at the conspiracy trial of Judith Coplon and Valentin Gubitchev

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—An FBI man today told of planting a phony "secret" memo, designed to fool Soviet agents if it fell into their hands, in a Justice Department office where Judith Coplon would have access to it.

But Agent Robert J. Lamphere said he had no reason to believe that Miss Coplon, convicted on one spy charge and facing trial on another, ever took any information from the memo and sent it to the Russians.

Lamphere was one of a series of FBI witnesses called in a Federal court hearing by which Miss Coplon's lawyer is trying to prevent her being tried for conspiracy to spy with Soviet engineer Valentin Gubitchev.

The lawyer, Archibald Palmer, said his client was a conscientious Government worker who "dug out various subversive organizations" while working for the Department of Justice.

Lamphere said the planted document was signed "J. H."—the initials of J. Edgar Hoover—and contained a reference to a device known as a "geophone," an instrument for measuring the intensity of blasts.

The agent said he prepared it, getting some of his information from the Atomic Energy Commission, last January 7, at a time when the FBI was closely watching Miss Coplon because of New York meetings with Gubitchev.

Palmer sought to show that these meetings were not dicated by spy plotting but by the romantic feelings Miss Coplon said she had for Gubitchev until she learned he was married.

But agent Robert Granville, who arrested the pair here last March 4, insisted that their New York encounters looked like "espionage meetings."

"Did you ever find that this girl had ever been a Communist?" Palmer asked.

"Not that I can recall," Granville replied.

Tell of Phone Tapping

Other FBI witnesses testified that telephones were tapped in Miss Coplon's office, in her Washington home and in the Brooklyn home of her parents.

Agent T. Scott Miller, jr., said he once rode so close to Miss Coplon in a New York subway train that he was able to look over her shoulder and see what was in her purse when she opened it.

Miller said he never saw her pass any papers to Gubitchev.

Palmer is trying to prove to Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan that Miss Coplon's arrest was illegal. He also contends that she shouldn't be tried with Gubitchev because she was found guilty of "the same offenses" in Washington.

With Gubitchev, she now faces trial on a charge of conspiracy to steal secret papers for the benefit of the Soviet Union. Gubitchev has been suspended from his United Nations engineering post.

Hiss Is Denied Mrs. Massing Record Study

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Alger Hiss today lost in an attempt to look at the immigration records of Gerhart Eisler's former wife, a possible witness at his new trial.

Mrs. Hede Massing, former wife of fugitive German Communist Eisler, was called as a Government witness during Hiss' first perjury trial, but was not allowed to testify.

Hiss had obtained an order to look at her immigration records. His lawyer said if she testified at the second trial, beginning Thursday, they wanted to find out if her immigration records showed conflicting statements.

However, the Government moved to quash the order and Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman today upheld the Government motion.

The judge said it was not certain Mrs. Massing would be called or allowed to testify at the second trial.

Hiss is charged with perjury because he denied before a grand jury the charges of self-styled former Communist spy courier Whittaker Chambers, who said Hiss gave him Government secrets while a State Department official.

The first trial ended in a hung jury.

His Wet Feet Trap Youth in Shop Entry

Little drops of water not only make the mighty ocean, but they also made a mighty clew in a housebreaking case early yesterday.

Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon, former investigator for the U. S. attorney's office and now attached to No. 14 precinct police station, thought he saw a front door close as he passed the Mercurf Valet Shop, 1627 Kenilworth ave. ne., at 2:30 a. m.

He tried the door. It was locked. As he started to the rear entrance he heard a low whistle. His suspicion deepening, he hurried to the rear, where he found a door broken open.

Entering the shop's basement, he noticed the floor covered with about three inches of water. Nothing in the shop had been taken and it appeared devoid of occupants.

Leaving the store, Shimon half a block away noticed a 16-year-old boy whose trousers about the ankles were soaking wet.

Taken to the station for questioning, the boy, police said, admitted breaking into the shop and implicated a 23-year-old man, George L. Gadsby, 23, of 1611 Eastern ave. ne.

Both were charged with housebreaking. Gadsby was held for the grand jury in $1000 bond by Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn. The boy was turned over to juvenile authorities.

At the shop it was said the water came from a boiler.

U. S. Welfare Cited as Guide For Budget

NYHT News Service

The Nation's economic welfare should be the guiding principle in determining whether the Government should balance its budget in any one fiscal year, Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder advised yesterday.

The recommendation, supported by the findings of a group of outstanding economists and virtually concurred in by Budget Director Frank Pace, jr., was contained in a report made public by a subcommittee of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report, charged with investigating monetary, credit and fiscal policies.

Answering a subcommittee questionnaire, all agreed that any attempt to saw off a balanceed budget as "fiscal year policy," as was done in the 1920s, was clearly outmoded.

In his answer to the subcommittee, which is headed by Senator Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), Secretary Snyder said:

"The general economic welfare of the country should be the guiding principle in determining for any given period whether the Federal budget should be balanced, should show a surplus, or should show a deficit, and in determining the size of any surplus or deficit."

Budget Directtor Frank Pace, told the Douglas subcommittee, that experience with a long range fiscal outlook, appeared to pose the budget situation as follows:

"For any given year it is impractical to count on achieving any specific goal, whether a balanced budget, or a predetermined surplus or deficit. Over short periods, in fact, budget receipts and expenditures not only fluctuate with the changes in economic activity, but also are uncontrollable for various other legal and technical reasons.

The statement filed with the Douglas committee by the group of economists, representing the National Planning Association, discussed the principle of the "annually balanced budget" at great length, to conclude that the "objective" was not only "impracticable" but presented "serious disadvantages" in "principle."

"There is," the university economists' statement said, "not even a clear concept of the 'budget' to which the requirement of balance can be applied.

"For instance, in the regular budget, bookkeeping transfers to the social security trust account are classified as expenditures. As a result of this, that budget may show a deficit at a time when the cash budget shows an excess of receipts over outgo."

Burgman Guilty of Treason; Jury Out Nearly Five Hours

United States Embassy in Berlin at war's outbreak but was not repatriated.

He was convicted for his wartime broadcasts under the alias of "Joe Scanlon" over radio station "DEBUNK," which allegedly originated in the United States Middle West but actually broadcast from Berlin.

Burgman's broadcasts, the Government charged, were aimed at ereating disunity among the Allies and dissension in the United States.

The jury brought in its verdict at 5:10 p. m., after deliberating four hours and 55 minutes.

Earlier the jury had made two dramatic returns to court for further instructions, primarily on the question of insanity, main defense contention in the trial.

Various psychiatrists had described Burgman as a "schizophrenic, a pathological Milquetoast" and a neurotic who was "sane at all times."

One jury reappearance was at 4:40 p. m., only 30 minutes before the jury brought in its verdict.

At that time Judge Alexander Holtzoff told the court he had two notes from the foreman: One, that a member of the jury wanted further elaboration on the question of insanity, particularly as to a man who could distinguish between right and wrong but who could not adhere to the right; the other, as to whether hate would be a compelling force such as to force a man to commit crime.

Replied Judge Holtzoff: "A man would not be responsible for his acts if he could distinguish right from wrong if an irresistible impulse destroyed his reason."

Elaborating on the question of hate, the judge said: "Hate would not be the type of force that would excuse a person. It would have to be an insane impulse due to derangement of mind, and hate is not such an impulse necessarily."

Foreman Homer R. Baker, of 1725 Highwood pl., se., a physicist at the Naval Research Laboratory, said this was an excellent explanation, but then asked as to the effect of hate on a person mentally ill—could hate in such a case cause him to be mentally insane?

Judge Holtzoff replied that hate alone is not insanity.

Burgman, the prosecution had charged, "worked steadily for three and a half years, spewing Hitler's poison over the radio."

The broadcasts which Burgman was charged with making included such passages as this, replayed in court from recordings during the course of the trial:

Passage From Broadcast

"When I am President, I promise you I will drive the moneychangers out of the temple if they are still there when I take over office . . . When I become President of the United States just as soon as Franklin D. Roosevelt is impeached, I promise you mothers and fathers again and again that I will call back your boys from foreign battlefields in British colonies and British dominions before it is too late. Time is pressing and I hope it will not be too late to call back your boys when I enter the White House."

When the jury brought in its guilty verdict at 5:10 p. m., it was asked for its findings on each overt act—in each case the foreman answered "yes," indicating a finding of "guilty."

Later reporters learned there were three jury ballots: On the first it was 10 to 2 for conviction, on the second 11 to 1.

Burgman's wife, who had testified her husband showed signs of insanity during the period of his broadcasts, and their son Thomas were present as the verdict was brought in. A nurse was in attendance on Burgman.

Death Maximum Penalty

No date was set for sentencing. Burgman faces a maximum penalty of death.

Judge Holtzoff told the jurors "you should be gratified you have performed an important duty in a democracy in a high-minded manner."

He also told both counsels they had "very thoroughly prepared the case" and told defense counsel: "Although your client has been convicted I cannot imagine anyone doing anything more than this counsel has done."

James J. Laughlin and William Owen were defense attorneys. William A. Paisley, Victor Woerheide and Dorothy Fillius, special assistants to the Attorney General, presented the Government's case.

Blames Truman

Huge Deficit Is Feared By Taft

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said yesterday that adoption of President Truman's program next year would add more than 16 billion dollars to the Federal deficit and lead America to "stagnation and austerity."

Taft attacked "the entire Truman program" in a statement from his office here. The Ohioan, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, was in his home State pressing his campaign for reelection in 1950.

"We face a deficit of 5½ billion dollars," Taft said. "Yet the Truman program would add to that $6 billion for compulsory medicine, $6 billion for the Brannan plan, $4 billion for UMT and other billions for services of all kinds."

His references were to the system of compulsory health insurance frequently advocated by the President, to the "production payment" plan for keeping up farmers' income sponsored by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, and to a long-pending proposal for universal military training—"UMT."

The Senator said anyone who "reads President Truman's speech in Minneapolis on November 3 must realize that he intends in 1950 to ask for a Congress which will adopt the entire Truman program."

He added that this program now includes "price-fixing and other controls which he himself referred to in 1947 as police-state methods."

Taft said the President wants:

1. "Power to fix prices, to fix wages, to control distribution and the necessary rationing that goes with it, and to put the Government into business desires to enter.

2. A farm plan involving "complete power to impose production controls on farmers." Taft said under this the "Government would tell farmers how many acres of wheat, corn and soy beans they can raise; how many hogs they can sell; how many beef cattle they can feed, and dairy cattle they can handle; and how many chickens they can keep."

3. The Government to "guarantee every man a job, but it can only do that if it is given power to tell every man what job he shall take and at what wages."

Taft said these three measures "would give complete control of industry, commerce, agriculture and labor" and added:

"When you include repeal of the Taft-Hartley law, the socialization of medicine, universal military training and other "free services" to the people, we shall have almost a duplicate of the labor-socialist regime in England today."

150 Prelates Convene Here Today on Catholic Welfare

About 150 American members of the hierarchy will begin the annual meeting of the National Catholic Welfare Conference today.

Sessions will be held at Caldwell Hall at Catholic University. During the meetings, the prelates will consider committee reports and discuss their program for the coming year.

At the end of the meeting, the annual statement of the conference will be released.

Present for the sessions, in addition to archbishops and bishops, will be the four American cardinals, Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York, Edward Cardinal Mooney of Detroit, Samuel Cardinal Strich of Chicago, and Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphai.

At 4:30 p. m. today Cardinal Spellman will make the annual Spellman Award for excellence in theology at ceremonies at Holy Redeemer Coolege, 3112 7th st. ne.

The sad case of the old Bowler!

For years Mr. McSwane's unworn, old bowler hat rested on a closet shelf. Sick of seeing it there, taking up valuable space, Mrs. McSwane threw it out one day.

Sometime later her husband asked her where it was. When he heard what his wife had done, he turned purple. "Thrown it out," he cried, "I had $300 hidden in the sweat band." Though aghast, Mrs. McSwane replied, "You should have put it in a bank."

'Forced Saving' Hit In Pension Plan

All Big Firms

CIO Union Asks Electric Plants Vote

The CIO's right-wing International Union of Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers (IUE-CIO) has petitioned the National Labor Relations Board for representation elections at all the major electrical manufacturing companies.

The IUE has asked for company-wide elections, for the right to be collective bargaining agent for the employes, at General Electric, General Motors, Westinghouse, Radio Corporation of America, Sperry Gyroscope, and several other firms. All these companies presently have contracts with the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers (UE), a left-wing union recently expelled by the CIO. IUE is made up of right-wing components which have broken away from the left-wing UE.

Robert Denham, general counsel for NLRB, in announcing the IUE petitions yesterday, also disclosed that Westinghouse has requested that elections be held in its plants to determine the bargaining agent for the employes. Westinghouse asked for 75 elections at 75 separate units, whereas IUE wants one big election. UE is sitting tight, and declaring thus far that no elections are needed since UE already is representing the workers.

The question of representation will in the final instance have to be determined by the five-man panel of the NLRB. It is expected that the board, as it has in the past, will take up each company and plant separately before determining whether the elections should be company-wide, plant-wide or unit-wide.

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP).—President C. E. Wilson of General Motors Corp. today declared that recently negotiated pensions in the auto and steel industries actually are "forced savings plans" rather than "free pensions."

The head of the world's biggest car-producing firm also called for an end to "shotgun bargaining methods" that he said stem from industry-wide bargaining.

"Adequate Federal pensions operated on a sound basis would seem to be the real answer to the (pension) problem," said Wilson in a speech at a convention of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages.

He said that the steel industry pension plans and the new one at the Ford Motor Co. have the effect of "freezing the working population in their jobs." This results, he said, because they require employes to work for one company for 25 or 30 years.

But several changes should be made, he said, in the Federal social security system:

1. Benefits should be increased "to reflect the change in the purchasing power of the dollar."

2. Federal pensions should be higher for skilled and semiskilled employes to reflect the proportionately higher deductions from their pay.

General Motors now is holding informal pension talks with the CIO United Auto Workers and the left-wing United Electrical Workers. Its contracts with the two unions run to next May, however, and any GM pension plan presumably would not be effective until then.

"It is clear," the industrialist said, "that the Nation must find some answer for industry-wide bargaining in those industries where the prosperity of the country is threatened by national strikes.

"Some logical criteria must be recognized as a basis for resolving disputes in such industries without resort to industrial warfare, or what might be called shotgun bargaining methods."

Ship Strike Is Postponed

In New York said most of the companies involved favored the setting up of a fact finding board. This official, who declined to be named, said he based this estimate on a telephone survey.

The development came as the Independent Newtex Steamship Corp., not in the 40-firm group, signed an agreement with the union.

M. J. Frechie, vice president of Newtex, said the company gave the union recent West Coast terms on hiring, seniority and job security, and agreed to settle other terms in 60 days.

About 70 union members on 12 ships are affected.

The luxury liner America of the United States Lines sailed at 10 p. m. (EST)—two hours before the deadline for the walkout. But the union said it would be tied up at Southampton, England, under an agreement with the International Transport Workers Federation if the strike took place.

Capt. Charles F. May, head of the union, said that American vessels caught by a strike on the high seas would be considered "hot" in any non-Communist port.

That would mean the vessels would have trouble being serviced in most foreign ports.

As an alternative, the Government had the Taft-Hartley Act to fall back upon. While the deck officers are regarded as supervisors and thus are not covered by the labor law, a strike which could tie up the Government's cargoes for European aid could be considered an emergency subject to the law's most drastic strike-ending machinery.

The union insisted 17 issues were involved but Frank J. Taylor, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute, and chief negotiator for the shipowners, said only the hiring hall issue was holding up settlement.

12 Tentatively Seated to Try Harry Bridges

San Francisco, Nov. 15 (AP).—Government and defense attorneys carefully screened prospective jurors today to try CIO longshore leader Harry Bridges for perjury and two union aides for conspiracy.

Seven men and five women were seated tentatively in Federal Judge George B. Harris' courtroom jury box. Judge Harris joined in the close questioning as it continued through the second day.

Bridges listened attentively.

The Government charges that the 48-year-old president of the CIO Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union lied at his 1945 naturalization hearing when he said that he had never been a Communist.

J. R. Robertson, first vice president, and Henry Schmidt, international representative of the ILWU, are accused of conspiracy in supporting Bridges' testimony.

The prospective jurors were asked what they read; their business, union and fraternal affiliations; what their in-laws did; and even the state of their health.

So far, only two persons have disqualified themselves, and a third was excused.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized restoration of full service on coal-burning railroads as of 11:59 p. m., November 20. The action revokes a directive, effective October 26, reducing coal-burning passenger locomotive service by 25 percent on those lines having less than 25 days' coal supply.

'Rift' in Health Insurance Camp Proves a Minor One after a clear "mandate" from the voters is asked and given.

'No Retreat' Officially

That doesn't mean that President Truman or Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing has consented to any "strategy of delay" or will ever formally agree to it.

Officially the position of most legislative sponsors is also one of "no retreat."

As a practical matter, however, Humphrey probably let the legislative cat out of the bag.

President Truman is expected to plug as hard as ever for the controversial health plank in his next State-of-the-Union message and make it a top 1950 election issue if Congress fails to put it through.

Republican National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson already has indicated a willingness to accept what the GOP and the American Medical Association call "socialized medicine" as one of the main issues in the congressional campaign.

Hustings Battleground

But there remained little doubt that the battleground next year will be the hustings, and not the House or Senate floor.

A statement by Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) opposing action on a compulsory health insurance program next year touched off reports of a "rift."

Senator Humphrey in a telephone interview with the Minneapolis Tribune agreed with Douglas and the tempest was on.

To discount talk of a major Administration split, Humphrey was obliged to issue a second statement "clarifying" his position, friends said.

In the second statement, Humphrey said he always has favored and still favors the "principle" of social security insurance, but recognizes "the practical difficulties of a Nation-wide program of health insurance.

"Since problems of administration are often formidable barriers to effectively carry out valid objectives, I believe it is vital that those of us who recognize the need of comprehensive health insurance coverage prepare ourselves to solve the administrative problems of any such legislation," Humphrey went on to say.

Further Research Held Need

"It is my considered judgment, therefore, that legislation for health insurance is not yet in the legislative action stage and will not be in that stage, regardless of its merits, until there have been further hearings, further research, and until a primary basic administration formula has been developed."

A Senate Labor subcommittee staff study of major health insurance bills, ranging from the Administration bill to the "compromise" Flanders-Ives and Hill bills has already been ordered. The more limited Taft plan, affecting only low-income groups, will also figure in the study.

Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.), subcommittee chairman, has called for subcommittee action when the study is completed March 15. It would surprise no one, however, if the subcommittee voted for further study.

If the Administration insists on action next year, the Labor committee in a showdown probably could command enough votes to report out a bill. In that event it is believed even Senator Humphrey will vote to report it.

But as in the case of attempted Taft-Hartley repeal, the Administration does not now command the same majorities in the full House and Senate.

Counter Strategy

The counter strategy, favored by Humphrey publicly and by some other sponsors privately, is to first push through Congress the six preliminary points in the Truman health bill and let the more controversial seventh point go over to next session.

Title 3, providing for expansion of hospital facilities, was enacted last session and the Senate passed the major portion of three other titles.

If the Humphrey strategy is followed, Congress would concentrate next session on final enactment of these and two other as yet undelivered titles, providing for special health assistance to rural areas and assistance to States for maternal, child health and crippled children services. But there would be no showdown on crucial "Title 7" until Mr. Truman gets a direct "mandate" from the voters.

Floberg May Get High Navy Post

John F. Floberg, 34-year-old Chicago lawyer and World War II Navy veteran, soon will be named Assistant Secretary of Navy for Air, informed Pentagon sources said tonight.

These sources said Floberg had been selected by Secretary of Navy Francis P. Matthews, approved by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson and that his appointment now is before President Truman. Mr. Truman generally follows Johnson's recommendations.

The post has been vacant since May 25 when Dan A. Kimball was promoted to Undersecretary.

Area Milk Supply Adequate, D. C. Told

The Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association told the District Commissioners yesterday that locally produced milk is now sufficient to meet Washington needs.

Thin appeared to be one way of asking the District to restore prewar restrictions on importation of milk from areas outside the supervision of the District Health Department.

The Commissioners referred the report to Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger for recommendations.

"Emergency Milk"

In 1943, because of a milk shortage the District allowed "emergency milk" to be sent in from far away points to meet need. Previously milk had been admitted only from the area which could be personally supervised by District health inspectors. This area extends on the average about 80 miles out from Washington.

This year for the first time since the war, the Commissioners were told yesterday, distributors buying from the MVMPA have not had to supplement their supply with outside milk.

The association made no specific request to the Commissioners, a spokesman said, but merely brought to their attention the fact that local supply is now sufficient to meet demand.

Aided by Independents

The association, which includes more than 1600 farmers in Virginia and Maryland, supplies about 85 percent of the milk consumed in Washington. The rest is supplied by about 200 local independent farmers and outside firms sending in "emergency milk."

The Milk Producers Association, along with its secretary-treasurer, Bruce B. Derrick, and seven dairies were indicted here by a special grand jury in March, 1948, on charges of conspiracy to fix prices and restrain trade in the multimillion-dollar milk industry.

The Supreme Court refused to throw out the indictments against the association last month and it is expected to stand trial on the charges.

Eastern Rail Fares Increased To Almost Double 1941 Scale

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Eastern railroads are expected soon to announce the effective date for the new passenger fares, which with the 15-percent Federal tax included will just about double those of 1941.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, in sanctioning the newest increase by a 6-to-4 vote, gave the lines north of the Potomac and east of the Mississippi the right to raise rates on five days' notice to the public.

The new basic rate for coach riders will be 3.376 cents a mile compared to 2 cents back in 1941. Thus the Washington-to-New York ride which used to cost $4.50 (it's 225 miles) will cost $8.72 including the Federal tax. There used to be a reduction for round-trip tickets. There is none today.

The map above shows the newly authorized higher rates for travel by coach from Washington to a dozen cities, along with the current cost. The tax is included in both figures.

The box printed here shows the same set of figures for Pullman tickets—but the Pullman rider must add the cost of a berth or a chair-car seat. Prices of these facilities have not been changed in the newest increase.

The Eastern railroads have estimated they will take in $37,800,000 more revenue through the higher prices despite a loss of about 2 percent in number of passengers. The Pennsylvania Railroad has estimated it will lose as much as 5.5 percent of its passenger business by the boost.

In the first seven months of this year coach travel declined 24.1 percent. It was this drop which led the rail lines to ask for higher rates.

The new rail rates compare this way with bus and airlines rates (the Federal tax included in all figures):

Washington to New York: Bus—$4.66 one way or $8.40 round trip; regular airline—$15.41 one way or $29.33 round trip; air coach (middle-of-the-night)—$9.89 one way, $19.78 round trip.

Washington to Chicago: Bus—$15.81 one way or $28.46 round trip; regular airline—$42.32 one way or $80.50 round trip; air coach (middle-of-the-night)—$27.95 one way or $55.89 round trip.

New Pullman Rates

Transit Company Comptroller Declares $3339 Average Wage

The average earnings of Capital Transit Co. streetcar and bus operators is now $3339 a year before tax deductions, a company official told an arbitration board yesterday.

J. E. Heberle, vice president and comptroller, said yearly earnings ranged from $1548 for 15 part-time operators to $4619 for 37 who put in regular hours plus overtime.

The base pay averages $1.44 an hour, but the cost to the company for each productive hour the vehicles are on the street is $1.915, Heberle told the five-man board deciding a contract controversy between the firm and its union employes.

The difference between the two figures lies in the cost of overtime, pay for meal hours and vacations, he explained.

In the period from 1937 to 1948, operator hourly rates have risen from 74 cents to $1.45 for full-time employes.

Eli Oliver, presenting the union's case, challenged Heberle's earlier statements that the company revenues have been steadily declining.

Oliver declared the firm applied for an income-tax refund of three million dollars during the war under a provision permitting firms to charge off accelerated depreciation if the facilities were used in war work. He said this resulted in higher income-tax payments subsequently.

In effect, the refund granted during the war is being paid for out of current income in the form of higher income taxes, Oliver contended.

The union also argued that an increase in wages does not necessarily affect revenues to the same extent as the total cost of the added wages. Oliver cited the previous arbitration award in 1947 under which wages estimated at 2½ million dollars were added.

The union counsel said the firm's vice president estimated the company net revenue would be $264,000 under the old wages, but when the new scales were put into effect, the net revenue dropped only $80,000 below this.

The company vice president, Heberle replied that this was accomplished through a 10 percent cut in service.

Bond Official Tells of Credit

By the United Press

Louis A. Good, vice president of Bond Stores, Inc., said yesterday his company mails about 200 credit inquiries a month under the name of another concern, but denied it is an "unfair" practice.

He testified in Federal Trade Commission hearings on charges that Bond Stores use "unfair and deceptive" methods to trace customers who are behind on their bills at the firm's 68 retail clothing stores.

Bond has acknowledged using letters and cards under four other company names in the past.

Good said that since November, 1943, the company has used only one form under the name of the Surety Investigating Co. He says forms under the name of Surety are sent to acquaintances of delinquent customers and ask whether the individual is "worthy of a position requiring bond." He said it is used to locate persons who move their residences, leaving unpaid bills.

Good said he thought up the idea in 1937 and registered the name of Surety Investigating Co. in Connecticut. He said Surety also procures the issuance of bonds of various types for use by Bond Stores.

Student Paper Urges GW to Admit Negroes

The student newspaper at George Washington University, the Hatchet, yesterday urged the university to "remove the barrier it has maintained against Negro students."

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, university president, issued this statement:

"The Hatchet, as the student newspaper of the university, is free to reflect without interference the opinion of its editors. The position of the university in the matter of its membership is known to the community."

In an editorial the Hatchet described the university as "behind the times and close to current trends in American life."

Three of the four policy-making members of the board of editors of the paper are Washington natives, according to Julian Singman, chairman. Singman, 21, who was born here, lives at 6215 Sligo Mill rd. ne., served with the Army in Japan and is a senior majoring in economics.

Other board members are John C. L. Donaldson, 22, of 1601 Argonne pl. nw., senior in journalism; Edith Venezky, 19, of 4719 8th st. nw., a junior in American civilization, and Hal Hart, 20, a foreign affairs junior, a native of Barrington, Ill., who lives at 1734 New Hampshire ave. nw.

West Won't Accept Red Danube Rules

The United States, Britain and France announced yesterday that they would not recognize the new arrangements made by Russia and other eastern European countries for controlling shipping on the Danube River.

The three western allies took their stand in formal notes to Russia, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, and also to Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia. These countries of the Danube basin outvoted the westerners at a conference in Belgrade last year, and set up a commission that effectively closed the lower Danube to western shipping.

Since the end of the war, and especially since the Belgrade meeting, the Danube has become two waterways for shipping purposes. From Linz in Austria to the Danube's mouth in the Black Sea, or about two thirds of the river's navigable length, all shipping and dock facilities are tightly controlled by the Russians and the other Communist countries.

From Linz upstream to the Danube sources in Germany, the less valuable part of the river for trade purposes, the western allies and Austria are in complete control.

The American note branded the Belgrade decisions last year as violations of the peace treaties in which Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania promised to give other countries free navigation rights on the great river.

It said the Soviet-controlled Danube commission was "clearly designed to enabled the Soviet Union to maintain a monopoly of Danubian commerce." And it suggested a possible appeal to the United Nations by saying that a copy was being sent to Secretary General Trygve Lie "in view of the importance of the Danube River to European economic and social development."

The British note, according to the Associated Press, declared the reason for forming the Soviet-controlled commission was "to afford protection to those monopolistic activities of the Soviet-controlled joint companies on the river." The French note said France would continue to recognize the former Danube statute signed in 1921 in Paris.

Greek Election Seen in Spring

Athens, Nov. 15 (AP).—Spokesmen for major parties in the coalition government said today they have agreed that Greek general elections should be held this spring.

A final decision will be taken and a date set after the return, expected within a week, of Populist Party Leader Constantin Tsaldaris and the Liberal Party head, Sophocles Venizelos, from the United Nations General Assembly.

The United States Ambassador to Greece, Dr. Henry F. Grady, said last night Greek elections must be held as soon as practicable to demonstrate that Greece still believes in democratic principles and practices. He said the time had come for the Greeks to cut government expenses, and create new jobs through industrial and agricultural expansion.

The four-year term of the present parliament expires March 31, 1950. It is generally believed Venizelos and Tsaldaris will call for the elections either March 31 or within 45 days after that date.

On 'Peace' Plan

Yugoslavia Calls Russia Hypocritical

Lake Success, Nov. 15. (AP).—Yugoslavia accused the Soviet Union today of monstrous hypocrisy in talking peace before the United Nations while carrying on a campaign against Marshal Tito.

Canada and China joined in an attack on the so-called peace proposals Moscow has presented to the U. N.

Canada declared the Kremlin should disband Communist fifth columns in foreign countries. China said the Moscow proposal "adds insult to injury."

The proposal is that the Soviet Union join the United States, Britain, France and China in a compact for peace.

The views were presented in the Political Committee of the U. N. Assembly. Canada, New Zealand and China backed a rival American-British proposal for reaffirmation of belief in the U. N. Charter and for a settlement on 12 essentials of peace.

Yugoslavia accepted most—but not all—of the U. S.-British proposal. As to the Soviet five-power pact plan, Yugoslavia expressed doubt that such a pact would do any more for peace than the peace pledges of the U. N. Charter.

Soft-spoken Milovan Djilas, Yugoslav Minister of State and one of the four men in Yugoslavia most hated by the Kremlin, told of repeated Soviet attempts to dominate Yugoslavia and said the Russians had lined up other Balkan countries against the Tito regime.

He answered Soviet Ukrainian charges that Yugoslavia is preparing to partition Albania.

Prague, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—Government sources confirmed tonight that all "unattached" anti-Communist foreigners in Czechoslovakia are being ordered out of the country.

These sources insisted, however, that foreign Communists including "dozens" of American Army deserters, will be allowed to stay.

The sources said everyone who is not regularly employed and who does not have a "positive" attitude toward the Communist regime is being asked to leave on short notice, from three days to two weeks. They described these people as "loafers."

No one is exempt and the policy extends even to other Eastern Europeans and Russians, the sources said.

Earlier, diplomatic sources said many American and British Communist sympathizers were among those asked to get out. They were reported to be bitter about the decision.

The sources refused to disclose the names of the United States Army deserters, but some of them wished to go to the Soviet Union to live, they said.

One of the first Americans ordered to leave was David Gottlieb, 30, Kenosha, Wis., who came here two years ago as a student and stayed on as correspondent for an American News Agency, a New York newspaper and an American radio network.

STATE SECRETARY COMES HOME—Dean Acheson, Secretary of State, rides from National Airport with Mrs. Acheson, who was among those welcoming him on his return from Europe yesterday.

Dismantling To Be Slowed

foreign ministers at their Paris conference last week.

[Secretary of State Acheson returned to Washington yesterday, saying his talks with the British and French Foreign Ministers had produced "full agreement." President Truman met him at the airport and praised him for "an excellent job" in Europe.]

Adenauer spoke just after a three-hour talk with the three Allied high commissioners at their headquarters at Petersburg, just across the Rhine from Bonn. He left this conference smiling.

He told parliament the occupying powers are standing firm, however, on the continued razing of German plants devoted exclusively during the war to making war materials. Such plants go for reparations.

The slowdown in dismantling of steel and synthetic oil and rubber plants will be ordered while further negotiations are in progress, Adenauer explained. He said he was confident these negotiations with the high commissioners will result eventually in their being saved to the German economy.

The negotiations are to be resumed Thursday.

The plants thus partially spared for the time being include the August Thyssen steel works at Hamborn in the Ruhr, reported to be the largest steel mill in Europe.

They also include the Borsig steel plant in Berlin's French sector, the Ruhr steel factory at Hattingen, the Charlotten iron works, the Gelsenberg Benzin A. G., oil refinery and the Chemische Werke-Heuls rubber plant, all in the British zone.

All were the subject of heated protests when they were placed on the original dismantling list.

In return, he said, Western Germany is ready to:

1. Enter fully into the Ruhr Authority, the six-power body set up by the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to control the vast Ruhr steel and coal output. The six-power statute creating this authority provided for German representation, but so far Western Germany has sent only an observer.

2. Give close cooperation to the Allied Security Board. This board was arranged in Washington conferences of the American, French and British foreign ministers to see that German industry does not revert to war production.

3. Allow foreign investments in German industrial enterprises. At the Paris conference it was reported Adenauer had offered to allow the French to make up to 40 percent investment in key plants as a guarantee against German war production.

Immediately after Adenauer had finished, Dr. Kurt Schumacher, leader of the Social Democratic opposition, attacked the proposed concessions to the occupying powers.

Flanders Gives Swedes 'Plus' On Hospitality

Sweden drew a "hospitality plus" rating from Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) yesterday for its treatment of visiting United States Senators.

He said he and other members of a Senate Banking Subcommittee were "delightfully received" when they visited Sweden to study cooperative housing.

Something of an international incident has been stirred up by complaints from Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) that he and a Senate Appropriations group were snubbed in Sweden.

Flanders said the Banking Subcommittee was received with such hospitality that it became "a very delightful embarrassment." He added, "We left Sweden with a very warm feeling for the people."

The Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune, commented editorially on the Oklahoma Senator's dispute with Sweden as follows:

"Since Senator Thomas voted both for the ECA appropriations and the arms-for-Europe bill, the Swedes probably figured that he already knew about Sweden's position in the war. If Senator Thomas is surprised at what he found, the Swedes are justifiably surprised at his surprise.

"There is a very large library just a block from the Senate Office Building that has all that information.

"Perhaps the Senator should forego the next junket and spend a week in that library. It would be cheaper for our taxpayers and a lot better for our foreign relations."

The American press reaction to Thomas' private war with the Kingdom of Sweden was reported as played up by Swedish newspapers.

"New York Papers Pull Senator Thomas by the Ear" and "Acid American Press Comment Against Junketing Senators" were dominating headlines in two of the biggest Stockholm papers.

Syria Women Cast Vote for First Time

Damascus, Syria, Nov. 15 (AP).—Women voted for the first time in Syria today as the country elected a new assembly to put the nation back on the road toward constitutional government.

Despite two military coups in recent months, the election was reported proceeding in an orderly manner.

The Populist Party, which dominates the present interim government of Premier Hachem Atassi, was opposed chiefly by independent candidates and was favored to win a majority of the 114 seats. Interior Minister Rushdi Kikhya, Populist leader, figured as a strong possibility for the presidency.

Because of a requirement for six years' education, only about 9000 women were eligible to vote out of a total electorate of 815,000. There were no educational requirements for male voters. Most of the women voters appeared without the traditional veils.

A light vote in most districts made it certain the election will continue Wednesday. The law requires that the polls be opened a second day if 60 percent of the vote is not cast the first day.

ECA Warns Europe Must Export More

Europe's recovery hopes will be unrealized until it can learn to export more of its products to the United States and other dollar-paying areas, the Economic Cooperation Administration warned again yesterday.

The Marshall Plan countries have greatly increased their production of both agricultural and industrial products, the ECA reported. But during the second quarter of this year, they exported less and less to America.

To reverse this fatal trend, European producers must:

First, reduce costs and prices.

Second, learn what it takes to market European wares to American consumers.

Third, provide the incentives to European exporters to shift their sales from the all-too-easy markets in soft currency areas to the dollar countries.

The ECA's advice, a restatement of the themes it has been urging for the past six months, was contained in its fifth report to Congress. The document, forwarded yesterday by the President to the Capitol, covered the period from April 3 to June 30 of this year.

Europe's national output, helped by Marshall aid, has been growing steadily since the beginning of the recovery program, the ECA found. Production in the participating countries now stands 18 per cent higher, on the average, than prewar.

But, during the period covered, "exports to the hard currency areas—particularly the U. S.—declined and the dollar deficit increased appreciably."

The trouble is, the report pointed out, Europe must export a much greater proportion of its output than before the war if it is to balance its external accounts. It has made some improvement, but not enough.

And, with respect to increasing its trade within Europe and elsewhere by the integration and unification of the European economies, "progress in this direction on the whole has been slow."

On the credit side of the recovery ledger, the ECA was able to report, besides the production gain:

Intra-European trade—commerce among the participating nations themselves—was $400 million higher in the second quarter of 1948 than in the corresponding period of 1948.

"Inflationary pressures appeared to be under control in nearly all countries." In June, wholesale prices were virtually the same or lower than six months before in all countries but Turkey, the United Kingdom and Austria. It was only in the last named that prices rose drastically—by 25 percent.

The spread of communism has been checked in Europe, and the Communists were thrown on the defensive in the participating countries.

The ECA report reemphasized the measures which Europeans must take to "close the dollar gap" by greater exports to America.

This will require, the report said:

A reorganization of factory methods by many European businessmen.

The installation of new and more efficient machinery, to reduce costs.

Greater attention to merchandising and advertising.

Redesigning of products and packaging to suit American preferences.

A determination to serve American customers with the care and attention they receive from American producers.

The provision of incentives to sellers to export their goods to dollar areas, and away from soft-currency markets.

And finally, the ECA report noted, "The United States, of course, must be willing to accept greater competition from European suppliers in order to help Europe pay its way."

Italians Seek Way to Increase Exports to U. S.

An Italian delegation talked with Treasury officials yesterday on ways to ease the entry of Italian goods into the United States.

Egidio Ortona, first secretary of the Embassy, and Clemente Bonivet, commercial counselor, spoke for the Italians. They met with Assistant Treasury Secretary John S. Graham and Customs Commissioner Frank Dow.

Their main goal was changes in American Government customs procedures in line with the Administration decision to overhaul these rules to encourage foreign imports.

The meeting with the Italians followed a similar session with British and Canadian representatives. The United States, Britain and Canada decided during the recent "dollar conference" here to overhaul American customs

Reds Converge on Chungking

Chungking (Wednesday), Nov. 16 (U.P.).—Communist armies menaced Chungking from three sides today amid growing indications of a serious split between the two top leaders of divided Nationalist China.

The Red troops which captured Kweiyang, 200 miles south of Chungking, on Monday, were reported marching northward toward this "refugee capital" early today.

Advance units from Kienkiang, road junction 130 miles east of Chungking, which also fell Monday, were reported moving toward Pengshui, 90 miles to the east.

Other Red armies were known to be massed near Nancheng, 250 miles north of here.

Meanwhile, it appeared Acting President Li Tsung-Jen had rebuffed retired President Chiang Kai-shek in a move which might pave the way for Chiang's return to the presidency from which he stepped down 11 months ago.

On Monday, Chiang called Li here from Kweilin, evacuated capital of Communist-threatened Kwangsi province.

THE GLORY OF IRAN

Excerpts from the Baha'i Writings

Let nothing grieve thee, O Land of Ta (Teheran), for God hath chosen thee to be the source of the joy of all mankind.

Rejoice with great joy, for God hath made thee the Dayspring of His Light, inasmuch as within thee was born the Manifestation of His Glory.

BAHA'U'LLAH

This is the prosperity of Iran. Undoubtedly she will progress day by day under the shade of the Blessed Tree until her illumination shall penetrate throughout the wide expanse of the earth.

Unquestionably, through the manifestation of the Infinite Power in this glorious age, wonderful signs will appear in the world and great changes are seen in the present and promised in the future, for the Word of God is like unto the Spirit, and the contingent world like unto the embryo in the womb of the mother. Through the power of the Spirit such various changes and metamorphoses become apparent, transforming them from one form to another. Especially in Iran, through the power of the Word of God, wonderful signs will appear.

defense establishments throughout the West.

The royal visitor will be a busy man from dawn to midnight throughout his Washington stay. On Thursday he will lunch at the Naval Academy and be guest of honor at a dinner given by Secretary of State and Mrs. Dean Acheson at Anderson House. Friday he goes to Mount Vernon, Arlington National Cemetery, calls on Gen. Omar N. Bradley and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and rounds out the day by playing host at a Shoreham Hotel reception.

On Saturday the Shah will visit Walter Reed Hospital and attend the George Washington-Georgetown football game at Griffith Stadium.

He will leave for New York and points west Sunday.

The Shah of Iran left Tehran on the Independence yesterday morning. His plane left Rome at 12:30 p. m. (EST) in a heavy rain for the Azores, for a night stopover. It had been delayed two hours while mechanics replaced a flight instrument, the Associated Press said last night.

Due to the rush-hour arrival of the Shah, buses and streetcars operating in the downtown area will be rerouted between 4 and 5 p. m. today.

Buses which operate to the terminal at Pennsylvania ave. and 13th st. nw., will turn back on E st. between 11th and 13th sts. nw. No streetcars will travel on Pennsylvania ave. between 9th and 17th sts. nw. during the hour. However, service on the Mount Pleasant, No. Capitol st. and Maryland lines will operate on F and G sts. nw., the Capital Transit Co. said last night.

Westbound streetcars on Routes 20 and 30 will operate only as far as 9th st., then be rerouted via F and G sts. to 14th st. nw. and back to their eastern destination; eastbound Routes 20 and 30 will turn back at 18th st. nw. to return to their destination, and Route 54 will be rerouted via F st. nw.

Ali Here From Kansas By Bus to See Shah

Twenty-three-year-old Ali Mohit, an Iranian pre-medical sudent, arrived here yesterday from Kansas to greet the Shah of Iran after riding buses two nights and a day.

Mohit

He has been studying at McPherson College in McPherson, Kans., the past five months.

Ali, who lives in Tehran, has never met the ruler of his country though his father was a member of the Iranian parliament and is an old friend of the Shah.

Young Mohit plans to seek the intervention of the Iranian Embassy here in arranging a chance to say a few words to the Shah.

Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young, yesterday gave Ali a ticket to stand at the reception today in front of the District Building.

Labor Free To Set Own Election Date

London, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Labor government traded a delay in steel nationalization today for a free choice of the date for the next general election—possibly early next year.

Rising living costs following September's devaluation of the pound apparently are hurting Prime Minister Attlee and his cabinet toward the polls.

Their strategy now appears to call for an election in any event before issuance next April of the new annual budget, which may contain more bad news for hard-up Britons.

Attlee must call an election some time before his government's five-year term expires next July. He has said he would not call one this year—and he has his own choice of a date unless a defeat in Parliament forces an appeal to the voters.

But today he offered a compromise with the House of Lords on his government's bill to place the steel and iron industry under state ownership.

The bill sets next May 1 as take-over day for the industry. The lords balked on that date, because they want an election verdict on state ownership of steel.

The lords, predominately Conservative, suggested July 1, 1951, as take-over day. The government compromise offered January 1, 1951, and the lords are expected to accept it.

The government could override the peers' slow-down on steel, but the parliamentary procedure would take until mid-February. By compromising with the lords now, the bill can be completed-

Currency Changes Proposed by Peru

The International Monetary Fund yesterday issued a statement saying:

"The Peruvian Government has consulted the Fund on a proposal to modify its exchange system and to adjust it to the requirements of actual circumstances. Although Peru has felt unable to propose a new par value to the Fund at this time, the Fund understands that the suggested action is for the purpose of establishing a unitary exchange system at a more appropriate level.

"In view of this and in view of the exigencies of the situation confronting Peru, the Fund expresses no objection to the proposed plan as a temporary measure, with the understanding that the Peruvian government will remain in close consultation with the Fund for the purpose of proposing to the Fund a new fixed par value for the Peruvian sol as soon as circumstances warrant.

"The Fund considers that the adoption of appropriate fiscal and credit policies for the purpose of restraining inflationary forces and assuring internal financial stability is a matter of urgency as a precondition to exchange stabilization.

"Accordingly, the Fund will expect to complete its review of the situation in consultation with Peru at an early date, and in any event, not later than six months."

Soviet Withholds Passports for Citizens To Visit Outer World, See Its Superiority

(Twelfth in a Series)

By Joseph Newman

Paris, Nov. 15 (NYHT).—While the visa is withheld to keep the foreigner from entering the Soviet Union, the passport is withheld to prevent the Soviet citizen from leaving it. Just as the foreigner is not allowed to examine the superior Soviet state, so the Russian is not allowed to go abroad to observe the suffering in the rest of the world.

The borders were sealed still tighter after the return of the victorious troops from Europe with stories about better houses, street clothes and food which they had seen in the conquered countries. Soviet propaganda became more shrill in hammering the theme of Soviet superiority and Western decadence.

There is a story that the population of Russia would disappear overnight if the frontiers were opened and the people were free to see the West. The story may be grossly exaggerated, but the Soviet leaders are unwilling to run the risk of testing it.

Since early 1947, when Soviet citizens were forbidden to marry foreigners by a decree which would have shocked Karl Marx and other sincere advocates of international union of the proletariat, exit passports have been limited largely to those going abroad in the service of the state.

This worked a hardship on Soviet women who had been married to foreigners before the decree was issued. Previously they had sometimes been allowed to leave with their husbands. The Soviet government now prefers to force the dissolution of mixed marriages contracted under its laws.

By threatening arrest and exile to labor camps, it has succeeded in forcing most Soviet women to divorce their American and British husbands. There remain only about five women who are accompanied by their American husbands in Moscow (and thereby spared the treatment accorded others) and five unaccompanied wives of British citizens who have defied threats of arrest.

As if to prove they meant what they said, Soviet police arrested two wives of Britons. Mrs. Natasha Whitehead was seized July 7, 1948, and was condemned without public trial. Mrs. Shura Greenhall was arrested May 7, 1948, was sentenced to two years forced labor on the pretext that she had been living in a British Embassy compound without proper registration for residence in Moscow. She is now in Siberia.

Instead of an exit passport, the Soviet citizen receives an internal passport which makes it possible for the government to control and limit all his movements within the country. After reaching 16 years of age, the Soviet citizen residing in cities and other populated areas is required by law to register for an internal passport.

When traveling, looking for a new job or a new place to live, he must be registered out by the police of the area he is leaving and registered in by the police of the new locality within 24 hours after his arrival.

If his passport fails to show that he was officially registered out of his former place of residence and officially released from his former place of work, he is subject to arrest in the new locality.

Peasants originally were not included in the passport system, being allowed to visit the city of their region for not more than five days without registration, but recently it was introduced for peasants in the newly acquired Baltic states.

Vladimir Ilyich Lenin, father of the Bolshevik revolution, once addressed the peasant with words which apply both to the Soviet peasant and worker today:

"What does this mean, this freedom to move from place to place? It means that the peasant must be free to go where he pleases, to move wherever he wants to, to choose for himself the village or the town he prefers, without having to ask permission. It means that passports must be abolished in Russia, too—they were abolished in foreign countries long ago—that no police office must be allowed to stop any peasant from settling down or working wherever he pleases.

"The Russian peasant is still the serf of officials to such an extent that he is not free to move to a town or free to settle in a new district. The Minister issues orders that the governors should not allow unauthorized settlement. The governor knows better than the peasant what is good for the peasant. The peasant is a child who dares not move without authority. Is this not serfdom, I ask you?"

She's the Envy Of Frauleins

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

SIGRID VON HAESSLER, of Oldenburg, has received some 3000 proposals of marriage since her photograph appeared in True magazine. In a country where war depleted the ranks of eligible men, she is the envy of other German girls who are impatient over her delay in making up her mind. They want her to select one and turn the other offers over to them. Sigrid, a former doctor's assistant, actress and dancer, was born in Czechoslovakia. She was once married to a German officer

'Kavaliers' Expel Founder for Too Much Talk

Suffolk, Va., Nov. 15. (AP).—"Talking too much" and inviting elements of the Ku Klux Klan to switch allegiance to his organization has resulted in the reported ousting of John R. Hampton from "Knights of the Kavaliers," and order he founded.

Hampton was expelled "by the membership" as the result of an article which appeared October 1 in the Baltimore Afro-American under the byline of Stetson Kennedy, according to J. P. Lewis, a local member of the K. of K.'s board of trustees.

In the article, Hampton was said to have written letters to various groups of the Ku Klux Klan which predicted disintegration of the Klan and invited KKK members to join the Kavaliers.

puters developed since the war, which can calculate and solve problems far beyond the mentality of human beings.

"It's not such a crystal ball process as you may think," said the Defense spokesman. "We deal only with facts. The only way to get comparable results from an actual duel would be to use live ammunition."

While no such actual duels—without bullets—are contemplated now, the officials said, it is possible they may be ordered later to confirm results of the tests.

The characteristics of the Boeing B-52 long-range jet bomber—expected to replace the B-36 in several years—will be matched against the fighters, radar and interception weapons due for completion then in other electronics computer tests.

In evaluating strategic bombing, said the spokesman, the WSEG also considers: (1) bases available, at home and overseas; (2) ability to get the B-36 or other bomber into the area; (3) accuracy of the bombing from high altitudes; and (4) expected results of the bombing.

A final report on this first major problem assigned the new joint evaluation board is promised by April 1, so that important decisions as to allocation of funds under the defense budget can be made for next year.

The Defense official also disclosed that the WSEG is starting work on an evaluation of the carrier task force. He said the project was not a study of the so-called super carrier on which work was canceled last spring but flat-tops "in general."

"We'll start with existing carriers," he said, "and submit a report on that. This should lead to what we should have and we might get into the big carrier in this connection."

Other projects assigned the group include: airborne operations, air defense, and anti-submarine warfare. In lifting some of the secrecy with which the WSEG has been surrounded, it was announced that it now consists of 20 scientists and about 16 hand-picked officers from the Army, Navy and Air Force.

A senior scientist heads up each project. Other scientists and officers are assigned to him, but also may work on other projects. A great amount of the detailed work is farmed out to Army, Navy and Air Force research and test agencies.

Field tests are scheduled in connection with war games and other training exercises. Lieut. Gen. John E. Hull heads the WSEG, with Dr. Philip M. Morse as deputy chief and director of research. The staff includes a physicist—Dr. George I. Welch—who is a qualified bombardier; a carrier skipper, Capt. A. S. Vosseller; a B-36 pilot, Lieut. Col. Harry E. Godsworthy; an Air Force fighter pilot, Col. Michael J. Ingelido; a Navy ordnance expert, Capt. Horatio Rivero, and a crack "foot soldier," Col. Charles F. Craig.

The top Army man is Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin, airborne expert. Rear Admiral W. S. Parsons, versed in atomic warfare, is the senior Navy man, and Maj. Gen. E. W. Barnes, a veteran fighter pilot, is ranking Air Force officer.

Among the civilian scientists are: Dr. William J. Horvath, and Dr. Ernst H. Plesset formerly with the Navy; Dr. Foster L. Brooks, formerly with the Research and Development Board; Dr. Edward L. Allen, an American University graduate; Dr. J. Emory Cook and Dr. Howard H. Smith, previously with the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory, Silver Spring, Md., and Dr. A. W. Sloan and George Grimminger, who also have done scientific work here.

Education Plan

Byrd Asks Single Unit For Negroes

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP).—Dr. H. C. Byrd declared today that all State facilities for Negro education should be placed under control of the University of Maryland.

Dr. Byrd, who is president of the university, said the State could best maintain its biracial education system by adopting that course.

At present, Maryland State College at Princess Anne comes under control of the university. Morgan State College in Baltimore is independent of the university. A few Negroes attend the university's law school.

Dr. Byrd made his remarks today before the Governor's commission on higher Negro education.

He told the commission that "such provisions as have so far been made neither give the Negro what he is entitled to nor prevent him from entering the University of Maryland.

"The only way that the situation can possibly be met is through complete coordination of the State's facilities under one board."

His specific suggestions:

1. That the university continue to operate on its present basis.

2. That work equivalent to that given at College Park be divided between Princess Anne and Morgan State, with both under authority of the university.

3. That the regional plan be utilized in some fields of graduate work and in some professional schools.

4. That provision be made for certain types of graduate courses and professional courses at Morgan and Princess Anne.

5. That the present out-of-State scholarship system be continued for the present, but that its administration be placed jointly under the presidents of Morgan and Princess Anne and the State superintendent of education. That the gradual elimination of the system be planned, especially as it now applies to summer schools.

Beth Israel Bazaar

Funds for a new synagogue will be raised through a bazaar sponsored by the Sisterhood of Congregation Beth Israel, 4008 Minnesota ave. ne., from 2 p. m. to midnight Sunday.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Fears that a Federal court decision would result in great expense to local school boards and poorer educational facilities for Negroes were expressed today by State education officials.

Although reluctant to be quoted directly while court action still was going on and before opinions could be studied, the officials plainly were worried about yesterday's decision of the United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Pulaski County case.

The court ruled in Baltimore that there was racial discrimination in the county's high school facilities. Pulaski County Negroes are offered high school training only at the Christiansburg Industrial Institute, in Montgomery County, under a regional agreement.

The higher court reversed the judgment of the District Court in Roanoke and remanded the case to that court with instructions to grant relief sought by the plaintiffs, Negro school children.

The court found discrimination between the institute and three high schools maintained in the county for white students in the field of travel, curriculum, industrial art shops, science laboratories, gymnasium and summer course offerings.

The section of the opinion that disturbed State officials was the finding of discrimination in the fact that the Negro students had to be transported a greater distance and for a longer time than the white children. The other phases of the discrimination finding conceivably could be satisfactorily removed by relatively simple changes at the institute, but the section on transportation threatens the entire regional school system.

At present, six large regional schools serve Negro high school students of more than one county. It is conceivable that the opinion relating to the Christiansburg Institute could apply equally to the George Washington Carver School at Culpeper, the Bruton Heights School at Williamsburg, the Manassas Regional High School at Manassas, the Douglas High School at Bristol and the Walker Grant High School at Fredericksburg.

But the Appeals Court opinion reads:

"Owing to the longer ride, as compared with white high school students, Negro children must forgo many healthful activities at school and have less time for study, recreation and play. The toll thus imposed on Negro students and their parents is both real and severe."

Corning Maps Defense of Plan For Cardozo

The Board of Education's buildings and grounds committee yesterday again postponed decision on what it will recommend to relieve evererowding at Cardozo High School for Negroes.

Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, committee chairman, said no decision will be made until School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning has a chance to reply to criticism of his plan to transfer 500 girl students to the Park View Elementary School.

The committee yesterday heard Dr. Ellis O. Knox, professor of education at Howard University, speak at the request of Dr. Phillip Johnson, Negro board member, who is seeking the transfer of Central High School for Negro students.

Herbert P. Leeman, the new president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and John H. Connaughton, immediate past president and a representative of the Northwest Recreation Council, spoke in favor of the Corning plan.

Dr. Knox declared that "the colored citizens of Washington and their organizations are united in a protest against the proposal to place Cardozo students in Park View."

Dog Quarantine Is Ordered

of dogs in Montgomery County is to be instituted through cooperation of State and county authorities. Details of this program, council members said, will be announced later.

At the same time, the council issued careful instructions to the county police force to carry out provisions of its edict.

In Montgomery County, Dr. Brueckner was accompanied in his visit to the council by Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer. In Prince Georges, he was accompanied by Dr. Clarence J. Gibbs, county veterinarian, and Montgomery Morrow, county sanitary engineer.

Public support for the quarantine instituted yesterday grew rapidly when a single rabid dog bit six children, all in the residential Four Corners area. The children received the Pasteur treatment after the bites, and the dog was taken to the University of Maryland by police, where tests proved it to be rabid. It was later destroyed.

A rabid dog was found late in October, in the Takoma Park section of Prince Georges County.

Dr. T. F. McGough, health officer, invoked the city ordinance which provides all dogs must be licensed, vaccinated annually against rabies, and strays impounded and destroyed after three days if not claimed.

He termed the action "entirely a preventative measure." He added: "We have read with dismay about Montgomery County's headache with rabies. We feel we'd rather not have even one case."

Dr. McGough, as health officer, is authorized to invoke the ordinance whenever it is deemed advisable for the public health and safety. It also provides all dogs must be muzzled unless accompanied by their owner and under leash.

The health officer said the city's last case of rabies occurred almost two years ago.

AMAZING NEW DISCOVERY FOR RHEUMATISM, ARTHRITIS

NO FASTER ARTHRITIC PAIN RELIEF KNOWN... SAFE

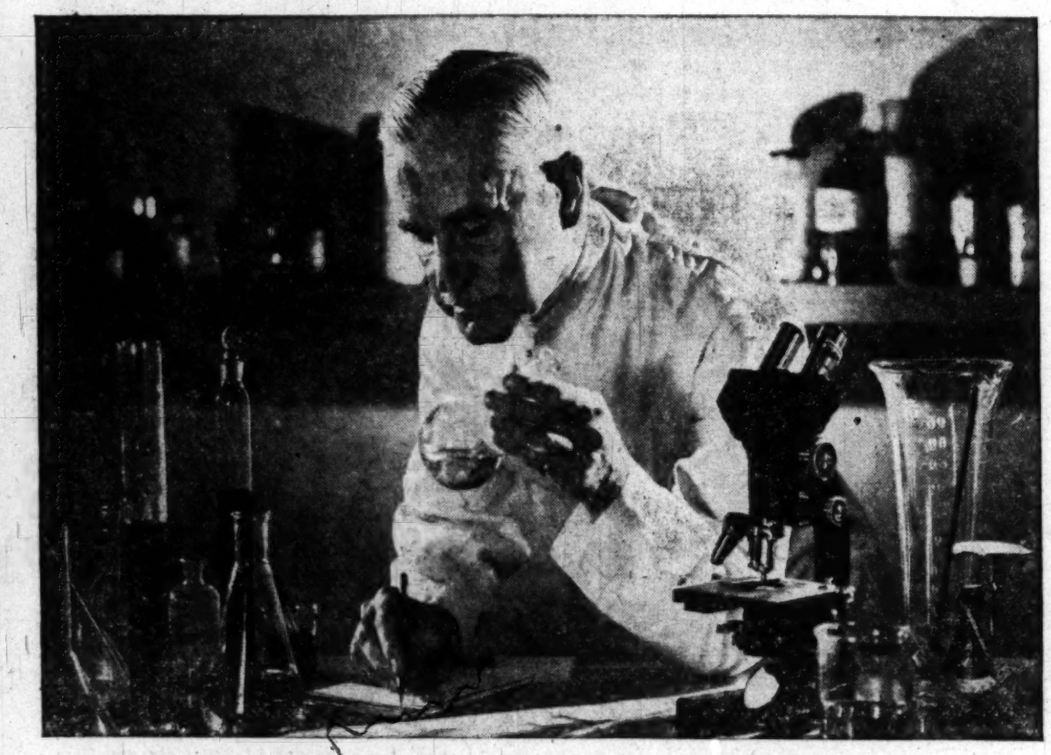
NEW, SAFE, SCIENTIFIC TABLET

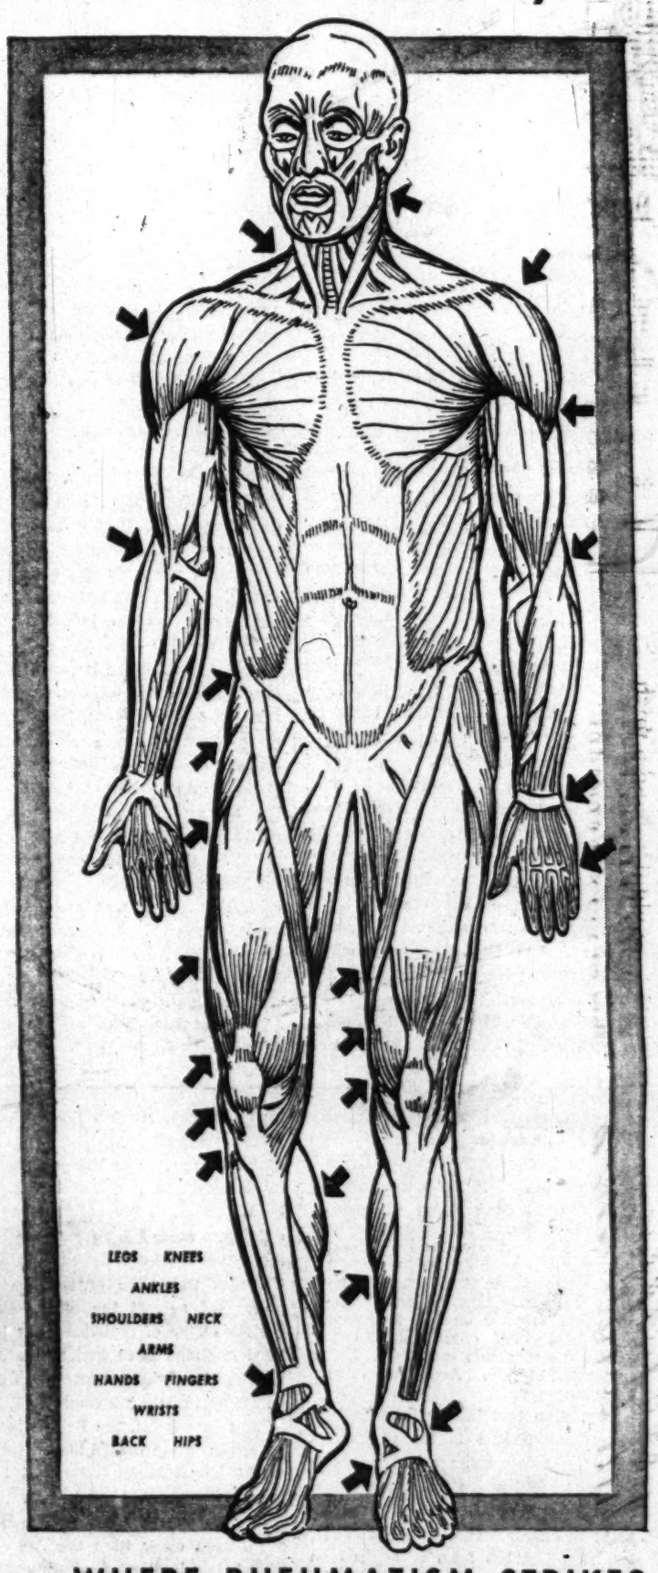
Not a Narcotic . . . Not Habit Forming . . .

AT LAST THE STORY CAN BE TOLD! Medical science developed the amazing wonder-working drugs Sulfa and Penicillin . . . then turned attention to relieving the agonizing pains caused by rheumatism and arthritis. The result of extensive research is a wonder working ingredient which is now combined with other pharmaceuticals into a remarkable preparation called IMDRIN. Longtime sufferers from rheumatism, arthritis, neuritis, and gout may find IMDRIN gives glorious relief so sensationally fast it's really amazing! There's nothing faster available to the public today. Contains no dope or harmful drugs. Only after years of clinical work and testing was this fast, safe pain-killer developed, but today it is REALITY. If you suffer rheumatic pain ask for IMDRIN at drug stores.



DEVELOPED AFTER YEARS OF EXTENSIVE CLINICAL TESTS

IMDRIN has been a closely guarded experimental secret before release for public use. Yes, medical men, after years of extensive clinical tests, have proved conclusively that IMDRIN works internally toward amazing reduction of pain, heat, redness and swelling in the joints. Patients undergoing IMDRIN therapy in these clinics often were able to start comfortable living completely after other remedies had failed. Every victim of rheumatism, arthritis, neuritis, sciatica, gout, neuralgia, etc., should investigate this new development of modern medicine. Ask for IMDRIN at drug stores. Truly IMDRIN is today's big proprietary success.



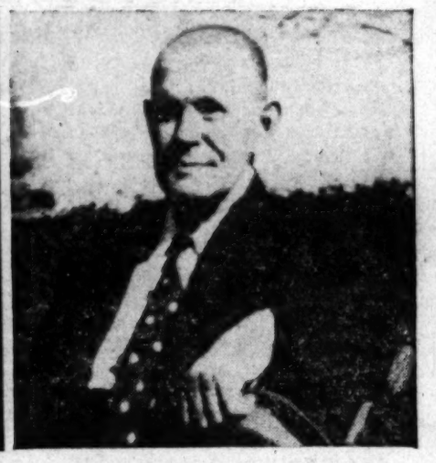
Relieves Pain and Suffering After Years of Torture!

"I call IMDRIN a boon and you can understand why when I tell you that the pain which had tortured and crippled me, and for which there seemed no relief, was gone after I had taken IMDRIN. Now, for the first time in years, I can move about without pain. Surely the thousands of unfortunates like me who are seeking relief from the pains of arthritis should be happy to learn about the blessed, fast-acting ingredient which IMDRIN contains. It surely goes to work fast and gets results."

Gratefully yours,
A. C.
Chicago, Illinois

"I had arthritis and rheumatism so bad I could hardly get around. Well, I had about given up hope when I saw your ad in the paper and bought a bottle of IMDRIN. I really think it's splendid. I feel better with every dose I take. It seems like a dream to be free of so much pain."
MRS. A. R. W.
Amarillo, Texas

"I am not getting paid for these words, but I want everyone to know what I know about IMDRIN. I had rheumatism and arthritis pains in my left shoulder and arm so bad I could hardly use it. Everytime I moved my arm it hurt just like sticking a knife into it. I was like a one-armed person. Then I tried IMDRIN. Now since I have IMDRIN, I suffer no more pain! No one can realize the fast relief it gives a person that suffered like I did. IMDRIN is worth hundreds of dollars to me."
A. C. S.
Wheaton, Illinois



"About 25 years ago, arthritis forced me to quit my office as Mayor and walk with crutches. Finally, I tried IMDRIN. Today, nearly all soreness is gone, and my agony is over."
O. H. H.
Bayard, New Mexico

WHERE RHEUMATISM STRIKES ... AND HOW TO DETECT IT!

Rheumatic and arthritic pain and inflammation can strike the joints in any of the indicated affected areas. (See arrows in chart above.) But these diseases have many forms and each form has varying symptoms. Rheumatoid arthritis is an infection of the joints which fill with fluid; the skin around them may be red, the joints themselves swollen and painful. Still another form is specific infectious arthritis.

All these various forms of arthritis and rheumatism are accompanied by pain, very often swelling and loss of function of the joints. Clinical test patients undergoing IMDRIN therapy, some of whom had suffered hopelessly for years, were able to begin happy, comfortable living once the pain subsided and their confidence grew. In cases where the joints were swollen, IMDRIN, working internally, reduced swelling and eased pain rapidly. These patients, many of whom had given up hope, were able to begin comfortable living. It is true that response to IMDRIN varied occasionally and your own experience may or may not coincide with that of patients tested. But IMDRIN today is your greatest hope. IMDRIN, with the new wonder-working ingredient, may give you the same blessed successful results. Get IMDRIN today!

TODAY—START CONFIDENT PAIN-FREE LIVING WITH AMAZING NEW IMDRIN

Memo To Mr. Truman

The National Security Resources Board has been without a chairman since last December.

Facts Vs. Confusion

There is no answer to bluster, deception, and inflammatory propaganda so effective as the calm and forceful statement of the facts. That is the technique which Mr. Austin adopted before the United Nations Political and Security Committee on Monday in answer to Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky. When the American representative had finished, the Vishinsky resolution calling for a Big Five peace pact was reduced to its proper proportions as a shamefully two-faced propaganda maneuver.

The absurdity of seeking a new pledge against aggression when all the powers in question are members of the United Nations Security Council, whose primary purpose is prevention of aggression, scarely needs emphasis. The Security Council, to be sure, is dormant, but that is due to the Soviet veto. In a new arrangement, would the Soviet abandon its obstruction in favor of conciliation and understanding? There is nothing whatever in the record to encourage any such assumption. On the contrary, Mr. Austin cited the "melancholy pattern" of Soviet broken promises all the way from the prevention of free elections in Poland, Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania to the partition of Korea, the guerilla war against Greece and the subversion of Czechoslovakia to the recent establishment of a Red army marshal in Poland's Ministry of Defense. Plain language has seldom been employed to better effect than in the following paragraph of Mr. Austin's reply:

> If the Soviet Government wishes to undertake measures for strengthening peace, the means are at its instant command. Stop your campaign of hate against the non-Cominform world. Forsake your doctrine that the non-Cominform world is your enemy. Let your people meet with ours and discuss together our common problems. Lift your iron curtain. And you will strengthen peace.

The resolution that has been offered on behalf of the United States and Great Britain reflects this same spirit. There is no threat to world peace today except the persistent efforts of the Soviet Union to impose its dictatorial will upon other peoples. This fact has been recognized on many occasions by the United Nations. Mr. Vishinsky persists in pounding the table for peace and blocking every practical move in that direction because confusion is a basic Communist technique. When such duplicity is effectively exposed before the world by well chosen and cogently stated facts, as was the case on Monday, there is cause for free peoples to take new hope.

Hub Of Europe

Exactly what was accomplished during the fleeting visit that Secretary Acheson paid to Germany—as an offshoot of his conference with Messrs. Bevin and Schuman—has not yet been disclosed. But there are several indications that the visit was very much worth while. Secretary Acheson made it clear to all Europe that Mr. McCloy speaks with the full authority of the State Department. This puts the official seal on Mr. McCloy's utterances about which some questions had been raised in London. As if to underline what Mr. McCloy has been saying, Secretary Acheson specifically backed the development of a broadened Ruhr Authority—the only possible justification for the abandonment of dismantling.

It is said that a detailed plan for such an authority was presented to Secretary Acheson. It covers the heavy industry not only of Western Germany but also of Western Europe, with powers over output as well as over allocation. The report is that it was prepared by Chancellor Adenauer himself in response to Mr. McCloy's invitation to submit an alternative proposal to dismantlement. If this report is correct, we may be on the verge of coming to grips with the real problem at issue in Europe. This is the means of creating a European community which will include Western Germany. The means that this newspaper has hitherto advocated is precisely the idea that is in Mr. McCloy's mind. It has the virtue of functionality. It would establish a vested interest, much as Alexander Hamilton established an interest in a central government in Washington when he assumed the State debts.

This functional approach is better, in our view, than the Hoffman approach to a unity produced along the route of tariff and currency and investment integration. In Europe the disparities in all three respects are formidable. Look, for example, at Holland and Belgium. Both countries since the war ended have been struggling to create Benelux, but, in spite of good will on both sides, the name still stands for a hope rather than a fact. The trouble is that no vested interest can be discovered which would furnish the magnet. It is for this reason that the Ruhr Authority furnishes the most promising approach to the integration of Europe. Many problems will be entailed in working out a proposal, not least of which will be the American attitude toward cartels, but they are not insurmountable. The hub of Europe is the place to find and lay down the beginnings of the unity of Europe.

Communist China

The British, judging from a succession of dispatches, are itching to recognize Communist China. Why the hurry can only be surmised. It can hardly be the trade with China that is making the British precipitate, for markets are not lacking at present to the British manufacturer. Unlike most other manufacturers, the British manufacturer is working at full tilt for a protected, or a sellers', market. This market is in those countries whose currencies are tied to the British pound. Anyway, China has little to give by way of exchange and that little is mainly a line of luxury items which have little effective demand in modern Britain. The big argument favoring recognition is the business that expatriate Britons do in rather than with China, as bankers, brokers, carriers, manufacturers. How much of this kind of business will survive in the new dispensation is debatable. Yet, in the history of British relations with China, the British merchant princes who do business there have governed British policy. And this time their influence in behalf of recognition of China may be ranged alongside the influence of the Asiatic members of the Commonwealth unwilling to see an Asiatic country of the dimensions of China in ostracism.

This country does not share the sense of urgency exhibited by the British. Secretary Acheson has set down a set of rules governing recognition: territorial control, respect for international obligations, and consent of the governed. He likewise has given a pledge—an extraordinary one in the history of recognition—that the Administration will take Congress into consultation. One of the rules is still far from fulfillment, viz, respect for international obligations. A flagrant violation of diplomatic, even civilized, usage is the incarceration of the American Consul General in Mukden, Mr. Angus Ward, and his staff. Any recognition till the Chinese release the American officials is plainly out of the question.

It has hitherto been the British view that in dealing with China the powers should act in concert. The Ward arrest gives point to this principle in diplomacy toward Communist China. It is as valid in China as in Germany, where the British, disturbed by Mr. McCloy's independent expression of opinion, a while ago were saying that unless a common approach were reestablished, the Germans would be enabled to play one power off against the other. The fact is that this type of diplomacy has been practiced in China since ancient times, and the victims of an independent recognition policy on the part of Britain would be the Western powers in general, the British included. In its effect on the United States, such a move would be decidedly unhelpful in getting the release of Mr. Ward.

At the same time neither the British nor any nation other than the Americans can afford the luxury of pinning recognition on moral or ideological considerations. The President, who is said to have taken over the China diplomacy, is represented as feeling that there is a precedent to rely upon in the 15-year wait for American recognition of Soviet Russia. The citation is a lesson, not a precedent. Like the military intervention in Russia after the first World War, nonrecognition was altogether harmful, for both armed hostility and nonrecognition served to rivet the Bolshevik hold on the Russian people. Nobody knows this better than the men in the Kremlin. That is the reason for the theory emanating from American newspaper correspondents in China that the Russians, fearing Western intrusion and possible influence, instigated the Chinese Communists in their action against Mr. Ward. They knew that this would prevent American recognition. However, when the incident has been cleared up, there should be no standing on ceremony, but a return to the common-sense attitude expressed by Secretary Buchanan that once a government shows itself able to maintain itself, "recognition on our part is inevitable."

Smashing Doors

By now, let us hope, Washington's Metropolitan Police Department has begun to grasp the meaning of the fourth amendment to the Constitution safeguarding "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures." The police have been given a long and expensive course of instruction on this subject by the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court which have been obliged to upset a number of convictions of persons who were undoubtedly guilty as charged, simply because the evidence against them was obtained illegally.

The latest lesson in this connection was administered by the Court of Appeals last week. It involved a man named Lawrence Accarino whom the police had been trailing for a week. They had ample reason to believe that Accarino was "picking up numbers." On October 26, 1948, having followed him, as on several previous occasions, to an apartment house, two plain-clothes men entered the building behind him, called, "Wait a minute, police," as he reached the top of the stairs; and then when the man entered his own apartment and refused to open the door at their command, broke the door down, entered and arrested him, seizing papers they found in the room.

The seized papers were a part of the evidence on which Accarino was convicted in District Court. Judge Prettyman for the Court of Appeals concluded that "the breaking of the door was unlawful, the presence of the officers in the apartment was unlawful, and so the arrest was unlawful. It follows that the search was unlawful and the evidence thus procured should have been suppressed." His opinion, which delves with great erudition and illumination into the development from the fifteenth century forward of the common law on breaking into houses for purposes of arrest, is based on the long-established principle that "unless the necessities of the moment require that the officer break down a door, he cannot do so without a warrant." In this case, the police had ample opportunity to get a warrant and had no need whatever to resort to violence.

"A court is reluctant," said Judge Prettyman, "to suppress evidence which, if obtained in lawful fashion, would have been of compelling importance to a prosecution for felony. But there is no other course by which the court can insist upon compliance by police officers with the requirements of law in respect to arrests and searches." Insistence upon such compliance is of the essence of a system of ordered liberty. As the Supreme Court observed recently in an analogous case, "Power is a heady thing; and history shows that the police acting on their own cannot be trusted." If the zeal of the Metropolitan Police Department is tempered henceforth by respect for a citizen's right of privacy in his home, the community will be the more secure on that account.

High-Priced Travel

Whether the Eastern railroads actually will better their financial position with their new 12½ percent passenger fare increase is highly problematical indeed. There can be no doubt that increased wage and maintenance bills have aggravated the railroads' dilemma, and that passenger service traditionally runs in the red. The question is whether increased income derived from the hike in passenger fares may not be obtained at the expense of driving away more traffic.

Railroad managements have estimated that the diversion of traffic resulting from higher fares will be less than 5 percent. That may be so, but the new increase runs the risk of fanning accumulated resentment. The new coach fare of 3.375 cents a mile is a long way above bus fares and, indeed, higher than some air coach fares. The first-class rate of 4.5 cents plus Pullman space is perilously close to regular airline fares. It is more than possible, too, that some persons, salesmen especially, will now choose to travel by private automobile.

Statistically there also is considerable reason to question the wisdom of the increase, as the 6-4 decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission tends to indicate. New fares will be approximately 44 percent above those of June, 1946. During that period there has been a steady decline in traffic; and whereas the railroads experienced a slight rise in revenues in 1948 because of an earlier fare increase, there has been a net decline in 1949. Average occupancy per railroad coach (over the full length of the trip) has fallen from a peak of 50 percent in 1944 to about 30 percent today, and there is every indication that it is still going down. This fact adds emphasis to the point made by ICC Chairman Charles D. Mahaffie in his dissent: "Vacant seats rather than inadequate fares are the prime cause of passenger deficits."

That may be something of an oversimplification. The Eastern railroads have a particular problem not common to the Western lines which have held to a 10 percent fare increase over 1946. Much of the Eastern traffic is short-haul and per se expensive to handle. The trouble is that in raising fares to meet the added costs of short-haul and commuter travel, the railroads may impair the long-haul business, which is the best potential source of passenger revenue. A number of railroads have proved that it is possible to generate new traffic and make a profit on particular runs by adding new equipment and speeding up schedules.

The real question is whether the passenger problem is being approached from the right angle. If the basic factor in passenger deficits is the high cost of operating branch line and commuter trains which the ICC insists must be maintained, then that is the problem to meet—with the help of the ICC and State commerce commissions. Perhaps experience with the new fares will be such as to lead to a demand for a two-fare structure, with one rate designed to promote long-distance rail travel and another higher rate to take care of the greater expense of short-haul and branch-line runs.

MAL DE TETE

Behind the shuttered eyes
In the deep well of pain,
Mind-flowers arise
And sink again;
Lilies of thought that swim
In troubled light,
Disgarlanded and dim,
And drift from sight.

If any outer word
Be suddenly spoken,
The still pool stirred,
The surface broken,
From clouded springs
Quick bloom recedes;
Miasmal things
Thread the black weeds.

Thomas In Sweden

Senator Thomas' slap at the Swedes smacks strongly of childish pique and raises a disturbing question.

After what is described as "the wonderful receptions we were given in Brussels, Oslo, Copenhaven, Frankfurt and Bern," the Swedes apparently forgot to put out the special VIP red carpet for the junketeering Congressmen. For this—off with their heads! The Senator wants to stop any more dollars going to Sweden and gratuitously adds some very insulting remarks that are as ridiculous as they are inexcusable.

All this raises a disturbing question about our junketeering Congressmen. It is heady wine to be an American official or legislator abroad today, with all the world paying deferential court. It is regrettable, but hardly surprising, that the less sophisticated should have their heads turned, and adopt haughty and arbitrary airs more fit for Oriental potentates than Americans.

Marquis Childs' recent dispatch about congressional junketeers chasing "blondes" instead of tending to their knitting, and being grotesquely insulting to foreign dignitaries is one disquieting case in point. Another is Senator Thomas' ill-chosen remarks. It will be a sad day when foreign appropriations are made on a basis of which country favored or did not fawn sufficiently on our footloose junketeers.

While the farsighted acts of the American Government since the war have done much to win real friendship for our country, the pompous self-righteousness and bad manners of some individuals can go a long way toward destroying accumulated good will. When these individuals are Congressmen, the reaction is particularly unfortunate. After all, the Europeans don't know that such Congressmen don't speak for the entire United States Government, or that even on their own home grounds they are not necessarily thought to hold the keys to infinite wisdom.

VA Runaround

My brother, a veteran, died a year ago and left a $10,000 insurance policy. In New York, the Veterans' Administration referred us to Cleveland. Cleveland contacted Washington and confirmed the policy but reported there was no record the premiums had been paid since 1946. We found and submitted the canceled checks. Then Cleveland told us to deal directly with Washington. The Washington office sent us the forms to fill out. The executor of the estate submitted them along with the letters of administration. Nothing happened.

Another query to VA produced a request for the will. I went personally to the VA and was informed that the estate was not a valid beneficiary. The six persons named in the will would have to submit individual claims. The policy probably would be paid off to them over a period of 36 months. It was silly, we argued, for the VA to process six claims and pay out 216 checks over a period of three years when the case could be settled with one check. We could appeal to the Veterans' Appeal Board, VA said.

In order to write my own legal brief for the appeal, I went to the VA to find out the legal basis for its decision against us. Both public liaison offices said I didn't need to know, assured me the hearing would be very informal.

Still seeking VA's reason for its decision, I marched into the office of the chief of the whole life insurance claims division. The first intelligent person I had met at VA, he answered my questions in three minutes.

The hearing turned out to be as formal as you can get in Washington. Happily, I had an attorney along to make the requested oral statement. A month later we were notified that we had won the case.

We had asked for lump-sum payment to the estate, but the appeal board did not rule on the lump sum. I called VA again. A public liaison officer explained that they normally wait 60 days for filing of an appeal to the courts.

Maybe a VA executive will read this letter and put a check in the mail. And maybe after 60 days we will be informed we can go back to the appeal board.

I can find nothing wrong with the organization of VA or with the law. I suspect the trouble is with our civil service system. Instead of rewarding initiative it penalizes the man who sticks his neck out.

Jews In Iraq

In his November 10 letter, Moshe Keren, counselor of the Israeli Embassy, urges the need of an investigation of the position of the Jews in Iraq. Isn't that putting the cart before the horse? Let us, rather, go into the position of the Arabs in Israel.

As Mr. Keren shows, the Jews in Iraq were very prosperous. Perhaps the cause of their loss of popularity is more important than its extent. I think we can trust the reports of our State Department that the rumors of ill treatment of Jews in Iraq are not founded in fact, but as long as the Arabs still in Israel are kept in concentration camps behind barbed wire, and until the million Arab refugees are allowed to return to their farms, the fears of the Zionists (of grotesque retaliation upon the Jews in Arab countries) are so natural that they may be said to be well-founded; i.e., on the true facts and on their own guilty consciences.

Does Mr. Keren really believe that the position of the Iraqi Jews is worse than that of the Palestinian Arab?

Children's Books In Review

November 14-19 is National Book Week, when many libraries and stores will have on show a wide selection of current children's books. The Newbery Prize, awarded each year to the best judged juvenile book, perpetuates the memory of John Newbery, the first publisher to realize and exploit the commercial possibilities of juvenile literature.

In his time, 200 years ago, few books were available for children, even for school use, and none for amusement. In fact, amusement was regarded as being synonymous with sin, and every effort was made to confine the young citizen's interest to the pious path of strict morality.

One early example that went through many editions long before Newbery's time was Comenius's Visible World: or a Nomenclature and Pictures of all chief things that are in the world, and of Man's Employments therein. Written originally in the seventeenth century, this beguiling work was later translated by Hoole into English, with the two languages together as text. Containing over 150 copperplate engravings, illustrating the various objects of inquiry, and a comprehensive numerical key linking each object with the text, it is small wonder that such a book was extensively used by teacher and scholar and with a modicum of enjoyment.

Master: "Come, boy, learn to be wise." Pupil: "What doth this mean, to be wise?" Master: "To understand rightly."

Thus the pupil was led forth through all the visible world; and by the graphical appeal to his senses and the direct exposition of the meaning and fitness of things he without doubt came to the end a wise and saintly youth!

Another good example, first published in 1707 was A Guide for the Child and Youth; sternly religious in content and character. This rare little work measures less than 4 inches by 3 inches, contains two sets of pictorial alphabets intermingled with "plain and pleasant directions to read English, with Prayers, Graces," etc; and a mild sprinkling of "several other varities, both pleasant and profitable" such as how to write, cast accounts, and read more perfectly.

In this little guide we see quite plainly the fundamentals of education as envisaged in those distant days, the continual injunction toward filial duty and divine learning, and the stern dark face of pedagogic piety in the form of schoolmaster and parent. We must not despise the ingenuity of those early writers, nor their zeal for the spiritual welfare of new generations, yet we are left in wonderment to think that tender minds could long survive such potent philosophies.

From the time of Newbery onward, many examples of popular household diversions such as fables, moral tales and mythology began to emerge as fit and proper subjects in their own rights for juvenile consumption. It was felt no longer necessary to attach a weighty moral to every tale, while illustrations became more common. Very often the plates were crude, frequently they were adapted from other adult works, and on many occasions were entirely irrelevant. But despite these defects and discrepancies, however, such pictures served to enliven the young imagination, and set a firm foundation for the vast array of graphic creatures that crowd the juvenile world today.

The books became real companions of the growing mind, colors and shapes and forms became necessities, adding richness and reality to the less tangible implications of the text. Thence, with religious societies widening their spheres of influence, with the expansion of cheap printing and finally the growth of universal education, it became a fact that children owned a special form of minor literature all to themselves.

If we dare to take a peep, as eager fingers flip the precious pages, we shall glimpse those old pioneers Crusoe or Aladdin, Gulliver or Alice, running helter-skelter in search of their timeless Treasure Islands. And with them many friends, some old and some new, ever welcome companions in the very real world of Wonderland that adults have explored in memory of their own childhood days.

Ragged Edge Wage Earners

By Malvina Lindsay

One Third's Future

AT LAST we have an answer to the Senator's question, "Who are these people and how do they get that way?" The question was asked at a Senate housing hearing last March. The "people" referred to were those with incomes below $2000—especially those in the $500 to $1200 brackets.

The Senator wanted to get to the root of the matter. He wanted rehabilitation rather than handouts. Could these ragged-edged people be made more productive? What was holding them back?

Now the Joint Committee on the Economic Report tells us who they are. It suggests some measures to help them. It puts in the lap of the Nation a decision on which may well depend the future workings of the American system.

Briefly, the 10 million families in this group include the poorly educated, the unskilled, the elderly, the disabled, the non-earners (including the sick and mentally incompetent), and the widowed. Public assistance is obviously the only answer for some of these families. But what is the chance for helping the others—or at least their children—to earn more? What is the chance for keeping them off the backs of the rest of the populace, for helping them produce more, and buy more, thus help avert another depression?

AS USUAL everyone shouts "Education!" But at this point some solid-girthed citizen is likely to warn that we may be left without anyone to do the dirty work, and that anyway a lot of people haven't the capacity for anything but low-paid jobs. And some passionate young man is likely to retort that all these people need is a decent wage from their present exploiters.

Yet the fact remains that these low-paid families are mostly headed by persons with little education. This does not mean they would have succeeded financially had they been trained for white-collar jobs. But certainly more training of some kind is needed if they are to be productive in a country becoming increasingly mechanized—including farm areas. Even the dirty work of life is being more and more taken over by machines or being done in an organized, scientific way. Domestic service is one example.

The "dumb bunny" meets less and less chance in an industrial civilization. And if the low-wage earner is being exploited, all the more reason for doing something about this "Nation of eighth-graders."

The large number of low-income families headed by persons past 65—one fourth of all nonfarm families—was surprising. Many of these elderly wage-earners want to continue work, either on full or part time basis, says the report. Here again rises the challenge to the economy of providing more work for the elderly—especially in the form of part-time jobs.

More vocational training for the unskilled and disabled is suggested, also more aid for dependent children in the one and a half million low-income families headed by widows.

BUT HOW step up all this? How cut down on this low-paid one-third by another decade, or sooner? For this country's hopes of stability and peace, of giving the lie to the Soviet assumption that the American system is bound to crack, rest in faith of an expanding economy. A rise of 28 percent in living levels by 1958 is an economic goal recently proposed by the President's Council of Economic Advisers. How can the low-paid one third help achieve this, help share in it?

If the low-paid workers are to be made more productive, their health and housing as well as their education will have to be improved. Lack of proper nutrition lies back of much of their inefficiency. Ignorance as well as thin pocketbooks contribute to this. A Nation-wide campaign of instruction in this field is needed. Indeed such has been proposed by the National Planning Commission's Agricultural Committee as a means of increasing consumption of farm products and preventing a farm depression.

More school lunches for children and possibly a food-stamp plan to get rotting surpluses to families in need of them would help make better workers. So would the building of better health in low-income families. For the ragged-edge wage earner of necessity often perpetuates through his children what the privileged may call laziness and shiftlessness. Poor nutrition, constitutional deficiences, bad health habits, lack of education and of training in work aptitudes, all contribute to this inheritance.

If people are to be kept from "getting that way," Congress at its next session will need to move fast on some preventive measures.

Correction

The word "never," unintentionally omitted from the November 13 letter of Marion G. Kopsidas on "Greece's Aims," changed the meaning of one sentence. The sentence should have read: "The Greek rulers never claimed to have won the war single-handed."

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Collapsing Communists

IT IS time to point out that the American Communist Party no longer merits the occasionally hysterical attention it has been getting. For the fact is that the party is well on the way to having approximately the same real political importance as the Greenbackers or the Single Taxers.

Even in its heyday, the CPUSA never had anything approaching a mass following. Yet it has had real political significance. This significance has derived from two vital assets. The first has been the party's very considerable toehold in the labor movement. And the second, in some ways more useful, has been the party's influence with the kind of fuzzy-minded but articulate left-wing intellectual who believed that the Communists were only a particularly eager brand of liberal, and therefore worked with them, as in last year's Wallace campaign.

The Communists are now clearly losing both these precious assets. The ridiculous Wallace campaign itself seriously weakened the Communists' hold on the intellectual left—the departure of the New Republic magazine from the Wallace camp was one obvious symptom of this weakening process. But now the process has been vastly accelerated. For Marshal Tito has given the left-wing intellectuals a new hero, more palatable than Josef Stalin, in their frantic search for the total answer.

THE SAME thing has, of course, been going on abroad. In England, for example, such intellectual left-wingers as Alexander Werth and Konni Zilliacus have dismayed their Communist admirers by embracing Tito; and in France intellectuals like Claude Bourdet and Jean Cassou have deviated for the first time in years.

Moreover, the split has internally rent the French, Italian, and other Communist Parties. French Communist leader Maurice Thorez was disciplined for nationalist deviation for the second time a few weeks ago by the party apparatus. And in Italy, Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti is under a dense cloud of suspicion, and real power in the Italian party has been taken over by Moscow-trained Luigi Longo.

Yet in Italy and France the Communists have had actual intrinsic power in terms of a popular following. In the United States they have not had this advantage, and they have had to rely heavily on the sort of non-Communist "liberal" willing to make a common front with them. Thus it must be with real anguish that the Communists are watching the procession of left-wing intellectuals who last year joined them in supporting Wallace, and who this year are making the pilgrimage to Belgrade, either spiritually or in the flesh.

Wallace himself acknowledged the danger in a recent speech for Vito Marcantonio in New York's Madison Square Garden. Wallace pointed out plaintively that the Tito issue was plitting the American "progressive" movement. He implied that the wisest course was simply to shove the whole issue under the rug, and pretend that it did not exist. But this simple device is not likely to suffice.

For the Communists have no alternative but to call Tito a "Fascist" and a "running dog of the imperialists." And the left-wingers who are not committed to Stalinism find the whole concept of communism independent of the unkindly men in the Kremlin almost unbearably tempting.

AN INCOMPLETE list of the former Wallace supporters who have made the pilgrimage to Belgrade in the flesh includes: Louis Adamic, the author, who interviewed Tito this summer; William Gailmor, the radio commentator, a particularly fervent Wallaceite, who also interviewed Tito and came back to sing his praises; Jo Davidson, the sculptor, who did a head of Tito and subsequently announced his conversion; Kirtley Mather, the scientist, who accompanied another group of Wallaceites to Belgrade; and so on. Besides such pilgrims in the flesh, there are many other Wallaceites who have been privately converted without making the junket to the new shrine.

Add the disastrous defeat the Communists have suffered in the labor movement. Only two years ago, when the Communists were bidding for control of the United Auto Workers, they seemed in a fair way to control more than half the membership of the CIO. Now they will be lucky to hold onto a few small unions like Ben Gold's fur workers. Describing the CIO plans for taking over the membership in the Communist-led unions, one CIO leader predicted grimly, "It's gonna be murder."

In brief, as far as their real political influence in this country is concerned, the Communists are pretty well washed up. Only one thing can restore their influence. That is to make martyrs of them and in so doing to compromise the basic princple of civil liberties. And it is worth noting that, although the ululations of the Communists tend to obscure it, a perfectly honest issue of civil liberties is involved in the matter of jailing the Communist leaders. Thus it is not surprising that some observers who are thoroughly acquainted with Communist techniques are convinced that the defense of the Communist leaders was consciously conducted in such a way that conviction was inevitable.

Big Business Is Defended By duPont Head at Hearing

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Bigness of and by itself in business is not necessarily a danger to American economy, Crawford H. Greenewalt, youthful president of E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., told Congress yesterday.

Greenwalt's testimony was given to the Special Subcommittee on Study of Monopoly Power, headed by Representative Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.).

Eventually, Greenewalt maintained, the consumer desires and attitudes will curb any business which grows so large as to be inefficient, provided that antitrust laws are obeyed.

"A thought-pattern seems now to be developing that holds bigness per se to be in violation of the antitrust laws—perhaps on the theory that bigness cannot be achieved without in some way damaging the public interest.

Customer Alone Decides

"It is my belief that such considerations do not give sufficient weight to one basic economic fact—that it is the customer, and the customer alone, who casts the vote that determines how big any company should be.

"The regulations laid down by the consuming public are far more potent and far less flexible than any code of law, merely through exercise of the natural forces of trade.

"To me it seems a simple axiom that those companies who gain the approval of their customers through supplying satisfying goods and services will grow and prosper. Those who are less favored will grow and prosper to a lesser extent.

"It is the customer, in the last analysis, who is judge, jury, prosecutor and executioner."

Law Enforcement Needed

Greenwalt conceded, however, that the antitrust laws should be enforced. He acknowledged that fines given to companies pleading nolo contendre were sometimes inadequate, and suggested that Congress might want to revise the penalties for infraction of the laws.

When Celler mentioned the 19 antitrust suits pending against duPont, Greenwalt said with a wry smile that for some time in 1942 it looked as if there were a race between the number of antitrust suits which would be filed against duPont and the number of Army and Navy "E's" which would be awarded. The "E's" finally won out, he said.

For many technological developments, Greenwalt said, a concentration of money, skills and management is necessary.

Nylon Dress As an Example

As an example of one such development from concentration which has benefited consumers, he cited an experiment with a nylon dress.

DuPont received $1.92 for enough nylon staple to make a dress retailing for $49.95.

"The difference between the $1.92 which we received and the $49.95 which the customer paid represents the vast amount of work done by the many smaller businesses which lie between us and the final buyer."

As an experiment the dress was warn for 60 days by the secretary of the manufacturer. She washed it every four days and let it dry, a matter of two hours.

"If this dress," said Greenwalt, "had gone to the cleaner that many times the cost would have been not less than $20.

"So we have a consumer benefit amounting to $20 on cleaning bills—or more than 10 times what DuPont received for the material that made it possible. And since the dress shows no signs of wear the benefits have really just begun."

"Arbitrary" Attempts Cited

Another witness ytesterday was Earl Bunting, managing director of the National Association of Manufacturers, who warned against what he termed "arbitrary" Government attempts to limit the size of American big business.

"The theory that bigness and monopoly are necessarily synonymous does not stand up under close inspection," he said. The fact that three or four large units account for the major portion of an industry's sales is not proof that competition is lacking. It is well-known that three concerns account for the major portion of the sales of automobiles, but it is equally well-known that intense competition is characteristic of this industry."

Bunting warned that if Government is given the power to limit size, the decisions of one man or a small group of men would be substituted for the day-to-day decisions of millions of consumers.

"As for monopoly perils existing today," he said, "labor monopolies have developed as control has become centralized in the international unions.

"Labor monopoly is no mere catch-name," he asserted. "It is an all-too-palpable fact. Any national policy which is designed to deal with monopolies cannot possibly overlook so vital and major a factor in the Nation's economy."

Silver Buying Policy Hit By 16-1 Ratio

The Government's silver-buying policy came in for some outspoken criticism yesterday from economists and bankers.

The policy is expressed in an act of Congress that requires the Treasury to pay 90.5 cents an ounce for newly mined United States silver while the going market rate for silver is about 73 cents an ounce.

Critics of the policy outnumbered advocates by more than 16 to 1—the old gold-to-silver ratio—in replies published by a Senate-House committee to a question it circulated in connection with a money policy study.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder told the committee that the Treasury "would interpose no objection if Congress wished to repeal all the provisions relating to acquisitions of silver."

Some critics were more positive. Roy L. Garis of the University of Southern California, commented:

"Repeal all silver legislation since 1932. Our silver legislation is inexcusable. It stinks."

The economists commenting—25 in all—were unanimous in opposition to the silver-buying policy, which President Roosevelt put into effect in the depression.

A majority of the 15 private bankers who commented also lined up against the policy, but California's L. M. Giannini, whose Bank of America operates in the silver-mining West, had a good word for it.

"Present moderate support tends to stabilize foreign currencies backed by silver reserves," he said in part.

Ben DuBois of Sauk Centre, Minn., secretary of the Independent Bankers Association, said on the other hand that "the representatives from silver-producing States probably have looked after their own interests to the disadvantage of the country as a whole."

Thomas B. McCabe, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, analyzed the silver situation briefly and concluded that "no extension of the rule of silver in a monetary system would be desirable."

Political Economy

Broken Patterns

WARNING that the alternative is "a new kind of dark age in the world," ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman has once again asked Marshall Plan countries to lower trade walls and work for the integration of their economies.

Sometimes one has the impression of Hoffman as Sisyphus, rolling his eternal stone up the hill, only to have it roll back on him. There is no freeing of intra-European trade. On the contrary, despite repeated warning and pressure from the United States, the trend is all in the other direction.

So long and so insistently have we worked against these jigsaw barriers that we seldon stop to wonder how they got there. It is not innate perversity on the part of Europe, though sometimes we may think so. There is urgent cause for them. That is why we doubt that Hoffman's mission or Secretary Acheson's will in the long run make any difference.

Trade patterns are slow in building. In our own century, two catastrophic wars have snarled them beyond recognition. By 1945 Europe faced three new situations: East-West trade was disrupted; Germany, for all practical purposes, had been excised from Europe's economy; and Britain, impoverished by liquidation of net overseas investments, could no longer buy what it once did on the continent of Europe.

These caused separate, but related, effects. Unable to buy grains in the East, or machinery from Germany, western Europe became heavily dependent for imports on the United States. This caused great demand for dollars. Yet the United States is not a net importer from Europe, and would only make dollars available through loans and gifts.

More serious in the long run is the change in Britain's position. Where once she imported from the Continent much more than she exported, and made pounds freely convertible for international trade, Britain today exports more than she imports, and pounds are no longer convertible. Englishmen do not take Riviera vacations: they stay at home and conserve their pounds. Instead of buying French champagne and perfumes, they want machinery, petroleum and tobacco from the United States. As its British market declines, France buys less from Belgium, and so on around full circle, country by country, until all Europe feels the pinch.

COMING ON TOP of wartime devastation, these were shocks to the economies of Europe. Overnight a trade pattern has disappeared. Industries with once-great markets have nowhere now to sell. As foreign exchange falls short of needs, each country seeks to meet the problem by importing fewer luxuries and more necessities.

To take an analogy from every day life, let us suppose a rich man loses his investments, and with them, his income. Where once he had been a good customer for luxury cars, mink coats, expensive seaside resorts, he now can barely scrape enough to buy food and pay his rent. It is no solution to say that he must return to his old free-spending ways: he hasn't the money, and no amount of preaching will give it to him.

Already the shifts in trade are being felt. In the 18 months from mid-1947 to the end of 1948, trade among the countries of Europe dropped 25 percent in nonessentials, and rose 50 percent in essential manufactures. Figures alone cannot convey how radical is the adjustment, nor how painful. Countries like France were geared to the production of luxuries. To make what others want means an industrial revolution.

Trade barriers serve a purpose at the present time. All countries must raise their lagging productivity. This in turn means heavy investment in American machines and equipment, for which they must sell their products not to each other but to the United States.

This is the problem, and threats will not solve it. Fundamentally, European countries now have a diminished interest in intra-European trade.

INTRAEUROPEAN trade is not an end in itself. The European Foreign Ministers know this, but have never succeeded in explaining their position. We, in our single-minded purpose, have missed it altogether.

What is the use of an "integration" that adds unneeded silks and wines to surplus cheese and perfume? What is called for is economic revolution: curtailment of some industries, creation of others, and a division of labor of others all Western nations. This would entail a new philosophy of interdependence and not, as in the past, the pursuit of autarchy for military reasons.

Those who believe this is easy are dreaming. Austria-Hungary had economic union under the Hapsburg Empire; yet each time the union was renegotiated there was a political crisis in both capitals. If this was true under a single emperor, with a single foreign office, army, navy and ministry of finance, how much more difficult would it be for the antagonistic sovereignties of western Europe?

Import quotas, exchange control and tariffs are not ills in themselves, but symptoms of ills. So long as trade patterns are disrupted and nations manufacture what others cannot buy, trade quotas are needed to conserve foreign exchange for urgent necessities.

Scolding Europe is a waste of time. Our responsibility is not to threaten it with cutting ERP funds, but to help it readjust its economies. This entails heavy buying, and heavy investment in the industries that would contribute most to a free pattern of trade.

Barriers will yield to nothing less radical. Hoffman is right: a new dark age is not impossible. It happened once when world trade broke down beyond repair, and unless we look for real solutions, it could happen again in this unfortunate century.

Federal Reserve Lending Plan Opposed by RFC at Hearing

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation yesterday rapped a proposal that the Federal Reserve Banks take over part of RFC's lending powers.

RFC Chairman Haley Hise, disagreeing flatly with Federal Reserve Board Chairman Thomas B. McCabe, told a Senate-House Economic Committee studying the Government's money and credit policies:

"One source of Federal assistance in a particular loan field appears sufficient in the interest of consistent policies and procedure."

McCabe, asking that Congress authorize the Reserve banks to lend business up to 500 million dollars, recommended that RFC business loans be confined to cases "not suitable" for private or Federal Reserve Bank loans.

Hise said RFC should not only continue as the sole Government agency for loans to business, but it also should continue to operate at all times—depression or not.

McCabe stressed loans "to small business in time of need."

The conflicting views of the two agency heads were made public in a congressional document giving their answer to questions put to them by the committee.

This gave Federal Reserve-RFC differences an airing while RFC was newly under fire from Senators Fulbright (D., Ark.) and Capehart (R., Ind.) over a recent $44,400,000 loan to auto-maker Henry J. Kaiser.

Hise hammered at the McCabe proposal's point that unlike RFC the Reserve banks would not lend by themselves but merely would take part in credits given by private banks.

The RFC chairman declared that private banks in many cases turn down loan applications without even bothering to see about "the soundness of the requested

Some of the RFC loans were made, he said, when banks had refused help on such grounds as credit."

"Applicant engaged in new enterprise or recently moved to community; bank unwilling to make capital loan; collateral considered inadequate; enterprise located too far from bank; type of loan not acceptable by bank; amount of loan too large; maturity requested too long."

Hise added that RFC experience shows that "even though employment and production may be at a high level, availability of private credit is not present in many cases, particularly in the field of small business."

In contrast, he said, RFC loans and guarantees offer such "advantages" as "longer maturities than are available through other channels of credit, regular amortization in relation to earning capacity, no legal limitations as to the amount or type of security, relatively reasonable interest rates, availability to borrowers of services of RFC credit and engineering staff for consultation."

Underground Army Charged In Poland

Warsaw, Poland, Nov. 15 (AP).—President Boleslaw Bierut charged in a speech made public today that an "entire underground army" of spies and subversionists is active in Poland.

Declaring "American imperialism" was leading an active, aggressive policy against his regime, he said the number of persons engaged in espionage, sabotage, conspiracy and terror was greater in Poland than anywhere else.

The committee announced last night that three of its most prominent members, including former Vice Premier Wladyslaw Gomulka, Gen. Marion Spychalski, Minister of Reconstruction, and Zenon Kliszko, Vice Minister of Justice, had been purged from its ranks.

Bierut declared "treacherous criminal and fraticidal subversive activities" in Poland are supported by "both Germans and the Anglo-Saxon Allies."

He declared a "substantial number" of these agents already have been caught. He warned that Polish counter-actions "cannot be hindered by persistent attempts of the church hierarchy intending to use religious feelings and papal authority as a trump card in the fight against anti-imperialist movements."

Truman Plans Flight Nov. 28 To Key West

President Truman plans to fly to Key West, Fla., November 28 for a three-week stay.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross gave out this word officially yesterday, confirming reports that have circulated for several weeks.

He said Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, probably will be in Key West for at least part of the three weeks.

As Ross described the plans, it will be a "working vacation" for Mr. Truman.

Between daily swims and sunbaths, the President will work on his State-of-the-Union message to be submitted to Congress in January.

He also will get in some licks on his budget message and his economic report. They also are to go to Congress in January.

The present plan is for the President to leave Washington the morning of November 28 in his plane, the "Independence."

The plane will land at the Boca Chica airport. Mr. Truman will drive from there to the Key West naval station, where he and his party again will occupy the "Little White House."

The presidential yacht, Williamsburg, has already sailed for Key West. If Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman go, as is now expected, they probably will stay aboard the Williamsburg.

The President's Calling List

One on the Aisle—

The Lady Crooner Survives, Alack

By Richard L. Coe

HAVING ALWAYS WANTED to shoot a radio singer, any radio singer, I discover that RKO-Radio has nurtured just such a dream for the National's new arrival, "A Woman's Secret."

Naturally, it makes a perfectly terrible movie, well near the top of the year's "Worst List." It seems that every harrowing thought you've ever had about young ladies who moan into microphones is all too true. And even though the bullet lodges near the heart, she doesn't die.

This incredibly sloppy yarn stems from a Vicki Baum novel, "Mortgage on Life," as adapted to the screen by Herman J. Mankiewicz. The cast includes such sterling statues as Maureen O'Hara, Gloria Grahame, Melvyn Douglas and Victor Jory.

It seems that Maureen, having lost her voice, is playing Svengali to the Trilby of Gloria, whom she picked up on a staircase. Gloria is tired of it all, tired, and when a door closes behind the girls scrapping and a shot is fired, Maureen coldly says she killed her. "I did it," says Maureen.

This should end it, though the picture hasn't been on five minutes. But Douglas knows that Maureen couldn't possibly have killed Gloria, and by snooping into things for an hour and a half, he finally discovers that it was an accident. Nobody, including Maureen, bothers to explain why she didn't say so in the first place.

"A WOMAN'S SECRET." RKO-Radio release written and produced by Herman J. Mankiewicz. Story adapted from Vicki Baum's novel, "Mortgage on Life." Directed by Nicholas Ray. At the National.

THE CAST

Marian ..... Maureen O'Hara
Luke Jordan ..... Melvyn Douglas
Susan Caldwell ..... Gloria Grahame
Tim ..... Bill Williams
Mitchell ..... Victor Jory
The Inspector ..... Jay C. Flippen
His Wife ..... Mary Phillips

About this I have my own idea: Maureen undoubtedly wishes she had. It would have been a mercy killing if ever there was one.

For "Estrellita," which is the name of the singer Gloria becomes after Maureen and Melvyn discover she has "one of those voices," is the embodiment of everything you've ever thought about female creatures who moan into microphones; not a brain in her ugly little pate. Maureen doubtless is proud underneath, proud, to have done her little bit in trying to rid the world of one wee moron, and I'm grieved that Maureen didn't stick by her gun. Or didn't have better aim. Grieved, I am.

ROBERT PENN WARREN, Author of "All The King's Men"

"I have just seen 'All The King's Men' and I want to tell you how impressed I am. All of the main characters, and many of the minor ones, came startlingly alive for me. I say startlingly, because when I first saw the picture I thought of them as people inwardly alive, coming before me in their own right. In a way, it was like going back to the first, fresh idea of the book, before I had written a word.

"Where the characterizations departed from my own original ideas, as is sometimes the case, I felt it to be in accordance with a new and equally valid logic which the characters and director had discovered. I felt that they had revealed to me new aspects and new possibilities of the material. And as for the atmosphere, the general feeling of the picture—that, too is effectively done. In this picture, I think, there is intensity without tricks and pretensions, and always a sense of truth: such a thing as this could happen in a world like this."

A Promising Idea Falls Flat

Tracy and Kaufman Have Turkey

Baltimore, Nov. 15.—With Max Gordon presenting a play suggested by the personality of The New Yorker's editor, Lee Tracy playing him and George S. Kaufman directing, you would expect "Metropole," at Ford's, to be a diverting comedy. It isn't.

In fact, it will be a surprise if the experienced trio doesn't fold the play by Saturday night rather than go to further expense with it. For "Metropole" is an embarrassingly flat experience for all concerned.

The three acts are by William Walden, described as a man who once worked on the celebrated magazine. His scene is the editor's office and his story concerns efforts to start another magazine by luring away the great man's staff.

Amusing Tracy Is Trapped

Tracy is the best thing about Producer Gordon's evening, managing to make the character amusing, if not interesting, despite the fact that he's trapped behind a desk most of the evening. Tracy works hard, succeeds in spots, but even his efforts aren't equal to making the play remotely interesting.

This is not to say that Author Walden hasn't included facets about The New Yorker's Harold Ross. His passion for precision, his feuds with the business department and his amiable forgetfulness, well-known in the magazine world, are stressed, but the playwright has been totally unable to bring the man to life. Within the past few years, many articles have appeared about Ross and life on The New Yorker, all of which bear out the play's observations, but none of which failed so utterly to make them interesting.

Several months ago, the grapevine had it that this season would bring at least two plays suggested by Ross and his magazine. This is the first to appear; James Thurber is reported to have written one, but has withheld it.

Three Ladies Adrift

George S. Kaufman's direction, so long a firecracker of American comedy, is painfully evident in a few dragged-in characters and sequences which have their immediate chuckle value, but with so wooden, strained and unimaginative a script these add up to little.

Although such assured leading ladies as Edith Atwater, Arlene Francis and Jane Seymour are in the cast, they have little to do. Miss Atwater plays his first wife, who wins him back after having started the opposition gazette; Miss Francis is a volatile type actress whose big scene occurs off stage, and Miss Seymour is a writer who enjoys having her copy edited. The scenes of all three are short and they're sorely missed once the audience has had brief views of them. There's also a foolish blonde, obviously acted by Jean Carson.

On the whole, it's an unhappy duty to report that Messrs. Gordon and Kaufman have again missed the bus after a rocky voyage last season, and that one more entrant in a slim live-theater season must inevitably bite the dust.

Grant to Aid Study Of Liver and Cancer

By The Associated Press

The female sex hormone estrogen, which has been proved capable of inciting cancer in mice, will be fed into human liver in a Federal cancer research project approved yesterday.

The National Cancer Institute announced the award of $8910 to Memorial Hospital, New York City, for the project. It was one of more than 90 awards, totaling $907,212, for laboratory and clinical cancer research in hospitals and universities.

The institute said Drs. R. W. Rawson and H. J. Tagnon, of Memorial, will supply estrogen and related hormones to slices of liver taken from cancerous and non-cancerous patients.

In another hormone study, financed by a $20,000 grant to the University of California, Dr. H. M. Evans will inject rats with pure growth hormone.

"Previous experiments have led Dr. Evans to believe such injections will produce tumors," the institute said.

The institute awarded $4000 to St. Louis University School of Medicine for continued studies of radioactive cortisone by Dr. E. A. Doisy, a Nobel prize winner.

Other cancer research grants included Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene, $14,310; Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, $7800 and $7344; University of Virginia, $11,880; Carnegie Institute of Washington, $6700; Georgetown University Medical School, $5000 and $5000; George Washington University School of Medicine, $8286 and $6120; National Research Council, Washington, $10,800.

Inquiry Into Fatal Air Crash Continues in Closed Session

The Civil Aeronautics Board investigation of the November 1 air disaster was continued behind the scenes yesterday, with the prospect that Erick Rios Bridoux will soon clarify his 41-page statement.

A CAB official said that Bridoux, Bolivian pilot of the P-38 that collided with a DC-4 airliner near National Airport, will be given an opportunity to study the 1100-page transcript of the five-day public hearing.

Conflicts To Be Cleared Up

After that, Bridoux will be interviewed again to offer any additional statement he wishes and to clear up a number of conflicts between his deposition and testimony heard by the CAB investigating panel.

Meanwhile, CAB investigators began to follow up leads brought out in the hearings in hopes of finding out what caused the worst airplane disaster in history, killing 55 persons.

Conclusions of the CAB are not expected to be published before the first of next year.

Although further public hearings are not contemplated, the CAB panel made it clear Monday that any additional information about the crash from any source will be accepted and considered.

Unfairness to Pilots Denied

In reply to a walkout at the last day's hearing by representatives of the Air Line Pilots Association, a CAB official said he felt the panel had not discriminated against the pilots, but had "offered them an opportunity to make any statement they wanted to concerning the air crash."

Harold A. Jones, a member of the CAB sitting on the panel, told witnesses to confine their testimony to the November 1 crash.

The ALPA, on hearing this instruction, walked out because its members wanted to make several recommendations about improving air safety.

stagnant ditch on E. Franklin ave. might be carrying the disease.

In a letter to the Montgomery County Council yesterday, G. V. Levin of the State bureau wrote:

"Years of careful investigation and study have not yet yielded any positive evidence that poliomyelitis could be contracted from such conditions as those existing on Franklin ave."

Public Health Service experts commented:

"There is no significant evidence to support the theory that drainage ditches bear any relation to polio."

Authorities have ordered elimination of the ditch after repeated complaints by residents when the first Atkin child became ill.

18,610 to Get $1,376,234 in Yule Savings

By S. Oliver Goodman

Three Washington financial institutions will distribute $1,376,234 to 18,610 Christmas Club savers this month, a checkup revealed yesterday.

Largest single amount will be the $479,160 which Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association will mail out to 6511 savers before December 1. This was the first year for such thrift accounts in this association, according to President Clarence E. Kefauver. The 1950 Yule Club was opened Monday and Columbia is "literally being flooded" with applications, Kefauver added.

First Federal Savings & Loan Association already is mailing out checks to 6099 accounts for a total of $473,308, President Carl H. Ellingson reported. This was the institution's first year for Yule Clubs. Applications for 1950 are now being received at "twice the last year's rate," according to Ellingson.

Industrial Bank of Washington will start mailing checks to 6000 Yule savers for $428,766 on November 21, President Jesse Mitchell said. The total is about $26,000 more than last year's. The new accounts will be opened November 18.

A recent national survey indicated that Yule Club savers use their funds in this manner: 36 percent for Christmas purchases; permanent savings 31 percent; yearend bills 13 percent; insurance premiums 7 percent; taxes 8 percent, and mortgage payments 2 percent.

For the coming year, seven local banks have announced plans to revive Yule savings clubs. During the war, the popular plan was dropped by every bank except Industrial. Already announced as reopening such accounts are the Second National Bank, Hamilton National Bank (in two branches), National Bank of Washington, Washington Loan & Trust Co., The City Bank, Bank of Commerce & Savings, and National Savings & Trust Co.

BANK DIVIDEND: Lincoln National Bank declared a $3.50 special dividend in addition to the regular semiannual dividend of $2.50 a share, payable January 3 to stock of record December 19. Similar dividends were paid in the first six months. The total of $12 for this year is the same as in 1948.

EXTRA DIVIDEND: Directors of Lincoln Service Corp. declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the 6 percent participating preferred stock, in addition to the quarterly dividend of 37½ cents. Regular quarterly dividends of 87½ cents on the 7 percent prior preferred and 37½ cents on common stock also were authorized. All dividends are payable December 12 to stock of record November 30. President Charles Delmar reported yesterday that two more offices are now under Lincoln Service's wing—one in Havre de Grace, Md., and the other in Melbourne, Fla. The small-loan company, whose headquarters are in Washington, now has 42 operating units.

HECHT SALES: The Hecht Co. yesterday reported net sales of $58,121,487 for the first nine months of fiscal 1949, an increase of 1.2 percent over the same 1948 period. Third quarter sales totaled $20,266,060, compared with $20,311,988 in the same 1948 period. In addition to the Washington and Silver Spring store sales, the figures includes Hecht stores in Baltimore, Annapolis, Easton and New York City.

OPEN HOUSE: A throng estimated at more than 5000 inspected the new building of the Bank of Silver Spring at an "open house" Monday night. Many out-of-town bankers were present. The new structure at 8701 Georgia ave. formally opened for business Monday morning. The 3-year-old bank previously was located at 8640 Georgia ave. President is George T. Day.

ODD LOTS: The Federal Savings and Loan Advisory Board yesterday began it two-day semiannual meeting with the Home Loan Bank Board here . . . The SEC has approved a plan of American Gas & Electric Co. to advance up to 15 million dollars to its Roancke, Va., subsidiary (Appalachian Electric Power Co.) . . . Dun & Bradstreet reported business failures in week ended November 10 increased to 222, against 196 in preceding week and 96 a year ago . . . Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's annual stockholder meeting will be held Monday.

EARNINGS: Schenley Industries, Inc., reported net income of $24,242,590 or $6.73 a common share for the fiscal year ended August 31, compared with $29,524,365 or $8.20 in the previous year. Sales increased to $461,852,504 from $459,783,948. Other earnings statements:

Remember Keynes' Warning—U. S. May Be Left Holding Gold

By J. A. Livingston

PRESIDENT Truman has not answered his last question on gold, despite his emphatic declaration that so long as he is President the price of gold will stay right where it is—at $35 an ounce. That won't stop the owners of gold mines or dealers in money from starting rumors or giving expression to their hopes. Gold is always a topic for speculation.

Livingston

Logic has no bearing on the subject. Midas-minded men are always sure that any time gold touches anything all will turn out well. Is there a depression? Raise the price of gold! Is there inflation? Make money convertible into gold!

Today the notion still gads about that the United States will boost the gold price, notwithstanding repeated denials by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and now by Truman himself. The denials merely fan the flame of hope. Didn't Cripps say the pound wouldn't be devalued?

The rumor has become so prevalent that exporters to this country from Europe are demanding guarantees from American purchasers that the dollar won't be devalued. They're not taking any chances on what happened to the pound. They want a set price in terms of gold, not in dollars.

Even foreign central banks are victims of the craze. In the last seven weeks American holdings of gold have declined about 160 million dollars, or 0.7 percent. Jittery foreign banks preferred gold, earmarked for their account, rather than dollar credits. Yet raising the price of gold would negate America's basic policy.

THIS COUNTRY was instrumental in persuading British Prime Minister Attlee and Chancellor of the Exchequer Cripps to devalue the pound. The purpose was to increase the purchasing power of the dollar in terms of British goods. If Americans had to pay less for British woolens, pottery, or antiques, they'd perhaps buy more. Therefore British exports to the United States would increase, and the British shortage of dollars might be reduced.

Other countries—France, Sweden, Belgium—more or less went along with the pound devaluation. So the over-all effect was to revalue the dollar upward in terms of the currencies of the rest of the world. Well, having urged the British to revalue the dollar upward less than two months ago, would the Treasury now turn around and devalue the dollar? If so, the whole purpose of Attlee's action would be defeated.

Believers in the curative powers of gold also suggest that the world's ills would cease if all currencies were made convertible into gold. If anybody could take a British pound, say, and get gold for it, well, then the British pound would be a hard currency again. You could exchange it for dollars. Ditto the French franc, or the Swedish krona.

THERE'S ONLY one thing wrong with that proposal: Facts. The reason the pound sterling isn't freely convertible into dollars is because the British aren't able to get hold of dollars or gold. The United States is too great an exporter of goods and services, not enough of an importer. As a result, gold piles up and up and up in Fort Knox, as can be readily seen statistically:

Year	U. S. Gold Reserves
1913	$1,300,000,000
1918	2,660,000,000
1928	3,700,000,000
1933	4,000,000,000
1934	8,200,000,000*
1938	14,600,000,000
1943	22,000,000,000
Today	24,800,000,000

*After change in price of gold from $20.67 to $35 an ounce.

Except for a comparatively limited consumption in industry and in the arts, gold's function today is to settle international balances between nations. But the economies of the world are so fouled up that gold can't properly perform that function. It doesn't move back and forth. It moves one way—to America. And gold could become a liability—as it was to Midas.

John Maynard Keynes once pointed out that it is in nobody's interest, least of all America's, for other nations to lose all their gold. "If the convention by which gold is used as a means of settling international payments came to an end, America's own stocks would become valueless. The convention depends on not all the gold being in one hand. When in the game of 'beggar my neighbor' all the cards belong to one player, that is the signal for the game to come to an end. The pack becomes worthless pasteboard: The fun is over."

The United States, in self-interest, must uphold the convention. But it would be foolish to raise the price of gold so that this country could pay more for what it already has too much of.

Record Wage Dividend For Eastman Kodak

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 15. (AP).—Eastman Kodak Co.'s board of directors today voted a wage dividend of an estimated $15,500,000 for about 48,000 Kodak men and women in the Western Hemisphere.

The wage dividend is the largest amount in the 38-year history of the plan at Kodak, while the rate of payment is the highest since the present formula became effective in 1928. It will be paid March 10, 1950.

A Man and His First Cadillac!

SELDOM will you find a man in a happier state of mind than when he slides behind the wheel of his first Cadillac—and makes for the open highway.

It's a wonderful, wonderful feeling—as every Cadillac owner can attest.

Usually, it's the fulfillment of a long-cherished dream. And, of course, that means a glorious sense of achievement—with inspiring memories and a deep sense of personal satisfaction.

And, then, there are the immediate pleasures that press upon him . . .

. . . the feeling of pride that is inescapable when a man comes into possession of something which is so universally admired . . .

. . . the feeling of confidence that comes from Cadillac's great reputation for quality and soundness and long life . . .

. . . the feeling of elation that comes from the car's amazing responsiveness to throttle and brakes . . .

. . . the feeling of gratitude that comes from being able to surround himself, and all who ride with him, with every safeguard an automobile can provide.

And then, of course, there is the soft, satisfying rush of the miles—the easy, restful ride — the positive, effortless handling — the sumptuous and comfortable surroundings.

Yes, it's a great thrill for a man when he goes for his first ride at the wheel of his first Cadillac.

But it's only the beginning!

Day after day, year after year, he will have that same wonderful feeling as he rolls his Cadillac out into the street or highway. For the joy of Cadillac ownership is deep and abiding. Most owners find that it never leaves and seldom lessens.

Wouldn't you like to learn what it's like to sit at the wheel of a car that can mean so much to you? If so, come in today—for a ride that's a revelation. We may be able to make prompt delivery on the model you prefer.

BY PUBLIC DEMAND, no less, Promoter Goldie Ahearn says he has matched Charley Titone with Bobby Bell, another featherweight, in the top offering of his Uline Arena show on Friday night. The exact magnitude of the public's demand for the match is somewhat vague, but Ahearn wouldn't lie, much.

"The public wants it," he said, "and who am I to give the customers what they don't want. They haven't seen Bell fight here, but they've watched him on television, so I don't have to tell no lies about him."

POVICH

It seems that Bell did have Titone on the floor for a count in a bout at New York's St. Nick's Arena a while back before losing the decision. And since then, Titone stopped Jimmy Cooper by a knockout that stopped Cooper's winning streak.

"You can't fool the public these days, with television here," said Ahearn. "They know all about your fighters even before you bring 'em in. Television is even making the sports writers honest."

SOME MAJOR LEAGUE ball players are very nice guys, and Eddie Robinson is one of them. So says Mr. Bill Wood of 2217 Observatory pl. nw., Washington, who writes:

"A few days before the baseball season closed, I dropped a note to Eddie Robinson, Washington first baseman, telling him of the illness of an 11-year-old boy who was struck down seriously by polio . . . I asked Eddie please to find the time to drop him a note of cheer.

"Well, nothing developed for weeks. But last night my telephone rang, and it was Robinson calling long distance, and telling me he had misplaced my letter. He asked for the boy's name and address again, and right now both a note to the boy and an autographed baseball are on their way from Robinson to Harold Kogod at Children's Hospital."

ALL SEASON, Stan Lavine has been the second-string quarterback of the Maryland U. team, operating in the shadow of Joe Tucker. He came into his own at Boston last weekend when he engineered the 81-yard-touchdown drive in the final quarter that enabled Maryland to beat B. U., 14-13.

Lavine's smart performance may have been flabbergasting to some folks, but apparently it did not astonish the league-leading Los Angeles Rams of the National Pro Football League. In the secret drawing of draftees from college ranks a week before the Maryland-B. U. game, the Rams overlooked many a first string quarterback to claim second-string q.b. Lavine as one of their early choices.

"AN OLD ALUMNUS of St. Lawrence U. (Canton, N. Y.) insists on getting into the papers that his school merits some applause. He points out that among its graduates are Hal Schumacher, former pitching great of the New York Giants, and Bobby Thomson, current home-run hitting infielder of the same team.

"Also, Movie Actor Kirk Douglas, who was a college wrestler of note before he starred in the film 'The Champion' and began sending the ladies' hearts a-flutter." But getting down to bedrock, he adds, "St. Lawrence, in its last five football games has scored 230 points while holding their opponents to 30."

MR. TED COLLINS, whose pro football ventures as owner of National League football franchises in Boston and New York the past several years have taken close to a million dollars from his bank account, must be the champion stoic. He says he isn't quiting despite the fact that this year's operations will leave him $300,000 in the red.

Not only that, but he lashes out at the rival All-America Conference, predicting that circuit will fold. He claims that all clubs in that conference are losing money, and chooses picturesque language to say, "There are seven Ted Collins' in the AAC."

The suspicion is, however, that Collins is not playing a lone chin against the financial battering he is getting as owner of the New York Bulldogs. There are recurrent reports that the NFL, to keep its 10-club circuit intact, is waiving the $20,000 guarantee to visiting clubs, when Collins' team is the home team.

Area Player of Week

Terps' Bobby Ward

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

MARYLAND GUARD BOBBY WARD spent most of the time on his back against Boston University, but even from this position, he succeeded in making a king-size contribution to the Terps' 14-13 victory over the previously unbeaten Terriers.

Boston U. had so much respect for the ability of the 180-pound sophomore that the Terriers triple-teamed him. They tried to pin him in by assigning their center and two guards to block him. Not even Ward could smash through this phalanx to make his usual number of tackles but he stopped the Bostonians another way.

Bob Ward

Instead of trying to crash through, he spilled the blockers causing a traffic jam in the middle of the Boston line, piling up blockers and the ballcarrier on practically every play the Terriers sent through the middle.

With three men on Ward, Boston could not block out tackles Ray Krouse and Chet Gieurla and those two huskies had a busy afternoon tackling the Boston runners.

But the 5-foot 10-inch cat-like Ward was the key to the Terps' defense. So much depended on his ability to bottle up the middle that Maryland dropped its line-backer, the player normally assigned to backstop Ward, to safety man to help defend against the long passes Harry Agganis was expected to hurl.

The great Agganis failed to complete a touchdown pass for the first time in his football career.

"He's the best 180-pound lineman in the country, bar none," Coach Jim Tatum says of Ward.

Ward is no johnny-come-lately to stardom. He's been nip-and-tuck with All-America Candidate Krouse for defensive honors all year. Last season when he was only a freshman his Maryland teammates voted him the outstanding player on the squad. Southern Conference coaches selected him the most outsanding freshman in the league and each of Maryland's 10 foes voted him on their all-opponent team.

He's a modest business administration citizen from Elibabeth, New Jersey, where he was on the all-State team for two years. His older brother, Jim, is co-captain of Columbia University's football team and his younger brother, Al, is freshman captain at Columbia. Ward came to Maryland in 1949 after playing the previous year for the championship Fort Benning, Ga., infantry team.

When told yesterday that he had been selected as The Washington Post's Player of the Week, Ward replied, "Why me? The only tackles I made were on plays they ran outside our ends."

Ward on Television

Bob Ward, Maryland University guard selected as The Player of The Week by The Washington Post, will appear on Jim Gibbons' television show (WMAL) tonight at 7:15 o'clock. Films of Maryland's 14-13 victory over Boston University last week will be shown.

Sale of Tribe Seems Near; Veeck Won't Deny Report

Cleveland, Nov. 15 (AP).—Mayor Thomas A. Burke revealed today that city officials are talking over a new contract on stadium rent with prospective new owners of the Cleveland Indians.

Burke would not say who members of the group are. But he did say that negotiations were "progressing satisfactorily." He said the city would profit more under the proposed contract than it did under its agreement with Tribal President Bill Veeck.

The Veeck agreement, recently expired, gave the city 3 percent on the first $400,000 gate revenue and 5 percent over that.

The reports say the reported purchase price will be $2,200,000.

Reported in on the talks were Ellis W. Ryan, Cleveland insurance man, and Attorney Donald W. Hornbeck, a Republican leader and law associate of former Democratic Mayor Ray T. Miller.

Ryan heads a syndicate known to be seeking purchase of the club. Reports persist that Veeck will announce sale of the Indians to the syndicate soon—possibly Wednesday or Thursday.

In Chicago, Veeck wouldn't say yes or no to the sale chatter. But he fanned the fire a little when he stated, "I still own the ball club, but I can't say that I'll own it tomorrow night."

Marshall Samuel, the Tribe's publicity director, added that "it was by no means certain" the proposed change in ownership would go through.

"However," Samuels stated, "if and when there is a sale, it will be announced by Veeck in Cleveland."

Veeck reportedly will arrive back here tomorrow or Thursday. He has owned the club since 1946.

Wilson Group Opens Phone Drive for Game

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

WITH refreshing enthusiasm, Woodrow Wilson High's adult community yesterday went to work to assure success of the November 25 Interhigh football championship game at Griffith Stadium.

L. Welch Pogue, chairman of the Home and School Association, ordered 2500 choice tickets for the members, so they can sit near the Wilson cheering section.

Publicity Chairman Miss Norma J. Kale and her committee took out the membership rolls, and began systematically telephoning the 1220 families of Wilson pupils. She will urge them to buy tickets and explain that the proceeds go to replenish the depleted Interhigh athletic fund.

CHARLES HUNTER, SR., home and school association trustee, will back up Miss Kale's work by mailing out ticket sale reminder post cards to every Wilson parent.

Wilson's Faculty Athletic Sponsor Richard Brown prepared for sale of tickets at the school bank and set up a ticket booth which will be open when Wilson presents its operetta, "The Red Mill," Thursday and Friday.

William Solomon, whose son Alvin plays guard at Wilson, appeared at the school yesterday and volunteered to help publicize the title classic.

He obtained permission from three neighborhood merchants to paint huge water color advertisements the length of their show windows. He also agreed to supervise ticket sales at those stores for area adults who have no children attending Wilson.

POGUE hurled a challenge at all other home and school associations.

"We are going to do more to put the game over by selling tickets than any other group," he declared.

"We say that knowing Wilson must beat Chamberlain Friday in order to qualify for the championship game.

"Even if a miracle does keep Wilson out, we will nevertheless keep plugging because our kids will still share in the proceeds.

"Our children do not have adequate athletic equipment, and by patronizing this game, we can secure funds to buy the needed equipment.

"Besides, it'll be a whale of a game."

Mattingly's Passing Arm Worries Bo

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

A GEORGETOWN soph, conceded little chance of making the varsity before the season opened, is giving GW Coach Bo Rowland sleepless nights as the Arkadelphia, Ark., traveler prepares for the traditional GW-Georgetown game at Griffith Stadium Saturday.

Quarterback Frank Mattingly smartly stepped into the key T-formation spot in Georgetown's initial victory over Holy Cross and has been showing improvement since.

Mattingly's passing has been brilliant. He now ranks seventeenth in the country with 61 completions in 127 attempts, four going for touchdowns. His total yardage is 916 and he's almost a cinch to pass the 1000 mark against the Colonials.

That's what Rowland's worried about. Pass defense has been a GW weak spot.

THE STORY of Mattingly's selection is almost as good as his performances. The Hoyas had experimented with him, Senior Bob Barry and Sophs Jackie Juen and Bob Deacon.

Finally Coach Bob Margarita decided the time had come to pick one quarterback and stick with him. He asked his staff to vote for a candidate. When the count was tabulated, Mattingly had only one vote. It was the big one, though—Margarita's.

Lanky Frank, he's 6-foot-4 and his weight fluctuates between 175 and 185, hasn't given Margarita any cause for regret.

Mattingly's a cocky boy with a lot of poise. He really was on the spot in his first game. Twice he failed to direct the Hoyas to scores when they had good opportunities and Holy Cross got off to a 13-0 lead.

THAT WOULD have been as good a time as any to crack, but Coach Bob Magarita kept telling him to relax, kept assuring him that Georgetown could win. Pretty soon, he had Mattingly believing it. The soph looked like an old pro, directing the 72-yard winning touchdown drive.

The Lexington Park (Md.) lad looks frail but isn't. In the Maryland game, he took a kickoff a split second before 210-pound Mighty Moe Modzelewski slammed into his midriff.

It was a terrific tackle. Nobody thought he'd finish the game, but he did.

Mattingly will be very much in evidence Saturday. His ballhandling has improved and he's getting to be as big an asset to the running game as he has been to the aerial attack.

No wonder Rowland's worried.

15,000 See Jack Tally 31 Points

(Special to The Post)

New York, Nov. 15.—Despite the 31-point performance of Jack Nichols, the Washington Capitols dropped a 77-63 decision to the Chicago Stags in the opener of a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden before 15,000.

In the nightcap, Syracuse beat New York Knickerboakers, 77-74.

For the first half it was quite a game with the Caps, led by Nichols, gaining a 36-all tie.

But an 11-point surge by Chicago early in the third quarter killed Washington's chances.

The loss was the second straight for the Caps, who were trimmed last time out by Boston, 76-68. Washington's season record now is 4-3.

The final margin was not as disreputable as the score indicates, for right up until the last three minutes, the Caps were as little as six points behind.

At the beginning of the final quarter the Caps trailed, 49 to 57, but soon found themselves 10 points behind, 51 to 61, and 54 to 64. Only a determined rally, led, of course, by Nichols could cut the edge to 68 to 62 with three minutes left.

All of the Washington scoring in the first half was split between three men: Nichols, Chuck Gilmur, and Chick Reiser. Reiser got nine points in the first quarter, but fouled out before the second quarter was over.

At the end of the first quarter the Caps were on the long end of a 19-to-18 score.

Bones Expected Back For Denver Tonight

His knee mended, Bones McKinney is supposed to return to action tonight when the Washington Caps meet Denver's Nuggets in a National Basketball Association game at Uline Arena. Opening jump is 8:45.

Denver hasn't won a game in eight starts, the only NBA team which has failed to score a victory. Jack Toomay, who used to play for the Caps; Ken Sailors, Jack Cotton, Bobby Brown, Earl Dodd, Al Guokas and Ed Bartels represent the Nuggets.

GW May Use Passer Davis On Defense

George Washington may use its best passer to pin down Georgetown's best passer in Saturday's traditional battle at Griffith Stadium.

Colonial Coach Bo Rowland, naturally, is tight-lipped about how he intends to stop Hoya Frank Mattingly's sharp tosses, but word is out that Andy Davis will be inserted to bolster G. W.'s porous air defense.

Davis, a 60-minute player and G. W.'s leading pass interceptor until he hurt his knees in last year's Duke game, has been used principally for passing offense this season.

With Andy out of there on defense, G. W.'s opponents this season have completed 15 touchdown passes, and set up a half-dozen others with aerial shots.

G. W.'s foes have completed 73 out of 147 pitches for a highly respectable .496 percentage. The Colonials' air defense reached its lowest ebb in the last two weeks when Maryland and Duke completed a total of 31 for six touchdowns.

The Colonials reclaimed two players from the injury list yesterday, but lost the star of last year's Georgetown game.

End Bill Szanyi, who blocked a Hoya punt and ran for the winning touchdown, banged his knee Saturday, and yesterday suffered a hemorrhage in the joint. He was on crutches and likely will miss the G. U. game.

Back in action after missing the Duke contest are blocking Back Stan Burak and Guard Dixie Howell.—HERB HEFT.

Pete Stout Lost To Redskins for Rest of Season

The services of Pete Stout, rookie fullback from Texas Christian, were lost by the Washington Redskins for the remainder of the season yesterday when X-rays disclosed he suffered a broken shoulder in Sunday's game with the Philadelphia Eagle.

As the Redskins prepared for this Sunday's clash with the Chicago Bears at Griffith Stadium, National Football League statistics placed Washington first in passing yardage with 1930 to the Bears' 1869. The Redskins dropped to second in total offense, however, behind the Eagles, with 2111 yards to the champions' 3126.

Last Pick-The-Winners Contest

Georgetown vs. GW Poses Usual Problem

The first game in The Washington Post's Pick-the-Winners final football contest is a true test for any football expert.

As usual, Georgetown is favored. As ever, George Washington will be battling. This nineteenth renewal won't be any different than any other in the hard-fought series—regardless of pregame records, it should be a toss-up.

Each week the winner of the contest will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 26, and an all-expenses-paid trip to this game for two persons.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week also will receive four tickets to a major college or professional game in this area. The Washington Post will select this game.

The contest each week will include 21 major college games. Each contestant will select the winner (or tie) of 20 of these games. On the twenty-first game, each contest will give the "Probable Score."

Michels May Miss Game With Tulane

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Virginia's chances of remaining unbeaten after its big game with Tulane here Saturday dropped with word that Quarterback Whitey Michels may miss the game.

Michels, who performed brilliantly against Penn, didn't work out today because of a shoulder separation.

If the West Virginia senior can't play, Soph Jimmy Lesane will have to take over the passing duties.

Interhigh Champs, Catholics Play

The Interhigh football champion, Division 1-9, will meet the Catholic League champion in an annual postseason game December 3, 1:30 p. m., at Griffith Stadium.

Proceeds of the contest will be divided among the 10 Interhigh schools and Gonzaga, St. John's, Georgetown Prep, DeMatha and St. Anthony's in the Catholic League.

W-L's Hillenbrand Duels Fairfax's Trumbo Tonight

The Washington-Lee Generals play host to Fairfax in a Group I Northern Virginia League game tonight at 8 p. m. Fairfax is in the cellar of the Northern Virginia District with 2 losses and no wins. Washington-Lee which closes its season against George Washington in Alexandria Thanksgiving Day has only played one game and got a tie in that.

The Generals will have Bruce Hillenbrand, a fleet halfback, to team with Jack Gilfillan and Johnny Herrlein in the starting backfield. Sam Ebert will be along to handle the passing.

Fairfax will have to depend almost solely on the plunging of big Joe Trumbo if it is to have any hopes of pulling an upset.

Deal With Eagles

Steelers Get Rights To Justice

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15 (AP).—(Choo Choo) Justice, great running back from North Carolina University, was announced today as the No. 1 draft choice of the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League.

Charley says he won't play.

Not particularly that he won't play with the Steelers, because, so far as is known, he didn't know he had been drafted by the Steelers when he made his pronunciamento.

He just doesn't mean to play professional ball, that's all.

The Steelers said they picked Charley at a National League draft meeting in Philadelphia a week ago.

Justice had originally been drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles, league champions. But, a Steeler spokesman said the Eagles, wealthy in backs already and angling for some fancy lin men, gave up Justice to the Steelers in exchange for the Pittsburgh Team's No. 1 draft choice.

Eagles Get Rights To Wisconsin's Wilson

Philadelphia, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Philadelphia Eagles said today they received draft rights to Robert Wilson, 210-pound University of Wisconsin center and end, in the deal with the Pittsburgh Steelers who got draft rights to North Carolina's Charlie Justice.

Bills' Star Signs 4-Year Contract

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP).—Quarterback George Ratterman of the All-America Football Conference Buffalo Bills confirmed today he will play for the New York Bulldogs in the rival National League next year.

He said his contract was for four years.

"Yes," said Ratterman, "I signed a New York Bulldogs' contract in August because the Buffalo Bills' coach didn't offer me one for 1949. I decided then to pass up playing this year and finish my education at Notre Dame University. I figured that I had better sign a contract then so I'd know where I'd be when I returned to the game.

"The Bulldogs held the National League drafts rights to me, so I went to New York and signed with Mr. Collins (Ted Collins, Bulldogs' president).

"After the Bills lost their opening game in Chicago, Mr. James Breuil of the Bills flew to South Bend to contact me and I signed to play with the Bills this season. I received Mr. Collins' permission to do so."

The 23-year-old quarterback will make his last home appearance for the Bills Sunday against the Chicago Hornets.

In New York, a spokesman for the All-America Conference said Ratterman's move was perfectly legal.

"When his contract expired he had a right to sign with anyone he pleased," the spokesman said.

McBride Says He'll Stick

Cleveland Owner Will Quit Rather Than Merge With NFL

Cleveland, Nov. 15. (AP).—Arthur B. (Mickey) McBride, the owner of the All-America Football Conference champions, the Cleveland Browns, declared today he will quit pro football if the conference ever merges with the National Football League.

Asked by newsmen whether he would go into the National League if the AAC were broken up and he were invited into the other pro football outfit, McBride answered, "No." "The only chance for success pro football has is to operate with two leagues," he said.

The Browns' owner said he and his partners will continue to operate in the AAC no matter how much money the Browns lose this season.

"If we go down, I'll go down with the ship," he declared, "but let me tell you we're in much better shape than the National League."

11 Win Turkeys In Argyle Golf

Eleven players won turkeys in the Argyle Country Club blind bogey tourney completed yesterday. Mrs. Caroline Foley, 86-14—72, and Miss Murial Crawford, 104-32—72, won the women's prizes for low net.

Men who won turkeys were M. Carpenter, 86-14—72; Tony Siciliano, 79-7—72; Mike Sheppard, 87-15—72; Shirley Chamblin, 79-7—72; M. T. Steiner, 92-20—72; R. Hamilton, 84-12—72; Walter W. Britt, 101-29—72; Charles Atwell, 90-18—72, and H. A. McKenzie, 87-15—72.

Natie Brown Wrestles Tonight

Natie Brown, former local heavyweight fighter, may have to revert to his former role as pugilist to subdue Laverne Baxter in the feature wrestling match tonight at Turner's Arena.

Martin Karadigan meets Tony Martinelli and Ivan Kamaroff tangles with Irish Jack Lelly in preliminary bouts. Marvin Mercer goes after his eighth junior heavyweight victory in the semiwindup against Joe Gob of Boston.

Townsfolk Again Will Rescue Packers in Financial Crisis

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 15 (AP).—The chips are down again at Green Bay—and once more the townsfolk are ready to pick them up.

That's to say the town's pride and joy—the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League—admittedly are in financial trouble and that the people who pay to support them are going to dig a little deeper to help out. A Thanksgiving Day intra-squad game is the plan.

Once before, after the 1922 season, the citizens came to the rescue when there wasn't even $250 left to keep the NFL franchise, let alone enough to pay players' salaries.

A citizens' committee was formed. It signed a note for $1600, organized a nonprofit corporation, and sold stock at $5 a share. Within a few days $5000 was in the coffers and the day was saved.

The situation is almost as serious now. Attendance has tumbled steadily for two years, largely because of mediocre teams. Expenses have risen just as steadily, due mostly to the higher salaries forced by bidding for players against the rival All-America Conference.

In five league "home" games this year—three here and two at Milwaukee—the Packers have drawn only 99,349 fans.

Philly Hotels Berate Wild Virginia Guests

Philadelphia, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—University of Virginia students came here "steamed up on whisky and waving Confederate flags" for their recent football game with the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia hotelmen charged today.

"They certainly were not Southern gentlemen," Bennett E. Tousley, head of the Philadelphia Hotel Association, said.

Tousley accused Virginia students and their followers of causing "tremendous damage" at their hotel headquarters here following their school's 26-14 upset victory over Penn on November 5.

Some of their pranks, he said, included:

Throwing beer in the faces of young elevator girls.

Running around hotel corridors "at all hours of the night."

Tearing down fire hose.

Smashing and ripping down signs.

Breaking every sand jar in the Hotel Adelphia.

Tousley said association officials would "discuss" the incident with University of Virginia officials in the hope of finding "a cooperative plan to avoid any tremendous damage again."

He vowed that "if Virginia plays here again, we won't take reservations from anyone south of Chester, Pa."

But even as he spoke, Pennsylvania announced that its first grid opponent in 1950 was Virginia and that the Cavaliers would play at Franklin Field here next September 30.

At Charlottesville, Va., President Colgate W. Darden said he was "distressed at damage done in Philadelphia." He termed it "inexcusable."

Everything Happens In Steeplechase At Pimlico

Pimlico, Nov. 15.—There wasn't a dull moment in today's steeplechase here.

To begin with, John Bosley jr.'s Rank was virtually left at the post with an assistant starter hanging to him. L. H. Nelles' Oak Leaf had a ten length lead when he fell at the tenth fence. This left Llangollen Farm's Artic Bound a dozen lengths in front but the prosperity was too great and the 5-year-old crashed at the next fence, giving the victory to A. M. Hirsh's Ratcatcher, paying $7.20.

Two jockeys were injured and Artic Bound had to be destroyed. His rider, Charles H. Williams suffered a possible fractured pelvis, while Harry Harris received nose lacerations.

$4.60 Shot Wins With Late Rush

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Nov. 15.—Jockey Johnny Gilbert, probably second to Eddie Arcaro in unpopularity with some fans, put up a brilliant ride to get Brookmeade Stable's Pilayya home in the featured North Star II purse, topping the Tuesday program. Riding as if his very life depended on the outcome, the veteran got the filly up in the last jump to take the victory in a four-way photo finish.

Circle M Farm's Isle of Mist was second with Mrs. J. B. Halfield's Cherrys First third and H. A. Luro's Aleatory fourth in the field of a dozen 2-year-olds of assorted sex going 6 furlongs.

Pilayya, making it two wins in a row here after arriving a maiden, paid $4.60 as the favorite with a crowd of 10,000. The daughter of Pilate was clocked in 1.12 3/5 over a track that became fast earlier in the program.

Gilbert could not keep up with Pilayya in the early stages and looked as if Apprentice Nolan Griffith was going to "steal" another longshot victory with Cherrys First. However, Pilayya finally got under way in earnest and was one of a gang of juveniles closing in on Cherrys First at the end. Gilbert fairly lifted the chestnut miss into the finish line ahead of the charge of Isle of Mist and Aleatory.

The daily double on 5 and 1 paid $93, while a parlay on the two winners figured $49 and some change. Mrs. J. V. Stewart's Acondale won the first at $29.20, and H. A. Luro's Deluge accounted for the second at $3.40.

J. H. Funkhouser's Wingy survived a foul claim to win the fifth race and paid $41.40. Wingy ran like a backfield star but the stewards spent hours weighing the objection of George Stidham, who was second with H. S. Horkheimer's Lady, finally letting the result stand. Dick Williams was aboard the winner.

Dear Folks:

Jockey Willie Downs is about ready to swing into action again. He's beenon the shilf with a boil on his leg. Blue Hills was shipped to New York and may miss Thursday's Riggs Handicap. Samuel Boulmetis, crack apprentice rider, won't go to Bowie but almost all the other boys will be there. Jockey George Cardoza, one of the better minor track riders, has a high percentage of winners for the fall season—the majority long shots. With 15 winners, Jack Robertson appears to have the saddle race locked up. The Belair stud will retire My Emma, good 4-year-old daughter of Isolater, after her stake engagements at Bowie. See you on the rail. BILL.

Notre Dame Scores Another First on Total Offense

Boston U. Holds 2d, Villanova 3d

Notre Dame's No. 1 team is No. 1 also on total offense, National Collegiate Athletic Bureau statistics disclosed yesterday.

Although knocked from the unbeaten ranks by Maryland, Boston U. is second. Villanova, which showed favorably here against Georgetwon, is third.

On passing offense, William and Mary is in the third spot; Navy eighth. Unbeaten Virginia is fourteenth in rushing and sixth in punting.

Ohio State And SMU Make Top 10

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Notre Dame, Oklahoma, California and Army continue to be the only "regulars" in college football's first 10.

The seventh weekly Associated Press poll is out today and this fearsome foursome is at the top again—the only teams that have ranked every week of the season.

For the first time in weeks, though, there's a change even in their order with Oklahoma and California moving ahead of Army, which lost the grip it has held on second place since October 10 by being held to 14-13 by Pennsylvania.

Ohio State and Southern Methodist are newcomers to the first 10 this week, replacing Cornell, which had its perfect record spoiled by Dartmouth, 16-7, and Michigan State bowed to Oregon State, 25-20.

The total vote with points figured on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first place votes in parentheses)

1. Notre Dame (140) 1592
2. Oklahoma (15) 1298
3. California (5) 1252
4. Army (1) 1130
5. Michigan 769
6. Rice 566
7. Ohio State 486
8. Minnesota 428
9. Virginia (1) 276
10. Southern Methodist 194

The second ten—11, eKnucky, 150; 12, Stanford, 105; 13, Louisiana State, 87; 14, Dartmouth, 75; 15, Baylor, 64; 16, Maryland, 52; 17, Cornell, 49; 18, Michigan State, 46; 19, and 20, Tulane and Santa Clara, each 44.

Others receiving votes: College of Pacific, 38; North Carolina, 31; Pennsylvania, 24; Wisconsin, 23; Villanova, 8; UCLA and Texas, each 7; Princeton and Duke, each 4 Alabama and Tennessee, each 3; Texas Christian and Boston U., each 2; Wake Forest, Missouri, Illinois and Xavier, each 1.

Cardozo Easily Beats Bates High

Annapolis, Nov. 15.—Cardozo High eleven of Washington, D. C., routed Bates of Annapolis, 31-0, here today.

Deak Watson started Cardozo on the way to victory on the second play when he grabbed the ball on an end around and streaked 95 yards for a touchdown.

Turner's Bouts Switched to Tuesday Night

Next week's boxing show at Joe Turner's Arena will be held on Tuesday instead of Monday night.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced that the Tuesday date was selected in view of a special commitment with WMAL-TV and its affiliate network stations. Already signed up for the feature bout is Marshall Clayton, former all-Army lightweight champion, who is unbeaten in five local bouts since making his home here last spring. His opponent has not yet been selected.

Kallio Wins Police Golf With 35-36-71

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Keith Kallio, of Washington, shooting a card of 35-36—71, even par for the Glenwood Golf Club course, today annexed low gross honors in the first annual Richmond Police Golf Association championship. Earl King, a fellow member of the District of Columbia Metropolitan Police Force, was second with a card of 35-37—72.

Taft and Takoma Win Recreation Games

Taft defeated Lafayette, 7-0, and Takoma blanked Congress Heights, 34-0, yesterday in D. C. Recreation League junior touch football games on the Ellipse. The winners earned a place in the quarterfinals.

In senior games yesterday, Stoddard beat Sherwood, 12-0, and Hine whipped Twin Oaks, 22-0.

The Twelfth Street YMCA's annual cross country run will be held this Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. The meet will be run in two divisions with seniors running 3.7 miles and juniors 2.6 miles.

Doc S. J. Gaither, 65-year-old harrier, is expected to compete.

Browns Retain Zack Taylor

St. Louis, Nov. 15 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns announced today that Zack Taylor will be retained as manager of the club next year.

At the same time owners of the club disclosed that Earle Brucker, recently released by the Philadelphia Athletics as a coach, has been signed by the Browns. He will be in charge of the bullpen.

President Bill Dewitt of the Browns said the announcement on Taylor's status was delayed "by the fact that we wanted the entire field personnel to be lined up simultaneously."

Coaches Johnny Tobin, Ralph Winegarner and Fred Hoffman, with the club last year, also were signed to one-year contracts. The Browns finished seventh last year under Taylor.

He was acting manager of the club for a brief period in 1946 after Luke Sewell was released as manager.

Brucker will replace Joe Schultz on the coaching staff.

Army Turns Deaf Ear to Offers Of Orange Bowl

Miami, Fla., Nv. 15 (AP).—Army's unbeaten football team is not available for participation in the Orange Bowl, or any other post-season gridiron contest.

Official announcement that the West Point Military Academy will continue its policy of not participating in such games came Tuesday in a telegram from Gordon Gray, Secretary of the Army, to John S. Knight, editor and publisher of the Miami Herald.

Knight had approached the Army in an effort to get the Cadet eleven for the New Year's football game here. Van C. Kussrow, chairman of the Orange Bowl committee's schedule group, said that until Tuesday he had entertained hope that the Army might relax its policy.

Sunoco Dynafuel beats leading premium gasolines in tests for smoother anti-knock power

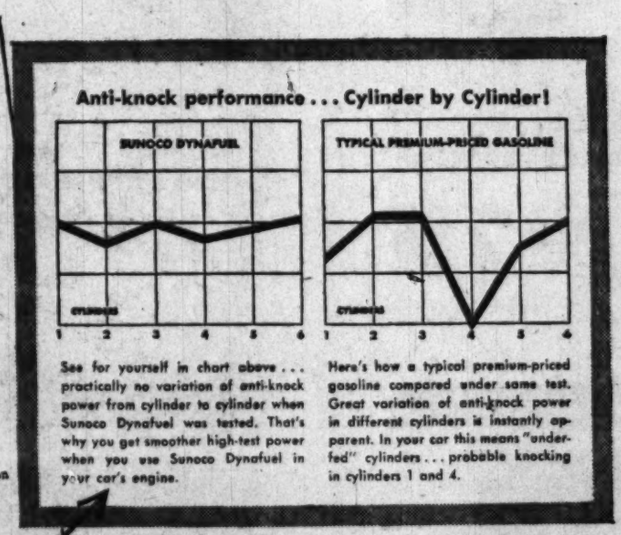
Subject: Anti-Knock Distribution Tests Dynafuel vs. Premium-priced Gasolines
Gentlemen:
We have examined and hereby certify to Report No. A-9 of your Research and Development Department covering the anti-knock distribution tests in which Sunoco Dynafuel was compared with seven (7) leading premium-priced gasolines.
These tests were made under our supervision, using samples of premium-priced gasolines purchased by us at retail service stations in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Boston and Detroit.
Sunoco Dynafuel proved superior to all seven (7) premium-priced gasolines — in uniformity of anti-knock performance in all cylinders — as measured by the ASTM Standard Motor Method.
Very truly yours,
PITTSBURGH TESTING LABORATORY
Lawrence K. Jones,
Manager - Special Test Section



See for yourself in chart above... practically no variation of anti-knock power from cylinder to cylinder when Sunoco Dynafuel was tested. That's why you get smoother high-test power when you use Sunoco Dynafuel in your car's engine.
Here's how a typical premium-priced gasoline compared under same test. Great variation of anti-knock power in different cylinders is instantly apparent. In your car this means "underfed" cylinders... probable knocking in cylinders 1 and 4.
Here's what you get with Dynafuel:
First, These tests prove that Dynafuel gives your car smoothest anti-knock performance in all cylinders... beats 7 of America's top selling premium-priced gasolines.
Second, it costs you up to 2¢ less a gallon than premium gasoline... saves you money every mile you drive. For top performance at less cost per mile... buy Sunoco Dynafuel!
Save up to 2¢ a gallon over other high-test gasolines

Central City Merchants Would Halt Suburb Drift

Businessmen Back 3-Point Program To Hold Activities

By Sy Fishbein
Post Reporter

The Federation of Business Men's Associations last night indorsed a three-point program to keep commercial activity from drifting out to the suburbs.

The proposal, which was approved and referred to a committee for further study would encourage more downtown merchants to stay open Thursday nights.

It also urges businessmen to sponsor parades and celebrations in the downtown area and urges development of underground parking areas.

The program was presented to the Federation by Sid Bertram, owner of Bertram's Pipe Shop, 918 14th st. nw., and members of a Central Businessmen's Association committee which sponsored its own drive earlier this year to keep stores open Thursday night.

Jerome B. McKee, president of the federation, said the body would work with the Central Businessmen's Association committee in urging downtown merchants to remain open Thursday nights.

McKee appointed Jack Blank, head of Arcade Pontiac, to head a committee which will study plans for the program. Serving with Blank will be T. H. Dooley and G. Leslie Schafer.

Columbia Heights

The Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights last night reiterated a stand against the transfer of Central High School to colored students.

Meeting at Bell Vocational High School, Hiatt and Lamont sts. nw., the 25 members present elected William J. Oates, a music teacher who lives at 3024 Porter st. nw., as president.

Other officers were Lester J. Walter, first vice president; Mrs. Cora Roy, second vice president; Mrs. William C. Brooks, treasurer; and Mrs. Harold H. Haas, secretary. Dr. Lyman F. Kebler and John A. Savage were named delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Anacostia Citizens

Members of the Anacostia Citizens Association last night voted approval of a six-point educational improvement program for District schools that has been mapped out by the District Public Schools Administration. The program stresses improved facilities and expansion in safety programs.

Association members, meeting at the Southeast Branch of the YMCA, 17th st. and Good Hope rd. se., opposed increasing gasoline taxes for the District.

Norris Perry, delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations, announced his resignation because of pressure of work. Glenn K. Day was appointed to replace him.

East Central Civic

The East Central Civic Association last night sent a request to Traffic Director George E. Keneipp for appropriate traffic signs at 7th and P sts. and P st. and New Jersey ave. nw., to protect school children

Meeting at the Bundy School, 429 O st. nw., the group voted $10 toward buying uniforms for the Bundy Playground basketball team and heard representatives of community church groups outline their youth programs.

TRAILER TEST—Dr. Leonard A. Scheele (right), Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, and Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, new District Health Officer, last night were first to provide blood samples for simultaneous testing for diabetes, VD, RH factor, anemia and blood typing. The laboratory, first blood-testing unit of its type, is housed in a trailer exhibit as part of the Trailer Coach Industry Exhibit at the National Guary Armory. Blood testing for show visitors will be available Friday, 6 to 10 p. m.; and Saturday and Sunday, 1 to 10 p. m., when the exhibit will be open to the public

North Central D. C. Area Called TB Trouble Spot

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The heart of the District's tuberculosis problem is in the north central area and can be solved only by better housing and health service there, Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, health officer, declared last night.

He made the statement after Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele of the United States Public Health Service pointed to the TB death rate here as a cause for "real indignation."

Dr. Scheele told a housing group meeting in Boston the tuberculosis morality rate "among the people in its squalid slums was 99 percent higher than for the rest of the population."

Overcrowding Promotes TB

Dr. Seckinger pointed out that "there is a strong correlation between overcrowding and low income with tuberculosis. Tuberculosis is a disease of the underprivileged," he said.

"They can't get medical aid as promptly as they should and their diets are improper—insufficient nutrition," Dr. Seckinger declared, reminding that the Health Department has asked for $750,000 in the 1951 budget for erection of a clinic in the central northwest section, where 26.5 per cent of the city's population is crowded in.

He said the District trouble spot is located within the bounds of the Municipal Center, Florida ave., Union Station and 9th st. nw.

400 Beds Needed

In addition to the health center, Dr. Seckinger said a new building was needed at Glenn Dale to provide 400 more beds.

The director of the District Tuberculosis Association, Edward K. Funkhouser, agreed with Dr. Seckinger on the need for expansion at Glenn Dale. He also said 35 nurses are needed for Health Department home service to tubercular awaiting admission to hospitals.

Funkhouse said that since January 1, new tuberculosis cases are being reported at the rate of four a day. This is in addition to the thousands uncovered in the city's mass chest X-ray last year, he emphasized.

As of July 1, 3001 active tuberculosis cases were awaiting hospital admission and only 1100 could be taken, he said. This meant "1900 are spreading the disease around the city. We can't control tuberculosis as long as that condition exists," Funhouser declared.

Local Death Rate

The death rate from tuberculosis here in 1948 was 57 per 100,000 population, compared with a national figure of 30 per 100,000, Funkhouser reported.

Another aftermath of Dr. Scheele's Boston speech was announcement here of plans to form a city-wide Slum Clearance and Housing Council.

Charles T. Penn, local businessman and a director of the Washington Board of Trade, was named temporary chairman of the group.

Slum Council Planned

Penn said the council will strive to integrate the various points of view on how best to approach District slum clearance and low-rent housing.

Miss Hilda Cloud of the Washington Housing Association, and named temporary council secretary, said last night that the following organizations have agreed to send representatives to the council meetings: Washington Real Estate Board, Washington Chapters of American Institute of Architects, National Association for Advancement of Colored People, American Legion, American Veterans Committee, Federal of Citizens Associations, Washington Building Congress, Washington Home Builders' Association, Washington Housing Association and the Washington Urban League.

Doctors Told of Pituitary Influence on Age Process

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 15.—Man's growth-regulating pituitary gland may play a key role in aging processes, a Baltimore physiologist reported here today.

The research scientist, Dr. Nathan W. Shock, emphasized, however, that recent research gives only a hint of that role.

Dr. Shock, chief of the cardiovascular and gerontology section of the Public Health Service's National Heart Institute, discussed the preliminary findings before hospital pharmacists attending the annual assembly here of the Maryland-District of Columbia-Delaware Hospital Association.

The association ended its two-day meeting late this afternoon after the delegates voted honorary membership to Dr. James MacIntosh, director of the London School of Hygiene.

Other speakers today discussed hospital affairs, from administrative concerns down through the varied specialties of semi-skilled personnel.

Dr. Shock said research workers recently got their first suggestion of the pituitary's influence on aging at the Baltimore City Hospital. There, he said, "significant differences" between responses of young and aged to pituitary stimulation were noted.

The pituitary is the pea-size gland at the base of the skull. Scientists have long been aware of its influence on growth processes, and known that its malfunctions may cause dwarfs, giants and other growth abnormalities.

The glands' natural secretions, commonly abbreviated to ACTH, activate the adrenal cortex which in turn secretes most of the sex hormones.

Dr. Shock said that one-shot doses of ACTH, extracted from adrenal glands of animals, gave the first clue in the current research. The doses, he said, showed no physiological differences in responses of the aged compared to those of the young. On the other hand, he said, "significant differences," closely linked to aging differences, were noted with administration of a pituitary stimulating drug, epinephrine.

Dr. Shock stressed that scientists have just begun to concentrate research on aging processes.

"For a long time," he said, "people thought babies were just adults whittled down in size and could be treated that way," he declared. "It has taken us even longer to realize that the aged also require specialized study and treatment."

Today's meeting concluded the annual assembly.

2 Brothers Held For Grand Jury In Traffic Death

Two brothers charged with hit-and-run and manslaughter in the death last Wednesday of William H. Brown were held for grand jury action yesterday in Alexandria Civil and Police Court.

Free on bond of $3000 and $1500 are Garland L. Neese, 29, a carpenter, of 3304 Mount Vernon ave., Alexandria, and John W. Neese, 32, male nurse of Crewe, Va. Both pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing before Judge James R. Duncan.

The brothers were arrested early last Thursday after police found Garland's abandoned auto.

Brown, 54, of 16 E. Howell ave., Alexandria, was struck and killed last Wednesday night at the intersection of Forrest and Commonwealth aves.

Falls Church To Modify Area Suit

Less Territory Of Fairfax County Now Sought in Annexation Plan

The City of Falls Church expects to ask for less than half the territory it originally proposed to annex from Fairfax County, in a new suit it plans to file in Fairfax Circuit Court.

Chopped off the proposed annexation territory will be approximately 8 square miles south and east of the city which fall within Fairfax Sanitary District No. 1, city sources said yesterday.

About "12,000 to 14,000" persons would still be included in the annexation area, more than enough to give the second-class city the total 10,000 population it must have to achieve first class status, it was said.

Earlier Suit Dropped

Falls Church, whose population is now well over 5500 persons, dropped an earlier suit to annex 14.32 square miles of Fairfax land last September. City officials then said they wanted time to study effects of a three-million-dollar sewer bond issue just passed in Sanitary District No. 1.

First news of the changed annexation plans came following a hastily called meeting of the City Council Monday night. The council voted unanimously to assure the Falls Church School Board that "present annexation plans do not contemplate any area in which Fairfax has announced it intends to build new schools."

The school officials, who are asking approval of a $700,000 school loan by referendum this Saturday, announced the council action later that night at a mass meeting on the loan.

The residential areas to be served by the three proposed new schools at Graham rd., Westlawn, and Willston are:

Jefferson Apartments, Jefferson Village, Devonshire Gardens, Tyler Park, Fenwick Park, Tremont Gardens, Westlawn, Buffalo Hill, Beachtree Farms, Ravenwood, Sleepy Hollow, Holmes Run Park, Lee Boulevard Heights, Malbrook, and Willston.

This is "roughly" the portion of the original annexation area included in Sanitary District No. 1. The new boundaries planned for the annexable area mean the city "doesn't intend to undertake to split Sanitary District No. 1, which would make a bad problem for the city and the county," it was said.

Jury Frees Slayer of Wife's Father

Herbert F. Wilkins, 34, a one-armed truck driver, yesterday was acquitted in District Court of second-degree murder charges stemming from the slaying of his father-in-law, William Benezette, 73.

The jury deliberated six hours.

Defense Attorneys Louis Jongbloet and Leonard Leimbach presented evidence that Wilkins had acted in self-defense in protecting himself from Benezette, who, it was testified, threatened Wilkins with an iron pipe.

The older man was fatally injured by a blow on the head after he intervened in a fight between Wilkins and the latter's wife, Mrs. Mary Wilkins, at their home, 1028 4th st. ne., last August.

Judge Edward A. Tamm presided at the trial. The prosecutor was Assistant United States Attorney John C. Conliff, jr.

Invalid Rescued By Firemen From Blaze in Wall

A bed-ridden man was carried from his apartment to the safety of an adjoining suite yesterday when a stubborn fire developed in the walls of a building at 5620 Colorado ave. nw.

The blaze originated in the bedroom of a second-floor apartment and swept up inside the walls to a third-floor flat occupied by Charles Robinson, 59, and his wife, Elizabeth.

Robinson, who suffers from a diabetic ailment, was rescued by firemen. His wife said he would be admitted temporarily to Providence Hospital.

A janitor saw smoke issuing from the windows of the second-floor apartment shortly after 9 a. m. He entered with a passkey and found a waste basket in flames. He dashed water on the basket, then removed it, satisfied the fire had been extinguished.

However, fire was smouldering in the walls. Mrs. Robinson, in the apartment above, smelled smoke shortly before noon and telephoned the fire department. Firemen were at the scene for two hours.

Petworth Association

In a move to secure adequate school facilities for District children, the Petworth Citizens' Association last night urged the District government to request a Federal loan to provide school structures.

The 40 members who met at the Petworth Library, Georgia ave. and Upshur st. nw., opposed a Senate bill which would enlarge powers and duties of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Speech Classes Open in Arlington

RECORDING—Using a speech recorder, Mrs. Zelda Horner Kosh, superintendent of the speech education department of Arlington Public Schools, cuts a disc with Janis Devore. Janis watches the mirror for the formation of the sound she wishes to improve. The record will be played back to the student to help her correct defects

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

"AAAAH," says Edward Clabaugh as he watches his mouth in a mirror. Edward is attending the speech clinic in Walter Reed School, Arlington

There'll be scarcely a mumble or a stammer among Arlington sixth graders when they step into junior high school next year.

Special classes in speech improvement have been initiated this week among sixth grader students in 15 county schools, under the direction of Speech Education Supervisor Mrs. Zelda Kosh.

Youngsters who stutter, run their words together, or have trouble with a lisp, a foreign accent, or an unpleasant voice will get assistance from Mrs. Kosh and two other trained speech teachers, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Peebles and John Kiernan.

In a survey of more than 3500 county youngsters in the first and sixth grades, Mrs. Kosh discovered 13.9 percent had definite speech difficulties. Another 36.4 percent were rated "in need of improvement." Rated as "superior" in speech were 3.4 percent, with the remainder falling into intermediate groups.

Silver Spring Mail Carrier Hangs Self

A 42-year-old Silver Spring mail carrier yesterday hanged himself from his bathroom door, police reported.

The man, Theodore H. Mohler, jr., was found about 10:30 a. m. by his wife, Ethel, when she returned to their home at 907 Pershing dr. after a short absence, they said.

He was suspended by a short length of clothesline jammed across the top of the closed door, according to police. A small bench lay nearby.

The Takoma Park and Silver Spring Rescue Squads worked for more than an hour in a vain attempt to revive him.

A certificate of suicide was issued by Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner.

Mohler, who had been employed in the Silver Spring Post Office for nearly six years, had suffered from sinus trouble, his wife told police. A Post Office spokesman said he had recently asked for a transfer to the West on account of his health.

He came to Silver Spring in 1943 from Youngstown, Ohio, where he had been employed in postal work since 1930.

Suspect Released In $1500 Bond on Gaming Charge

William Gray Sachlis, 52, of 1305 H st. nw., yesterday was released in $1500 bond on charges of setting up a gaming table after police arrested him in a public hallway at his address.

Vice squad detectives picked up Sachlis after they saw him seemingly accepting a bet from another man.

At headquarters, police said, Sachlis was searched and a number of football pool forms and slips indicating race bets were found.

According to police, Sachlis had been arrested July 12 and charged with setting up a gaming table but the charge was dropped and Sachlis released with a warning.

Lever Tripped

Worker Dies Under Boom Of Bulldozer

The lowering arm of a bulldozer crushed the skull of its operator here yesterday, apparently as he leaned down to disentangle a plank from the treads of the machine.

Foster

In leaning down, police said, the operator probably brushed against the lever which set the arm in motion.

The victim, Walter R. Foster, 24, an Air Force veteran, of 1622 D st. ne., was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital.

The accident happened shortly before 9 a. m. while Foster was clearing space with the bulldozer for the Thomas Somerville Plumbing Co. yard at 6th and Decatur sts. ne.

Foster is survived by his wife, Pauline, and a daughter, Kathleen, 3.

D. C. to Present Al Jolson Honor Award Saturday

Al Jolson will come back to Washington, his home town Thursday, to be acclaimed "Personality of the Year" in show business.

Due to arrive at Union Station at 8:55 a. m., he will go to the District Building to be awarded the key to the city by Commissioner John Russell Young at 9:45.

Saturday night at the Statler Hotel he will be awarded a plaque by the Variety Club which named him "Personality of the Year." In honor of the occasion, the Commissioners yesterday designated Saturday "Al Jolson Day."

Children's Art Exhibit To Be Held at Oakton

An exhibit of paintings by children from schools in Fairfax County will be held Sunday from 4 to 6 p. m. at the Oakton School, Oakton, Va. Children from the Oak Street School in Falls Church will demonstrate painting techniques. Tea will be served.

Fay to Close More Files To Newsmen

United States Attorney George M. Fay notified newspapermen covering Municipal Court yesterday that they will shortly be denied access to case files.

The prosecutor refused to give any reason for taking the action at this time, three years after he took office. However, the move was in line with one several months ago in which he forbade District Court reporters to see case jackets there.

Fay acknowledged that he knew of no instance in Municipal Court where reporters had abused their use of information obtained from his office. He did say, however, that in at least one case at District Court, a reporter used information unwisely taken from a Postoffice investigative report.

A reporter from each daily newspaper here met with Fay to discuss the situation. They were told that one of his assistants would be available to answer questions as to any court case.

"I want to prevent disclosure of material contained in investigative reports which could not be admitted in evidence during the trial. Such materials could be damaging to defendants, and should not be revealed," he said.

The newsmen told Fay that they require access to the United States Attorney's files, particularly statements of facts given by police, for background and to check statements in court trials.

At the conclusion of the conference, Fay agreed to give reporters the temporary right to see statements of facts, provided one of his assistants is present. However, this privilege will be taken from newsmen in a few days, he declared.

Reporters have been given the right to see the prosecutor's files for at least a decade.

Dr. Ruhland to Speak At Cancer Aid Dinner

Dr. George C. Ruhland, executive director of the Washington branch of the American Cancer Society, will be principal speaker at 8 p. m. today at the second anniversary dinner of the Cancer Aid Group of Washington in the Shoreham Hotel.

Dr. Ruhland recently resigned as health officer of the District of Columbia.

Blonde Says She Phoned 'Snags' to Lay Number Bet

—But Didn't Collect; 'Perhaps 30' Buzzed Bungalow During Raid, Court Told

By Benjamin C. Bradlee
Post Reporter

The Government yesterday produced a pretty blonde mother-to-be who claimed she telephoned a numbers bet on March 25 to the headquarters of William "Snags" Lewis.

Just before she took the stand in District Court a deputy marshal testified that during the raid on March 25, when Lewis and 13 others were arrested, he took a 25-cent bet on number 562 from a woman who identified herself as "Helen at Tuckerman 0872."

Mrs. Arthur L. Essex, 115 Hawaii ave. ne., testified her name is Helen, that her telephone number is TUckerman 0872 and that she placed a 25-cent bet on March 25 with a strange man who asked for and received her name and phone number.

She Forgets Number

Mrs. Essex said she could not remember exactly what number she played nor what number she dialed to place the bet.

She said she never won any of the bets, and that a man called "Willie" would collect from her at home.

Mrs. Essex was the second witness of the day who linked the sound-proofed air-conditioned "gaming room" at 4310 46th st., Bladensburg, Md., with violations of District lottery laws. Lewis, described by United States Attorney George Morris Fay as a "big-shot gambler," and the 13 other defendants were arrested in Maryland but are charged with violating District laws.

Earlier Deputy Marshal Maurice Wentzell described the contents of "perhaps 30" telephone calls he answered while he was in the Bladensburg bungalow during the raid.

"Each and every one of the calls were the same," he said. The person on the other end would say 'Snags?' and then would ask what the number was for that day."

Refused to Answer

The first two witnesses of the day refused to answer many questions from Assistant Prosecutor Edward Carey on the grounds their answers might incriminate them. Mrs. Mae Cooley, who described herself as a beautician, and Mrs. Theda Shephard, who said she was a housewife, testified they "just visited" at 4310 46th, where marshals found them on the afternoon of the raid.

Two other women on the premises the day of the raid cannot be located, Prosecutor William Hitz told Judge Matthew F. McGuire and the jury of nine men and three women. They are Mrs. Helen Maimone and Mrs. Helen Danhaki.

All four women have been indicted for gambling by the Prince Georges County grand jury, as a result of the March 25 raid.

Government Setback

The Government received one setback yesterday when McGuire ruled Hitz failed to establish any connection between five Government checks found on the person of defendant Ellis Solet at the time of the raid and any violation of the lottery laws.

In his opening statement Hitz identified the checks as salaries of Naval Gun Factory employes, and suggested they had been used to pay gambling debts.

Judge McGuire ordered the jury to "dismiss these checks from your mind, and, to make certain, I'll ask the defendant Solet to the stand."

The judge's ruling came after William C. Bursey, the payee of one of the checks, testified he had no idea where he had cashed the check and that he knew none of the defendants.

Amphitheater Work Begins in 3 Weeks

Expert Speaks

Roads Called Forty Years Behind Times

At the present rate of construction it will be 40 years before the current number of motorists receives an "adequate system" of roads and streets" here, Charles M. Upham, international authority on highway building, declared yesterday.

Upham, engineer director of the American Roadbuilders Association, told a luncheon meeting of the Washington Civitan Club that the roads are not keeping pace with population growths, improvements in speed and number of vehicles.

By the time the 40-year period of building in Greater Washington is over, an increased number of motorists and pedestrians will be on the roads and new bottlenecks and traffic slowups will have developed, Upham said.

First work on building of the Washington Sesquicentennial Amphitheater, which will later be available for plays, ballets and concerts, will be started within three weeks.

Edward Boykin, executive director of the Sesquicentennial Commission, told a luncheon meeting of the Washington Exchange Club that ground would be broken soon on the structure, the celebration's first.

The architect, William M. Haussmann of National Capital Parks, said working plans would be submitted to the commission's executive committee for approval this afternoon.

The first phase of the project will involve clearing the site of oak trees, most of which are dying, and underbrush, Haussmann said.

Next, bulldozers and gradin' machines will go to work on the site in Rock Creek Park near Colorado ave. and 16th st. nw.—shaping the soil into a bowl, filling in hollows and removing some of the humps. The final phase will be the pouring of concrete and erection of a 90 by 63-foot stage, sanitation facilities and lighting fixtures.

Boykin told the meetings at the Burlington Hotel that $300,000 has been allotted to the National Park Service for the project. It will have a seating capacity of from 3500 to 5000.

3 New Bishops' Are Appointed

By the United Press

The Most Rev. Leo Binz, former coadjutor bishop at Winona, Minn., has been named by Pope Pius XII as titular archbishop at Dubuque, Iowa, with the right of succession to Archbishop Henry P. Rohlman.

Bishop Binz, 49, is a native of Stockton, Ill. He once was a student at Loras College in Dubuque, where he now will live. He also studied at St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore, the Sulpician Seminary at Catholic University and North American College in Rome.

The appointment was one of three announced by Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States. Others included:

The Right Rev. Msgr. Francis E. Hyland, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes at Philadelphia to be titular Bishop of Gomphi and auxiliary to the Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara of Savannah-Atlanta, Ga.

Bishop-elect Hyland was ordained in Philadelphia in 1927, and subsequently took courses at the Catholic University of America. He joined the staff of the Apostolic Delegation in January, 1929, and served as secretary until 1938.

The Right Rev. Msgr. James H. Griffiths, chancellor of the Military Ordinariate, which embraces all Catholics in the armed services, to be Titular Bishop of Gaza and auxiliary to Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York in the latter's capacity as military vicar.

The Federal Diary

How U. S. Pay Check Is Figured

By Jerry Klutz

The official salary table covering the new longevity raises, for most classified employes is presented today. It was prepared by the General Accounting Office and it must be used by all Federal agencies in computing salary checks.

Longevity raises are limited by law to the first 10 (GS) General Service grades, and the 10 (CPC) Crafts, Protective and Custodial grades. Three longevity raises over the maximums of each of these 20 grades are provided in the new pay-reclassification law. That's why each of the 20 grades are listed below three times, once for each longevity.

Many Federal officials and employes alike believe that the provision for longevity increases is the most significant provision in the new law. The objective of the provision is to reward employes in so-called "dead-end" jobs for long, faithful and satisfactory service.

To be eligible for one or more longevity raises, an employe must have completed three years of continuous service at the maximum of his grade; he must have an efficiency rating of "good" or better; his agency must certify his service and conduct as "satisfactory," and he must have had in the aggregate at least 10 years of service in his present position, or an equivalent or higher grade.

Past service can be credited toward the longevity boosts. So can military service when an employe left his job to enter the armed forces and returned to it after his discharge. Some 80,000 Federal workers are now at the maximums of their grades and thousands of them will be eligible for the extra pay boosts which became effective on October 30.

The longevity pay tables follow:

Gen. Forrest, Scion of C. S. A. Leader, Buried

Brig. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, great-grandson of the famous Confederate cavalry leader of the some name, was buried with full military honors in Arlington Cemetery yesterday.

Gen. Forrest

General Forrest was only 38—one of this country's youngest generals—when he was shot down while leading a bombing mission over Kiel, Germany, on June 13, 1943.

The Third Infantry Regiment from Fort Myer, Va., furnished body bearers, a firing squad and buglers for the graveside ceremony yesterday. Maj. Albert L. Atkinson, an Air Force chaplain, conducted the services.

A native of Memphis, Tenn., General Forrest was graduated from West Point in 1928. It was his grandfather who is remembered for the words that victory in war belongs to the general who "gets thar fustest with the mostest men."

Mrs. Scofield, Hecht Buyer, Dies at 57

Funeral services for Mrs. Helen Pearce Scofield, 57, of 5504 14th st. nw., for 17 years a girls' wear buyer for the Hecht Co., will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Entombment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Scofield, who retired last March, died Monday at the Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, after a long illness. A native of Barton, Md., she had lived in the District for 25 years and was a member of the Hamline Methodist Church.

Surviving are her husband, George A. Scofield; three sisters, Mrs. Edith Grose, Cumberland, Md.; Mrs. Eliza Robertson, Columbus, Ohio, and Mrs. Clara Mobley, Chicago; three brothers, Howard, of Chicago; Nelson, of Cumberland and Henry Pearce of Ellerslie, Md., and a niece, Mrs. Hazel Gastrock, Washington.

In Memoriam

MAJ. CARLTON V. BINGHAM. In loving memory of my beloved husband who was killed one year ago today. I love you dearly every day . . . From dawn to afternoon . . . And every hour after that . . . Until I see the moon . . . I love you in the twilight when . . . The shadows move about . . . And all throughout the night until . . . The silver stars go out . . . When I am climbing up the hill . . . However high and steep . . . And when I put my work away . . . To go to bed and sleep In every happy thought or dream . . . That passes through my mind . . . And in the memory of all . . . That we have left behind . . . I love you with my heart and soul . . . Despite whatever strife . . . And I shall go on loving you . . . As long as I have life.
MRS. MAE BINGHAM.

Goal Topped by 10 Pct. in Cathedral Drive

The Washington Cathedral's annual drive for funds topped its goal by 10 percent, it was reported yesterday.

At a victory tea at St. Albans School for Boys on the Cathedral ground, A. Lloyd Symington, who headed the drive, reported $55,153 has been contributed in the drive for $50,000 and added that a few contributions have not yet been reported.

A total of $16,904, more than one third of the original goal, was collected by workers on the Women's Special Gifts Committee, headed by Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr.

Symington said that proportionately more money was designated for the Cathedral building fund than for the sustaining fund. Goal for the building work was $15,000 and for sustaining $35,000.

Though the $15,000 goal was oversubscribed, the $35,000 goal is still more than $1000 short, he said.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington and president of the National Cathedral Association, paid tribute to the campaign solicitors for their work during the month-long campaign.

With the end of the campaign in the Greater Washington area, the national drive for $375,000 for the unfinished cathedral will go into its intensive stage.

Rector Calls for 'Ministry of Conversion'

The Rev. Bryan Green, English rector who is conducting an Episcopal mission here, yesterday urged Washington clergymen to conduct a "ministry of conversion."

Men and women outside of the church today have no sense of God, he said, describing the situation as a "missionary, heathen" problem. He spoke at a special meeting of the Washington Ministerial Union at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw.

Mr. Green, rector of St. Martin's Church, Birmingham, England, described conversion as the act by which men and women are brought into a personal relationship with God in Christ.

This "grace-faith" relationship, he said, must be definite, conscious, and life-changing.

Declaring that England today is more secular than America, Mr. Green asserted that conversion in England will have to be largely "crisis conversion" because people are not being brought up in Christian homes.

Conversion, he said, should be brought about through the parish church, organized as an evangelistic unit, with its rector spearheading the program.

Mr. Green is conducting a mission for the Episcopal Diocese of Washington with nightly services at 8 o'clock through November 21 at the Washington Cathedral. Each day at 12 noon he is speaking at the Church of the Epiphany at services sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches.

Truman Says 'No Retreat' in Equal Rights Fight; Praises Dr. Bethune

By Wilson, The Washington Post

MRS. MARY McLEOD BETHUNE, president of the National Council of Negro Women, acknowledges a tribute by President Truman at the opening of the 14th annual meeting of the NCNW last night at the Labor Department Auditorium. Looking on are Indian Ambassador Mme. Pandit and Dr. Ralph Bunche, United Nations trusteeship director, who were among those receiving awards from the Council for their humanitarian work.

By Genevieve Reynolds

President Truman last night promised "no retreat and no retirement" in his battle to bring equal rights and equal opportunities to all citizens.

The President pledged his continued support in the fight to extend freedom and opportunity to all citizens "without racial or religious discrimination" at the 14th annual meeting of the National Council of Negro Women. The council opened its five-day conclave yesterday at the Labor Department Auditorium.

People of this country are awakened as never before to the true meaning of equality, Mr. Truman told some 400 council delegates, Government officials and diplomats.

President Truman confidently predicted maintenance of world peace. At the same time he urged the Nation not to be too impatient at the "seemingly slow progress" being made toward the goal.

Compares U. N. to U. S.

He compared the growth of the United Nations with the growth of the United States."

"The same patience, the same tolerance and the same respect for individual differences that enabled 13 States to become the United States of America will lead to the fulfillment of the ideals expressed in the United Nations Charter," he said.

This ideal, he pointed out, means achieving the principles of the Declaration of Human Rights as formulated by the United Nations Commission on Human Rights.

According to President Truman the United Nations is receiving new strength from lands whose peoples have achieved self-government under democratic institutions. As an example, he cited India as playing a leading role among the new nations of Asia.

The President spoke of the need to assist backward areas in developing their resources for the betterment of all peoples. His program calls for providing American skill and technical know-how to aid the undeveloped areas in the world.

Among those receiving awards was Mme. Pandit, Indian Ambassador, who told the council members and guests that "peace will only come through understanding of democracy." Democracy is the only road that will take us to peace, and she continued, "unless peace is established soon, the human race will find itself in a sad plight."

Other recipients included Secretary of Interior-designate Oscar Chapman, Dr. Ralph Bunche, United Nations Director of Trusteeship; George Denny, founder and director of the Town Hall Meeting of the Air.

Honors Dr. Bethune

Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, founder and president of the NCNW, who will retire at the conclusion of the convention, received special tribute from the President. He cited Mrs. Bethune's work in the National Youth Administration as one example of her great services, and her fight for the extension of fair employment practices as another.

Following his speech the Chief Executive congratulated 15 persons receiving council awards for their "services to humanity."

Many Get Awards

Other recipients included Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, founder and former president, National Association of Colored Women; Aubrey Willams, former head of the National Youth Administration and currently editor of The Southern Farmer; William Henry Hastie, former Governor of the Virgin Islands, now judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third District; Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University; Mrs. Edith Sampson, president of the World Town Hall Seminar Group.

Still others to receive awards were Dr. Carter Godwin, founder-director, Association for the Study of Negro Life and History; Dr. Frederick Douglass Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute; Howard Thurman, organizer of an international and interracial church in San Francisco; Dr. Channing Tobias, former member of the National YMCA Board and now director of the Phelps-Stokes Fund; Walter White, director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Bishop Robert E. Jones of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

A few of the awards were accepted by proxy. Dean George Johnson of Howard University accepted Judge Hastie's award; Mrs. George Denny received the award for her husband, and Belford Lawson for Walter White.

AAUW Cited

The only organization to receive an award was the American Association of University Women. Dean Althea K. Hottel, national AAUW president, accepted for her group. This award was given for the elimination of racial discrimination in the organization.

All awards were given on the basis of individual contribution to human welfare or humanity. Mme. Pandit's work in the international field brought her the recognition. Secretary of Interior-designate Chapman was chosen for his part in the Marian Anderson-DAR controversy. Mr. Chapman, according to Dr. Bethune, assisted in arranging for the contralto artist to sing on the Monument Grounds when she was barred from the DAR-owned Constitution Hall.

At the opening session yesterday morning council delegates received greetings from Undersecretary of Labor Michael J. Galvin and Miss Frieda Miller, chief, Women's Bureau, United States Department of Labor.

Mrs. Ernestine Perry, chairman, D. C. French Gratitude Train Committee, presented a gift from the people of France to the National Council.

Closed business sessions will continue throughout today, Thursday and Friday. A testimonial dinner honoring Dr. Bethune Friday night will be open to the public.

GOP Ailment Can Be Cured, Republican Women Are Told

By Nicha Souré

Representative Kenneth Keating told the League of Republican Women last night that the Republican Party is not suffering from any ailment "which hard work, intelligence and sincere devotion to public interest cannot cure."

The league met for a buffet supper meeting at the apartment of Mrs. Davis Elkins, 2029 Connecticut ave. Approximately 130 league members attended.

Representative Keating told the members that "we have a better product to sell than our adversary. It is better adapted to promote the long-range welfare of our people and to secure to them a continuance and strengthening of the free institution they cherish."

D. C. Federation Slates Bazaar

THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA Federation of Women's Clubs is the latest organization to slate a bazaar this week. The annual card party and bazaar will be held from 2 to 5 p. m., Friday, at Hotel 2400.

Mrs. Benjamin Schoenfeld is the general chairman in charge of arrangements.

WCTU Board To Meet Nov. 30

THE DATE of the executive board meeting of the District of Columbia, Woman's Christian Temperance Union has been changed to November 30.

The meeting will be held at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., at 10:30 a. m.,

Publicity Clinic Enlists Editors

WASHINGTON press and radio women will forget their professional jobs for a while on Thursday and act as "teachers" in a publicity clinic at American University.

Miss Genevieve Reynolds, club editor of The Washington Post, will be one of the members on a panel discussing techniques for obtaining publicity in the press, radio, television and other mass media. The clinic will be held from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. under the sponsorship of Theta Sigma Phi, professional fraternity for women in journalism, and the public relations division of American University. It is open to the public.

Participating in the panel with Miss Reynolds will be Miss Vylla Poe Wilson, club editor, Times-Herald; Miss Frances Lide, club editor, Evening Star; Miss Sarah McClendon, Washington correspondent, McClendon News Bureau; Miss Martha Strayer, Washington Daily News; Miss Mary Morrell, Public Liaison, Department of State and Miss Jackie Martin, co-author of "Washington, City of Destiny."

president of the Men's University Club, will act as interlocutors for their respective groups.

Candy Harvest Expected Early

YOU'D BETTER come early to the Harvest Festival Bazaar if you want some of Mrs. Catherine Mendum's penuchi—the candy Washingtonians have traveled from near and far to buy for 26 years.

Sponsored by the Women's Alliance of All Soul's Unitarian Church, the bazaar again will feature Mrs. Mendum's famous coconut, nut and plain penuchi. Mrs. Mendum adds extra ingredients—a candy thermometer and patience—to the traditional sugar, milk and butter mixture to make her penuchi the mouth-watering variety it is.

The bazaar will open Thursday from 3 to 6 p. m. and on Friday from noon to 9 p. m. On sale will be homemade breads, pickles, preserves, jellies and all kinds of candies.

On the entertainment program will be a barbershop quartet on Thursday at 8 p. m. and a one-act play "How Women Play Cards" in the Alliance room. Friday there will be a fencing exhibition at 8 p. m. in Pierce Hall by the Washington Fencers' Club.

Son of Lord Moyne Weds Anne Curzon

Murtogh David Guinness of New York City, son of the late Lord and Lady Moyne, was married yesterday afternoon in a quiet ceremony at the Arlington Court House to Miss Anne Curzon, of New York and Edgbaston, England.

The bridegroom's father is the former British resident minister in the Middle East who was assassinated in Cairo in 1944.

The couple drove down from New York for the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. A. L. Maiden, social psychologist with the Arlington County school system.

William Lee Comerford of New York was the couple's only attendant. The bride wore a blue faille dress. She carried her miniature poodle as she entered the Rev. Mr. Maiden's office, but handed it to Mr. Comerford during the ceremony.

Blair House Talks Turkey

Cranberry Sauce, Curled Celery Will Make Truman Typical U. S. Celebrant

By Elizabeth Maguire

THANKSGIVING DINNER at Blair House will be served with all the traditional trimmings—giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, curled celery and chestnut dressing. Mr. and Mrs. George Porterfield Wallace, brother and sister-in-law of Mrs. Truman, are coming on from Independence, Mo., to join the President and Mrs. Truman, and Mrs. David Wallace, Mrs. Truman's mother, will also be at the dinner table.

Margaret Truman's concert schedule brings her to Washington on November 27, but she will not arrive in town in time for the holiday meal.

Reports that Margaret will visit Mrs. Perle Mesta in Luxembourg at Christmas time were denied by Mrs. Truman's secretary, Mrs. Helm, at a press conference yesterday at the White House. No plans have been made for Christmas by the first family but it is most likely that they will spend the day together, either here or in Independence.

No Date for Veep

Mrs. Helm also revealed that Mrs. Truman has set no definite date for entertaining Vice President Barkley and his bride, but that she undoubtedly will have a party for them soon after their arrival in Washington. The President and Mrs. Truman will not attend the wedding of the Vice President to Mrs. Carleton Hadley in St. Louis Friday, since they are attending a dinner here that evening to be given in their honor by the Shah of Iran.

This evening the President and Mrs. Truman will give a state dinner at the Carlton Hotel for His Imperial Majesty Reza Shah Pahlavi.

Other engagements on Mrs. Truman's book for the coming week include a reception at 4 p. m. Saturday for members of the Hood College Club alumnae residing in Washington; a reception at 5:30 p. m. the same day for members of the Washington Alumnae of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, and a report luncheon of the Residential Women for the Community Chest which she will attend on Monday, November 21, at the Washington Hotel.

Mrs. Truman will lunch informally Tuesday, November 22, with Mrs. Angus Dun at the Bishop's House.

Brings Doll to Thrift Shop

BRINGING WITH her a doll for the Thrift Shop sale on December 6, Mrs. Truman paid her annual pre-Christmas visit to the shop yesterday, to be greeted by Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner, president of the shop, and Mrs. William N. Sturtevant, vice president.

Also calling at the shop yesterday were Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, with a doll from her native country wearing a blue velvet gown and silk apron and a thimble-shaped Brittany lace cap.

Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, brought an English doll dressed in garden party frock, complete with frilly parasol. And Mme. Winiewicz, wife of the Polish Ambassador, contributed a Mazur doll from north Poland in bright blue suit with red lapels, plus a long peacock feather in his hat. Collectors will also be interested in the rare dolls which have come from Yugoslavia, Denmark, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Australia, and China.

In the sale there will be hundreds of American dolls, contributed by Washingtonians whose hearts are touched by the needs of the sick and homeless children for whom the Thrift Shop is operated. New contributors this year are the children of many of the public schools who are thus sharing their dolls with other children less fortunate.

The sale of all these dolls will benefit Washington children in two important ways. First, the proceeds will provide shelter and hospital care for those who need them; second, parents will be able to buy beautiful dolls for their little girls at bargain prices.

Friends of Washington's needy children who wish to donate dolls for the sale should send them before December 1 to the Thrift Shop at 809 9th st. nw.

Guests of General Romulo

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Maloney are in New York at the Waldorf-Astoria as guests of Gen. Carlos Romulo, president of the U. N. General Assembly, and Mrs. Romulo. They attended the reception and ball given by General and Mrs. Romulo Monday evening for officials of U .N. Mr. and Mrs. Maloney will return the middle of the week.

Denfelds Off on Holiday

Admiral and Mrs. Louis E. Denfeld left last night for Westboro, Mass., on the first lap of their two-month leave.

After a few weeks in Westboro, hometown of both the former Chief of Naval Operations and his wife, the Denfelds will spend some time in Miami, Fla.

Before leaving Washington the admiral was feted by several farewell parties, among them being the large cocktail party Sunday given by Vice Chief of Naval Operations, Vice Admiral John D. Price, and Mrs. Price.

Trinity Chapter OES Plans Turkey Dinner

The ladies of Trinity Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will serve a turkey dinner November 18 at the Northeast Masonic Temple, 8th and F sts ne., between 5:30 and 7 p. m.

Presbyterian Bazaar Nov. 30

A Christmas bazaar, the first to be sponsored by the ladies of the National Presbyterian Church, formerly the Church of the Covenant, is on the calendar for Wednesday, November 30, from 2 to 9 p. m., in the church hall, 1764 N st. nw.

As general chairman, Mrs. Francis Allen has chosen her booth chairmen for the benefit, proceeds from which go to the Society of the Covenant.

Mrs. Harry G. Uhl is chairman of the turkey dinner committee, the dinner to be served at 6 and 7 p. m. Reservations must be made not later than November 28 by calling National 5959. The food booth is to be in charge of Mrs. Vernon C. Boggs; Mrs. Alfred J. Barrett has the plant and Christmas decorations; Mrs. Howard R. Eccleston and Mrs. George M. Ruffin, fancy articles; Mrs. Frank Watson, apron booth; Mrs. Edgar D. Edmonston, the baby table; Mrs. D. E. Yarnell, Christmas books and cards; Mrs. Irene Dunham, white elephants.

Autographed books by Temple Bailey, copies of Mrs. Lesley Jackson's water color postcards, stuffed animals created by Miss Anne Collier, dolls, toys and hand-knit baby articles will be on sale, along with a variety of foods.

Members of the Business and Professional Women's Guild will take orders for plates with pictures

Ask Anne

I have a dutch oven which was supposed to have been pretreated although the instructions said to grease with unsalted fat and heat for a given length of time. I followed instructions carefully, but now each time I use the dutch oven it seems to rust inside and you can rub a black substance off the sides of it. Will this be harmful? Have you any suggestions as to how to overcome this? R. B.

It sounds to me as though your dutch oven needs reseasoning. When a dutch oven starts to rust that is a signal that the fat which was heated into it when the piece was seasoned has been worn or washed away. Then, too, utensils will rust more readily when not in daily use.

Before you reseason it, scour the interior with steel wool to remove all the black substance which is now rubbing off. It is not harmful but is unsightly in food. Dusting the surface with kitchen cleansing powder will hasten the scouring.

When the surface is smooth, wash and dry. Rub unsalted shortening over the entire interior and place in a slow oven for several hours. Replenish the shortening as it is absorbed into the dutch oven during the heating period.

I am planning a housewarming party for 80 people on some future Sunday, from 3 to 5 p. m. Would you please advise me about invitations and refreshments? Would penny postcards be acceptable for invitations and punch and cookies for refreshments? If so, how would I word the invitations? R. L.

Invitations for a housewarming can be given by phone, written on correspondence or folding cards or written as informal notes. Penny postcards are not usually used for this purpose unless in addition to the invitation they are decorated with an appropriate drawing or a map to help the guests find your home. Invitations prepared in this way can be very attractive, but if you don't plan to go to this amount of trouble, I'd suggest using a card or note paper in an envelope.

The invitation would be worded something like this:

At Home (or House Warming)
(use one)
Sunday, November 14
3 to 5 P. M.
Helen and Bob Jones
Your address

Punch and cookies would be fine for refreshments. Arrange them on the dining room table which has been spread with your prettiest cloth. Decorate the table with flowers or autumn leaves and candles.

Some time ago I read of the use of a pressure cooker in baking a fruit cake. Can you give me the method and timing for this, using the recipe you gave in your column recently? H. H. E.

When cooking a fruit cake in a pressure cooker you should follow the directions which are put out by the manufacturer of your cooker. Since you didn't tell me the make of your cooker, the most I can do is give you general instructions for cooking a cake in a pressure cooker.

Place the batter in a well greased bowl or mold. Do not fill the container more than 2-3 full. Cover tightly with several thicknesses of waxed paper or aluminum foil and tie tightly with a string. Place on rack in the cooker, add water, adjust the cover, and allow steam to flow through the vent for 15 minutes. Place gauge or indicator over vent and cook 40 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Reduce pressure to zero quickly and remove from pan.

Before you use above directions, I suggest you check them with the directions which come with your cooker.

Is there a shop in Washington where I could buy game—deer or bear? D. E. L.

The meat department of a grocery store on Connecticut ave. has frozen bear chops and roasts now and will have frozen venison by the last of the month. For further information I suggest you call the store at Decatur 3366.

Can you suggest a method of removing the shine from a woolen Army officer's uniform jacket? I tried sponging with water with a little vinegar added but it did not improve the appearance. H. C. M.

When woolens develop a shine it is usually because the nap has been completely worn away. Sometimes this type of shine can be removed by rubbing the fabric with an abrasive to pull up the fibers. In doing this great care must be taken not to rub so long or hard as to damage the fabric.

Here's the way to go about it: With a damp sponge or cloth go over the shiny area until the surface is uniformly wet. Now, while the fabric is damp, rub it gently with fine steel wool. Exert pressure evenly and do not rub overlong on thin spots. Let dry and press with a damp cloth. Do not continue to iron until the cloth is entirely dry—stop while steam still comes from the pressing cloth.

Attention Mrs. J. C. of Washington: I'm sorry we do not answer plant questions in the Ask Anne column.

Inquiries and contributions to the Ask Anne column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone. Address letters and cards to Anne, Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

DRUCIE SNYDER models a gold satin dinner gown and spectacular evening coat made of snakeskin imported from India and covered in pure gold, at Louise Brune's fashion show yesterday.

MARGARET THORS wears a blossom pink taffeta ball gown made on her by designer Louise Brune during yesterdays fashion show. It is fastened at the shouled and waistline with clusters of pink roses.

MARJORIE MORGENSTIERNE models a steel gray satin dress with jeweled neckline and stole of silverblu mink.

Designer Proves Her Skill

Whips Up Gowns in a Jiffy

By Peggy Preston

A TRIO OF Washington beauties—Marjorie Morgenstierne, Margaret Thors and Drucie Snyder—stood still as statues yesterday while Louise Brune designed fall gowns for them—and on them—in a matter of minutes.

Mme. Brune, holding her first fashion show since moving to Washington, drew rounds of applause from her audience as she draped and pinned yards of fabric on the lithe, young models. It took her less than five minutes to create each of three fabulous dresses, using such lush materials as pink taffeta, midnight blue satin and pastel shaded brocade.

But the designer, as clever as she is capable, had a couple of other surprises for her guests. One was an eight-piece wardrobe dubbed the "Brune Special." The eight pieces are interchangeable and based on the "separates" idea, done in matching fabrics and colors.

Everything Goes Together

MODELED by Drucie Snyder, the compact included:

Long reversible coat, brown cashmere on one side, checked wool on the other; two skirts, one of check, one of brown; matching brown jacket; plaid cashmere bolero jacket; two shirts, one of brown silk, one of yellow; silk skirt of brown silk matching the silk blouse, making a complete dress to wear under the reversible coat.

The other "surprise package" was a multiple ensemble for evening, made of Persian brocade as a salute to the expected Shah of Iran.

The evening ensemble featured the beautiful imported fabrics which are a trademark of the designer. It included a gown of gold Persian brocade, hand woven of Ispahan design, to be worn over a green silk velvet sheathe; a coat of matching velvet, and one of matching brocade.

Distinguished Guests Present

WITH THE exception of the wool ensemble, all the costumes in the collection were festive and in the holiday mood. Sequin-sprinkled tulle, tissue taffeta, satins and laces were used with abandon to create ball gowns with billowing skirts and tiny bodices. Each costume was accessorized with furs, jewels and gloves.

Setting for the late afternoon showing was Madame Brune's apartment and only a small group of invited guests were present. Among them were Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador; Madame Thors, wife of the Icelandic Minister; Mrs. Tom Clark, Mrs. Jesse Donaldson,

Cocktail Party for Desses Like a Fashion Show

By Marie McNair

AT THE COCKTAIL PARTY yesterday given by Madame Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador, Jean Desses, Greek-born Paris designer, held an unstaged fashion show.

Two of his best models were the hostess herself and M. Desses sister, Madame Salvago. And as chic as any mannequin was Mme. Sophocles Venizelos, wife of the former Vice Premier of Greece (now a delegate to U. N.), who stood with Madame Dendramis and Paul Economou-Gouras, Counselor of the Greek Embassy, in the receiving line. The Ambassador's duties at U. N. kept him in New York.

Impossible to describe in words was the black and wine colored stiff taffeta frock which M. Desses had made for Madame Dendramis. "I design clothes for the tall woman," said the couturier.

There was an unusual winged collar effect which stood off at the shoulders on Mme. Dendramis' gown. "I put it up, he puts it down," the hostess laughed as Jean Desses took time out to rearrange his handiwork for the proper effect.

The skirt was slim, with drapery in the back, a treatment that the handsome young designer has made famous.

Mme. Venizelos wore black velvet—it, too, might have been a Desses—with cuff collar and straight skirt and pearls and diamonds wound around her throat and wrists.

A soft, dull-finished satin fashioned Mme. Salvago's frock which had a swirl of material on one hip and a wide neckline with standing collar. Her hat of black velvet carried out "la ligne" being wide of brim at the sides.

Everybody—well, almost everybody, was at the party yesterday. There were "old Washington" and diplomats, and Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed from the Supreme Court.

I saw the dean of the diplomatic corps, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, Norwegian Ambassador, and Madame Morgenstierne (in a pale blue felt hat); the Ecuadorian Ambassador and Senora de Dillon and the Chinese Ambassador, Wellington Koo. Madame Koo wore a tight gown of Chinese brocade—black brocaded in red, green and blue flowers—topped it all with a waist length jacket of the newest in dyed furs, maroon mole. A brace of aigrettes in black and gray sat atop her sleek black hair.

A threesome on a sofa included Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, Mrs. English Gordon and Mrs. Robert Walsh. Raving about the "dolmades" (rice and meat wrapped in bite sized grape leaves) were Mrs. Gordon Young, Mrs. George Thorpe and Mrs. Walter Wilds.

Saw Admiral James H. Foskett getting a hearty welcome back, with Mrs. Foskett at his side—they've been living in Philadelphia. Stanley Hornbeck, our one-time Ambassador to the Netherlands, was seen talking earnestly to the Chinese Ambassador while Mrs. Hornbeck nibbled teatime dainties.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wrathful and Dejected, Young Mother Duels With Her Family About Their Failure to Give Her Help With Children; She Craves Breather

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Fred and I are married quite a few years and are happy with our children, house, etc., but there is one thing that bothers us. We don't get out for any good times, we're mostly home, and wherever we go, our children are right along with us.

My family feels that inasmuch as we wanted children it is our duty to take care of them; and there are times when I am really sorry that I am married, because I am so disgusted. I don't see why people can't help one another. It looks as if those with a steady job, plenty of money and no children are ready to help each other have good times, but that they knock the one who is helpless.

We are the only couple in the family that has children. My brothers and sisters go out a lot and come over here and brag about the good times they have, the people they meet, etc., while Fred and I just sit. I know they do this to tease us for staying home a lot, but we can't afford two dollars or more for a baby-sitter, and once or twice when I felt we should, I couldn't find a girl to sit.

Sister Broke a Pledge to Help

LATELY one of my sisters said if we'd want to go out Saturday she would take care of the children. Feeling we had got a break, Fred and I were overjoyed and all dressed when, at 8:30 p. m., her husband called to say she couldn't come, that she was going to a party, that she had got her dates mixed. I had checked with her during the week. I was so disappointed I just sat down and cried. Next day I was sick about it all.

Mother thinks we are selfish, but I don't think so, do you? In my childhood our granny would always take care of us when my parents were out for a good time, and occasionally we stayed with granny until the next evening. However, I don't expect my mother to be a nurse for my children. I know many young mothers who use granny as a convenience, but I don't give them much credit, running around at the older woman's expense.

We have very good children, and I think my family is very selfish, don't you. I am so disgusted I can't stand it any longer. Please advise me what to do. A. L.

Dependent Slant Is Her Handicap

DEAR A. L.: Fundamentally your handicap isn't the family's disobliging attitude—which is selfish, I grant,—but rather your infantile tendency to feel helpless and to assert dependency claims in injured tones, when subjected to frustrating situations commonly experienced by struggling humanity.

As I see the picture, your family is reacting emotionally, in a defensive way, to your emotional insistence that they owe you a hand with the children. And when your mother calls your attitude selfish, she is fumbling for words with which to explain that you are making a childish demand in expecting relatives to help you carry maternal responsibilities that you invited.

In a sense she is right; and the fact that she was equally childish in her day, but "lucky" enough to have a mother who eased her burden, doesn't absolve you of obligation to face in the direction of maturity.

Be Self Reliant in Obstacle Race

IDEALLY, people should help each other as they can; but in life as we find it at present, the best bet is to develop strength in oneself to manage what comes. And I think you might have done better for yourself in the "obstacle race" of trying to scheme up safe ways to leave the youngsters occasionally while you got out with Fred, if you had said to him "It's our problem," and acted accordingly, instead of leaning helpless-like towards your family for a lift they've consistently failed to provide.

The advantages of the leaner-course are: 1. You not only don't get what you want, but are progressively frazzled by disappointment and resentment to boot. 2. The more you sink into stagnant gloom and huff at the family in a self-pitying way, the less incentive anyone has to cut you in on fun.

Thus the basic corrective is to come to terms with your duties as a mother, stop comparing yourself miserably to couples who haven't children, and use your brains and energy to figure self-help ways of getting out. In cooperation with your congenial husband, you can negotiate some social breathers and much domestic contentment if you will.

The Trouble With Women

Baby-Tending, Beowulf Needn't Conflict, Barnard Dean Rules

New York, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—The trouble with today's crop of mothers is grandmothers, Mrs. Millicent C. McIntosh, dean of Barnard College for Women, said today.

Mrs. McIntosh, housewife, mother of five children and a famous educator, said she was tired of hearing complaints that colleges and universities are short-changing women students by not teaching them cooking, sewing and diaper changing along with intellectual subjects like Greek.

"It is the most utter nonsense I have ever heard," she declared. "Girls should get that training at home. It is the duty of mothers to pass on their knowledge of housework to their daughters, but the training of daughters has been completely abdicated by mothers."

Mrs. McIntosh, who learned to do housework before she could spell, hit the ceiling when she heard that Dr. Melva Lind, an official of the American Association of University Women, had reported that a lot of women think colleges should concentrate on baby-tending instead of Beowulf.

"The colleges are being made scapegoats for women who are maladjusted," she said. "Any intelligent person who has a good liberal arts education who can't adjust has something wrong with her.

"In school home ecomomics courses the information given you is out of the realistic picture. Even in a cooking class you can't reproduce conditions of a house or an apartment with a hot plate."

Mrs. McIntosh said many mothers have reached a high standard in home-making but are unwilling to let their daughters putter around the kitchen or help with the housework.

"They don't want things all messed up," she said.

Other mothers, she said, hope their daughters are going to marry men who can afford to hire help and won't have to do housework. But even in that event, a girl has to know how to run a house or she can't tell servants how to do it, she added.

Mrs. McIntosh said it was wrong to glorify professional activity over housewifery and make a girl think she's been wasting four years if she gets married on graduation day.

"Many persons feel housework is beneath them and wasting their education," she said. "College courses aren't wrong, but the attitudes they've been doing in school all are. I always tell graduating classes they can use what they've been doing in their lives.

"It doesn't take long to learn how to be a mother. I'd never even touched a baby until my twins were born, 16 years ago, and it took me only three days to learn how to handle them."

Picnics Aren't al fresco, They're a la Omar Khayam, When Iran's Shah Is Host

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THE 30-YEAR-OLD SHAH OF IRAN, who's arriving in town today, is no despotic Oriental potentate. The power allowed him under Iran's newish constitution is most nearly comparable to that of the King of Sweden. He's a serious young man sincerely devoted to the well-being of underprivileged Iranians.

During his American trip it is believed that the Shah will dispense with as much protocol as possible. He dislikes but has to put up with court ceremonies at home. He accepts few private invitations in Teheran and his favorite form of entertainment, for those whom he likes, is a picnic.

THE SHAH'S picnics are more Omar Khayyamish than the sometimes deplorably uncomfortable al fresco outings we go in for. They are staged in the grounds of his several palaces, not far from the palace itself, with servants handy and rugs spread handsomely on ground.

Afterward there's usually a round of sports—archery for the youthful and badminton, which the Shah learned from George Allen, our former Ambassador to Iran, for the agile.

The Shah, who isn't precisely handsome, but is well-built and flashes a frequent, most engaging smile, is at the moment an "eligible." He was married to a beautiful Princess Fawzia, a sister of King Farouk of Egypt, in 1939, and divorced her just one year ago—on November 18, to be exact. She is now the wife of an Egyptian noble. They have a 7- or 8-year-old daughter, who is at school in Switzerland.

AT THE TIME of the divorce, it was reported officially that the Persian climate "endangered the Empress Fawzia's health," but off the record, Persians guessed their Shah wanted a son. Under the law of Iran, only a male heir can ascend the throne.

The Shah owns several American automobiles. His interest is so great in how both autos and planes are built that on this trip he is stopping off in Detroit and going as guest on a Navy airplane carrier out in San Diego. A special aviation show is being staged for him at Wright Field in Ohio.

Bennetts Entertain

COL. AND MRS. JESS BRYAN BENNETT entertained a few guests at dinner last evening in their Georgetown home in honor of the Secretary General of the Organization of American States and Senora de Lleras.

Following the dinner Dr. Lleras addressed a large group at the World Affairs Center.

Stackelbergs Hosts At Dinner Party

MR. AND MRS. CONSTANTINE DE STACKELBERG were hosts at dinner last night as a welcome back to Mrs. William H. Watson, wife of Captain Watson, USN, who has returned from California and is again at the Shoreham. Captain Watson is on sea duty.

Christmas Roses Bloom on New Hats

I expect some of you expert garden clubbers will pick me up on "Christmas roses." Yes, I know Christmas roses are not roses at all but bellefiores. I'm just borrowing a pretty name for a pretty new hat fashion—rose-trimmed pastel color hats.

Most of these are pink—in felt or velours, and even in satin or taffeta ribbon with matching pink roses. But white hats with white roses are equally smart, and a new soft light shade of green looks very new.

The hats themselves are still tiny, with roses at one side of the little off-the-face brims.

This Trailer Tale Goes Truckin' Along

Postlude

2 Concerts Offer Good Listening

By Paul Hume

Cross-town driving took us to two concerts last night.

The Washington Civic Orchestra opened its season in Roosevelt Auditorium. At American University that institution's chamber music society had its second session.

Hendrik Essers led his orchestra in a good program. Abe Cherry was viola soloist and Essers exchanged his baton for a violin bow in Mozart's Symphonie Concertante for violin, viola, and orchestra.

Sir Thomas Beecham described this piece last week as the most beautiful of all concertos for more than one instrument. It holds that reputation with no difficulty. It came out with good balance in the orchestra and understanding style in the two soloists. Few concertos have more beguiling melodies or more constantly flowing lines. David Burchuk, assistant conductor, led the orchestra while Essers was doing his double duty.

The concert opened with Abert's familiar and overloaded arrangement of organ music of Bach. With six Brandenburg concertos and four suites, all intended by Bach for orchestral playing, we will award a palm of honor to the conductor who gives up trying to make organ works sound well in orchestral garb.

The Washington Civic Orchestra has improved remarkably in pitch and precision since we heard it two years ago.

At American University the chamber music society moved from baroque music into the full classicism of Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven. The latter's early writings were represented by his highly original septet for strings, bassoon, clarinet, and horn.

Written just after the first six string quartets, it is one of the most beautiful of all Beethoven's works. The inventiveness of the minuet and the variations is astonishing. The rhythmic vitality never flags.

Its performance moved well, though not always evenly so. The upper strings had their troubles but the winds deserve special commendation.

A District Court ruling couched in quaint olde Englishe—"The public has no right to the stable use of the king's highway"—yesterday nudged an exhibitor's trailer from its controversial parking place, on 14th st. at F st. nw.

Judge James R. Kirkland denied a petition of the Anderson Coach Co. to restrain the District from ordering removal of the trailer. As a result, the company had to put on the road what yesterday developed as the most entertaining sideshow of the Trailer Coach Manufacturers Association conclave at the National Guard Army.

The company's attorney, John Hillyard, claimed the firm had received authorization to park alongside the F st. front of the Willard Hotel from Police Inspector Arthur E. Miller, via Traffic Director George E. Keneipp. But——

The association in convention here—Anderson Co. is not a member—complained Monday to the Board of Trade which contacted Police Chief Robert J. Barrett, who ordered removal of the trailer because the truck had been removed. Therefore in case of fire or other crisis the trailer could not be immediately moved.

Whereupon Anderson Co. asked District Court Monday for an injunction and District Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut called Corporation Counsel Vernon West, who called Major Barrett, who said it could stay overnight if the truck was reattached and then the whole matter came up at the District Commissioners meeting, and they approved Barrett's stand and that's the way things stood until the injunction petition was heard Tuesday by Judge Kirkland, who turned it down, which action was followed by the Court of Appeals refusal to hear immediately the injunction petition and so the company moved the trailer with the truck which had since been reattached. It was all as simple as that.

Alfred England Retiring From U. S. Land Bureau

Alfred C. England, 57-year-old Interior Department employe, who witnessed the highlights of the country's great homestead era, retired yesterday as adjudicator in the Bureau of Land Management, director Marion Clawson announced.

England began his 40 years of Federal service as a messenger boy in the General Land Office of the Department of Interior. He had been in that office for nine years when land disposal by the Government reached its peak in 1915.

As an adjudicator he handled applications for land patents on the public domain. Born in Cartersville, Va., he attended public schools here and obtained a law degree from Southeastern University. He lives at 2115 F st. nw.

Moore Succeeds Vanaman

William H. Moore, 62, an accountant-auditor with the Navy Department, yesterday was appointed assistant director of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency. He was named by the District Commissioners to succeed Walter T. Vanaman who had resigned.

Council Head Lauds Record Of Charter

Montgomery County's charter form of government got credit last night from its own boosters—the Montgomery County Charter Committee—for getting off to a good start.

The committee, at its annual meeting at the Chevy Chase Woman's Club, was told in turn by County Council President Frederic P. Lee that the charter set-up will continue to do well "because we don't have divided loyalties."

"We don't have to have folks on the payroll simply because they can turn out the vote," Lee declared. "Instead, we are able to hire the best technical experts."

Charterites, he said, have public service as their prime objective—not keeping a political party in power for the sake of patronage.

Answering critic's charges that the council is "building an empire for itself," Lee said that despite new governmental activities, the county has 413 employes now compared to 414 when the council tok office, last January.

Five of the committee's 18-man board were reelected, and one new member was named. Reelected were George R. Canby, Colesville; O. M. Kile and Adlai S. Magee, Bethesda; R. E. Brown, Bellsville, and H. Deets Warfield, Damascus. The nem member is Raymond C. Williams, Silver Spring.

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS
Linda Stroble
Figures in sex slaying

Los Angeles, Nov. 15. (U.P.)—The half-nude, battered body of 6-year-old Linda Joyce Glucoft was found today in a heap of rubbish across the street from her home and the discovery set off a vast manhunt for a 67-year-old sex offender suspected as her slayer.

The curly-haired child, her head battered by two smashing blows from the blunt side of an ax and a tie knotted tightly around her neck, was found about 12 hours after she disappeared from her home.

Suspicion immediately was fixed on Fred Stroble, a fugitive from another child molestation arrest warrant, in whose yard the body was found.

Stroble left the home of his son-in-law yesterday not long after little Linda Joyce went there to play with his granddaughter, Rochelle Hausman.

Autopsy Surgeon Frederick Newbarr said his preliminary examination indicated the child apparently had not been raped but he said she appeared to have been the victim of a degenerate act.

Stroble was charged in Municipal Court last July with indecent exposure in the presence of children and with molesting a 10-year-old girl.

Ihlder Rebuts 'Ghetto' Jibes At Housing

Boston, Nov. 15 (Spl.).—Safeguards written into national housing legislation have prevented public housing projects from becoming "economic ghettos," John Ihlder, director of National Capital Housing Authority, said here today.

The head of Washington's public housing agency spoke at the sixteenth annual National Association of Housing Officials conference.

The Housing Act of 1949 did not create "economic ghettos," Ihlder told a panel session. But, he added, if the act had confined the public housing to indigent families of the lowest income fifth of the population, as he said some critics desired, it would "inevitably" have had that result.

Ihlder was introduced by John T. Egan, Commissioner of the Public Housing Administration, as "the pioneer of pioneers" in the field of public housing in this country.

NCHA, now managing about 8000 public housing units in the District, is expected soon to launch a 4000-unit low-rent housing program under provisions of the 1949 act.

Answering charges of private building interests, Ihlder told the conference today that both the 1937 and the 1949 acts carry authority for "graded rents" which permit charges in line with tenants' income.

With subsidies, he explained, the housing authority is permitted to reduce some rents to the subsistence income level and raise others to the "economic or cost level" of the public housing.

Givens Heads Policemen's Association

Pvt. Royce L. Givens, 39-year-old "license officer" at the Thirteenth Precinct, was elected president of the District Policemen's Association at a meeting last night at the Odd Fellows Temple, 419 7th st. nw.

Givens, a member of the department eight years, defeated Sergt. Raymond F. Selby of the U. S. Park Police. The new president lives at 1735 N. Rhodes st. Arlington, Va. His job at No. 13 is to investigate applications for business licenses.

Corpl. Ras Nielson, past president, did not run.

Pvt. Mary C. Goggins of the Women's Bureau was elected to one of two vice president spots. She is the second woman to serve as an officer in the association and has the distinction of being the first daughter of a policeman to serve on the force. Her father, Pvt. Stephen F. Goggins, works in the property department at headquarters.

John M. Wilson, Twelfth Precinct, was also elected a vice president; Corpl. Charles L. Wright, Administrative headquarters, recording secretary; Sergt. Samuel W. Stickley, No. 3, financial secretary; Pvt. Edgar S. Waller, Administrative Headquarters, treasurer; Corpl. Herman A. Sauer, Administrative Headquarters, trustee, and Corpl. Nielson, legislative committee.

10 From GW To Teach in Alexandria

The Alexandria school system is to be implemented by student teachers from George Washington University, the school board learned last night.

T. C. Williams, superintendent of schools, announced an agreement with the university for 10 students to begin teaching immediately at George Washington High School.

Under supervision of Alexandria teachers, they will instruct classes in physical education, French, social studies and business, Williams said.

Williams also gained the board's approval to pay substitute teachers $8 a day, instead of $6.

Marlboro Pike Improvement Plan Pushed

A delegation of more than 50 persons urged early improvement of Marlboro pike from Walkermill rd. to District line at a meeting of the Prince Georges County Commissioners in Upper Marlboro yesterday.

The citizens represented the Coral Hills Citizens Association, the Coral Hills Businessmen's Association, the Civic Federation of Spauldings and Seat Pleasant Election District, the Hillside Citizens Association and other groups.

John E. Prince, spokesman, said the heavily traveled road is narrow and winding, has dangerous curves and is totally inadequate for present-day traffic.

The commissioners named County Commissioners T. Hammon Welsh and Norman Collins; County Engineer Arthur W. Tayman and Jerrold V. Powers, attorney to the commissioners, to serve with a committee of citizens to expedite improvement of the road, which is a State road.

Two months ago, County Engineer Tayman prepared plans for the improvement, which were submitted to the State Roads Commission, the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for approval. No replies have been received, it was reported. The committee will concentrate on obtaining approval or rejection of the plan within 30 days so that further action can be taken.

Montgomery Will Add 3 Magistrates

The Montgomery County Council yesterday authorized appointment of an additional justice of the peace for each of the county's three police stations.

The action followed requests by police heads in recent weeks for additional committing magistrates to lessen the work load of station clerks who are also justices of the peace.

The council also announced appointment of an assistant health officer and a general engineer for its department of public works.

Named to the Health Department post at $7000 a year was Dr. Audrey Jane McDonald of Los Angeles, Calif. She has been associated with the Ross-Loos Medical Group in Los Angeles as a pediatrician since 1947.

FCC Asked to Hold Hearing On Video Theater Service

A petition requesting the Federal Communications Commission to hold a hearing on the subject of a theater television service was filed yesterday by Sidney Lust, owner of a chain of motion picture theaters.

Lust is the first film exhibitor in this area to file such a petition with the FCC, although several national organizations, film producers and a New York theater circuit have already done so.

Lust's petition did not ask for a specific channel assignment for his Sidney Lust Theaters at this time, but requested an opportunity for exhibitors like himself to go before the FCC and give testimony on the subject.

"If the commission, after hearing the testimony, should decide to allocate frequencies for theater television," declared Lust, "then every exhibitor will have the opportunity to applying for specific channels."

The petition outlines what it says would be the benefits of theater television. The concentration of a large audience in a theater for a television program is an advantage in certain types of programs, the petition states. It declares also that theater television will permit theaters to expand their community service.

The petition points out that programs such as adequately staged opera, ballet, and current theater would be particularly suitable for theater television, adding that "auditorium facilities in Washington for such entertainment are particularly poor."

THE DISTRICT LINE

by Bill Gold

Madam, They're Talking Through Your Hat

Ordinarily, I pay very little attention to women's hats, except for those which are particularly grotesque.

So I'm in no position to know whether this complaint stems from a change in fashions or pure coincidence.

But it appears to me that for the past six months I have not attended a movie at which I was not seated behind a woman with a large feather in her hat.

None of these feathers have remained stationary for very long. They have bobbed about in such disconcerting fashion that I have found myself paying more attention to the feathers than to the picture on the screen.

So I have tried to shift into one corner of my seat, in order to peer around the feather, instead of through it.

But I am not built for sitting in the corners of theater seats; and besides, I have no sooner unwound my long legs and gotten them settled in the new position when the feather also shifts—and the whole process must be begun anew.

Our theaters could eliminate this type of annoyance by flashing periodic messages on the screen, reminding ladies to remove all hats which bear plumage, foliage, or other protruding underbrush.

In the absence of such much-needed reminders, the patron in the seat behind is left to his own devices. This means that, if you are brave enough, you will tap the lady on the shoulder and politely ask her to take the fool thing off.

If you ever try it, let me know how you make out.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Black's Law Dictionary, third edition, excellent condition. I prefer to give it to a freshman law student." (Shepherd 2625.)

"Four nice gray housebroken kittens, 8 weeks old." (Taylor 3369.)

MISCELLANY

"Does anybody have a player piano he'd like to donate for a worthy cause?" asks Gwen Firmin of 4505 1st st. se. "The Red Cross at St. Elizabeths finds that it has several hundred player piano rolls in perfectly good condition—but no piano. Mrs. Gardner, the director, can be reached on Johnson 2-9252" . . . D. Geldner of 1831 2d st. ne. complains that the Dragon Lady (in Terry and the Pirates) doesn't look as oriental as she used to—which probably proves that there's something to this One World theory after all. We're even getting to look alike . . . Mrs. Mickey Morrison invites you to attend the turkey dinner and bazaar being held tonight and tomorrow night in St. Bernadette's School Hall (10005 Old Bladensburg rd., Silver Spring, Md., 5:30 to 8:30, $1.50 each). Children will be fed for half price only if they're under 10. Apparently the parishioners have learned by this time that half-rates for hungry 'teen-agers is a losing proposition . . . Martha Wubnig reminds you that the Central High Talent Show will be held in the school auditorium, 13th and Clifton sts. nw., Friday, at 8 p. m. She promises "a wow of a show," and tickets are only 60 cents . . . Mrs. Harry Nussbaum of 9917 Sutherland rd., Silver Spring, Md., invites me to attend the Four Corners School Fall Festival Friday at 7 p. m., for the benefit of the school P.-T. A., and promises: "We'll have a magic show, bazaar, bake sale, puppets, movies, a grab bag and a white elephant sale" . . . Mrs. Walter H. Wallace of 711 14th st., Alexandria, Va., was amused by the curious sequence of words which appeared in a recent edition of her favorite (that's us) newspaper. Under a picture of a litigant in a court case was the explanatory line: "Says she was beaten." The story began immediately below, headed, unfortunately, by the lines: "By Joseph Paull, Post Reporter." Joe pleads "not guilty."

CHALLENGE

The Capital City Spelling Club hereby challenges any five-member spelling team in this area to a radio spelldown.

The Capital City orthographers have been meeting on the first Thursday of every month at the Mount Pleasant Library, and I might as well warn you that they're pretty hot stuff.

Any church group, Government office, newspaper or periodical proofroom or other organization that doubts the club's ability is invited to contact me at The Washington Post, and I'll arrange the match.

THAT EXPLAINS IT

The current edition of the Falkland Times tells us what happened when the teacher asked Johnny to explain "radio" to the class. Johnny said:

"Well, if you had a dog that reached from New York to Chicago, and you stepped on his tail in New York and he barked in Chicago, that would be telegraphy. Radio is the same thing without the dog."

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

Anne Lawler called this morning about next week's church supper. She wanted each of us on the committee to call a list of people so we'll know how many to expect.

After I'd finished the breakfast dishes, I sat down at the telephone and started calling one person right after another. I was down to the fourth name on my list before I stopped to think of the other folks on my party line. Here I'd tied up the line for fifteen minutes without a break. Supposing someone else on the line wanted to make a call!

Needless to say, I ended my "calling marathon" right then and there. I'll make the rest of those calls later on in the day, one by one and spaced several minutes apart.

How Krug's Star Rose And Declined

By Drew Pearson

Los Angeles.—Two morals can be drawn from the quiet exit of lusty, likable, 250-pound Julius A. Krug from the Truman Cabinet.

KRUG

No. 1 — It doesn't pay for a man in public life to be publicized with Hollywood girlies.

No. 2—The press can't criticize one of Harry Truman's Cabinet members if they want him to resign. Criticism merely freezes a man in the Cabinet.

In the case of Secretary of the Interior "Cap" Krug, some of the newspapers played up the Johnny Meyers parties and the Hollywood beauties who entertained Krug when he was chairman of the War Production Board. At the time this had a tendency to solidify "Cap's" position in the Cabinet—for the President invariably rallies to his Cabinet's defense when they are under attack.

That, however, was three years ago. And for the past year, Krug and Truman have not been getting along at all.

On top of all this, Krug got himself involved in litigation over a $750,000 loan he had floated to finance the purchase of a textile mill near Knoxville, Tenn.

The tragic fact about Julius A. Krug is that most of his life he was an A-1 public servant. He started with a great career. He did a bang-up job with the Tennessee Valley Authority, then came into the Cabinet at the age of 36, the youngest Secretary of the Interior in history.

What really put the political skids under him, however, was the Brewster Committee investigation of Johnny Meyers' expense accounts, which showed payments listed to certain ladies for the entertainment of "Cap" Krug.

"Cap" found himself in hot water all the way around. He was in hot water when he went up on Capitol Hill. For while "Cap" testified about irrigation and wildlife, the Senators couldn't help having smiles on their faces as they thought of those Johnny Meyers expense accounts. Naturally this undermined "Cap's" ability to battle things out with Congress, made it difficult to get his legislative program ok'd. And this, in turn, was one reason for the White House vetoes.

"Cap" tried to please his wife by buying a convertible, a new house, and other things which she had wanted.

Naturally, this took money, and like any man with a fixed income and high income taxes, "Cap" couldn't make any real money without borrowing and trying for a capital gains tax. Probably this was why he made a small investment in the Los Angeles Rams football team, and also why he borrowed $700,000 to hold an interest in the Brookside Mills, a textile factory in Tennessee.

So far as this columnist can see, there was nothing wrong with "Cap" Krug's investment in Brookside.

In Secretary Krug's office, however, the deal hurt him in two ways. In the first place, it detracted from the time he spent in Washington. During many weeks he lived five days a week in New York, flew down to Washington Friday morning for Cabinet meetings.

The other way the textile deal hurt him was that Nathan Sheinman, from whom Krug borrowed $750,000 April 16, 1948, now wants one phase of his agreement arbitrated. He claims that he was to be the exclusive sales agent for Brookside Mills and that Krug and his partner, Thomas Epstein, owe him $90,000 in commissions.

To block this arbitration, Krug and Epstein have asked for an injunction in the New York Supreme Court, claiming that Sheinman's proposed arbitration "represents a blatant attempt on Sheinman's part to seize control of Brookside Mills through a misuse of arbitration."

Assuming that Krug is entirely right, and Judge Bernard Botein has ruled in his favor on two out of three counts, nevertheless it is difficult for any Cabinet officer to keep his mind on intricate financial deals plus the 101 details connected with supervising Alaskan defense, strikes in Hawaii, the reclamation fight in California, education of the Navajos in Arizona, national parks from Yellowstone to Yosemite and the economic worries of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, to say nothing of Bedloes Island and the Statue of Liberty.
